

Community Mourns Bruschini

The city of Glen Cove is mourning the death of one of its most distinguished police officers, Lieutenant Ralph (Rod) Bruschini who passed away on January 10, 2014 at the age of 56.

Bruschini was a lifelong Glen Cove resident and member of the Glen Cove force for over 30 years. He is remembered fondly by family and friends as well as his fellow officers.

Glen Cove Police Chief William Whitton said, "Lieutenant Bruschini served our community with dignity and pride for 30 Years. He was a consummate professional and his leadership will be greatly missed. We are all saddened by his untimely passing, but find peace in the memories each of us have of him. As the police department moves forward without him, we will never forget what a kind and gentle man he was." Beloved husband of Diane. Devoted father of Michael, Krista and Julianne. Dear brother of Maryanne (Rob) Grabowski, Carol (Hugh) Kenary, son-in-law of Mary Campanola. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Arrangements by McLaughlin Kramer Megiel Funeral Home. Funeral service at St. Paul's Church. Burial at St. Paul's Cemetery.

Property Tax Shift Due To Decommissioning of Glenwood Plant "Not To Exceed 1%"

by Kevin C. Horton

At the conclusion of a meeting with Sea Cliff Mayor Bruce Kennedy recently, Deputy Nassau County Assessor Steven L. Corte sent the Mayor an e-mail confirming Kennedy's contention that a tax shift from the closed Glenwood power plant to residential properties by more than 1% per year was not legal. In addition Corte wrote "the school tax revenue shortfall this upcoming year will be made up by Community Development Block Grant Funds."

Mayor Kennedy has been raising questions about the property tax implications ever since the announcement from LIPA that they would be decommissioning the Glenwood Landing plant. The inquiries have been specifically about the property tax assessment on the National Grid/LIPA properties and how they might be assessed most fairly, in the best interest of North Shore community residents.

New Member of Fire Medic Unit Sworn in At Village Board Meeting

By Samantha Schwarz

Meghan Tastensen was sworn in as a new member of the Sea Cliff Fire Medic Unit on Monday, Jan. 13 at Village Hall. She happily raised her right hand in oath as Trustee Tom Powell welcomed her to the department. Mayor Bruce Kennedy went on to extend his thanks to the Fire Department for their work on Dec. 28 when they quickly responded to a house fire call and extinguished it before it spread further.

Mayor Kennedy also addressed the codeRED system that he believes is vital for Sea Cliff. "CodeRED is a system we've instituted to let all residents know about emergencies," he said. It also works to simplify resident's lives. In the past two weeks, codeRED has called with dates and information about recycling, snow removal and garbage collection. Mayor Kennedy urges those who have not yet entered a telephone number into the system to do so immediately. Residents can go to www.seacliff-ny.gov in order to register.

Erinn McDonnell of Sea Cliff's Section 8 sought support from the board for a senior outreach program. Her proposal in the current 40th year is preceded by last year's unsuccessful efforts. She has also submitted for funds for an ADA bathroom to be created at St. Luke's Episcopal Church. This idea stemmed from the ADA-compliant restroom that was constructed in the Sea Cliff Children's Library to accommodate people with disabilities. McDonnell continues to seek new ideas for community development within the budget allotted. "I can assure residents that these funds are serving the village very well," Trustee Carol Vogt said.

Vogt also pointed out that the bus for seniors provided 54 rides during the month of December alone. The installation of a wheelchair lift on a new bus has further encouraged residents to make use of this service. Due to the dedication of the Senior Action Committee and the volunteer drivers, these buses are also able to transport seniors to and from doctor appointments. "We are continuing to increase our participation," Vogt said on behalf of the senior population.

Last Monday, the US Coast Guard informed the New York Power Authority of an oil slick in the Long Island Sound. Upon further investigation, NYPA declared the oil to be non-toxic and therefore not a health hazard. However, the oil is currently flowing into the Sound at the Sands Point mouth of Hempstead Harbor at a rate of 3.5 to 3.8 gallons per hour. The NYPA has positioned skimmer boats to limit the spill until it can be stopped completely in an estimated two weeks from now. Shell fishing in the harbor is permitted in the meantime.

The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation will hold a public meeting in Village Hall on Thursday, Jan. 30 at 7 PM. Representatives will present a Proposed Remedial Action Plan for the Powers Chemco site located on Charles Street in Glen Cove. The plan will address the groundwater under the site, which was contaminated with solvents from previous manufacturing practices at that location. The public will have a chance to comment and make suggestions at that time.

Mayor Kennedy also drew attention to the heightened New York American Water bills many residents have been receiving as of late. "If you're still getting water bills that seem too high, certainly report it," he said. The mayor noted that his personal experience has been that water bills have decreased from $1.60 per day to $1 per day.

Trustee Vogt announced that the town is interviewing anyone seeking a position as a lifeguard this summer. She additionally noted that the Glen Cove YMCA offers a "Lifeguard in a Week" class over February break. Participants must be at least 15 years of age in order to receive an American Red Cross Lifeguarding Certificate amongst other certifications upon completing the course.

Trustee Lieberman excitedly showcased Village Hall's new podium with the official seal stamped on the front. The podium had been highly anticipated since the previous one began to shake. "I knew it wasn't me," Lieberman joked of his experiences speaking at the podium.

After the counsel finished the meeting's agenda, the public was given the chance to speak. Althea Macdonald took advantage of the opportunity, making sure to first applaud the counsel for their efforts before addressing her own concerns. She then went on to seek a solution for the exhaust fan that broke last year at Bernard's Market & Café. The fan was extremely loud for about three days and could be heard from her house. She suggested that extra fans be available in case this situation recurs.

Macdonald also spoke about pedestrian safety at the beach. She made note of the already narrow crosswalk in front of the Sea Cliff Yacht Club, adding that parked cars often protrude over it. Mayor Kennedy stated that the town has purchased more pedestrian signs to be placed near the crosswalk to ensure that cars won't prevent people from crossing the street. Referencing last year's troubles, Mayor Kennedy said, "It was a learning experience."

The second annual SpringFest will be held on June 8 from 11 AM to 5 PM. Trustee Lieberman said that the day is meant to showcase any volunteer groups that would like to claim a booth. The festival will take place on Sea Cliff Ave. between Roslyn and Main.

Sea Cliff's Grievance Day will be Tuesday, Feb. 18 from 9 AM to 7 PM, during which time complaints will be received in response to the Proposed 2014 to 2015 Assessment Roll. The Proposed Assessment Roll can be found at the Office of the Village Clerk from Feb. 3 to Feb. 18.

Next month's board meeting has been postponed until Feb. 11 at 8 PM due to scheduling conflicts.

Boys & Girls Club Supporters Dance Under the Stars

During the winter solstice, skies get clearer and stars in the night sky are supposed to glisten brighter than during any other season. The twinkle in the stars however could not have been more brilliant than on Saturday, December 7, 2013 when Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club at Lincoln House hosted their 37th Annual Fundraising Gala, Dancing Under the Stars, honoring one of its brightest stars, Liz Berens.

Mrs. Berens began her commitment to the children of Glen Cove in 1984, serving as Vice President, then President and Chairman of the Board of Directors of Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club. Today, she is an active member of the Club's Honorary Board. Mrs. Berens received the 2013 Champion of Youth Award at the Gala, the highest recognition bestowed by the Club's national organization, Boys & Girls Clubs of America.

The Gala was held under a tent at the Meadow Brook Club and bottles of exquisite wines were served thanks to the gracious donation of Banfi Vintners of Old Brookville. The décor by Party Up Productions was elegantly simple and unassumingly chic, focusing on the stars of the night, both overhead and in the room, and there were plenty of stars to be seen everywhere. The evening's program recognized Betsy Gibbs, Owner of Worth Repeating in Locust Valley and the enthusiastic force behind the success of the organization's Club Closet Tag Sale and Club Closet Shopping Spree, with the Liz Durante Community Service Award. The Club's Youth Program Director, Sara Laskow was recognized as Professional of the Year for her unwavering commitment to the Club. Both Betsy and Sara's dedication have made a significant and positive difference in the lives of the Club's members. The Gala also remembered and celebrated a very special star, Christine Pell, board member and event co-chair who recently passed away. Board President Deborah Brisbane and board member Patricia O'Kane also co-chaired the event with the assistance of a long list of committee and junior committee members. Tent walls were lined with pictures of the littlest stars – Club members who benefit from the proceeds from the Gala.

Another dazzling star of the evening was auctioneer CK Swett, who according to the New York Times has "managed to shake up the staid world of auctioneering..." and NBC News referred to as a "colorful character in the usually reserved world of charity fundraising." Mr. Swett did an outstanding job auctioning fabulous getaways procured by Live Auction Chairs Aimee Eberle and Julie Zarou to places like Montauk, Sun Valley, Nantucket and Bermuda but his stellar performance came with the Max Out the Miracle campaign, a gift-matching challenge by an anonymous donor who will match every dollar donated to the Club with two dollars, effectively tripling the value of each donation. After the Auction, guests danced the night away to music by the Groove Shop of Silver Pro Entertainment.

The success of the Gala was made possible by the many volunteers, sponsors, advertisers and donors who supported the event which helps raise a significant portion of the Club's annual budget. To see the list of these generous stars, visit www.glencovebgc.org.

To find out how to support the Club, contact Executive Director, Melissa Rhodes at mrhodes@glencovebgc.org or call 516-671-8030 ext. 103.

Special Memorial Luncheon At The Inn In Glen Cove

The INN, a/k/a the Soup Kitchen, is a well-oiled "machine" that boasts over 60 volunteers who devote their time, energy, dedication and commitment to helping the needy. All of these volunteers share some similar interests which include empathy, compassion and concern for those who are less fortunate than they are.

The Soup Kitchen is a viable place where these volunteers may interject a part of their personal lives that benefit the needy and goes above and beyond the call of duty. The gratification these volunteers receive sustains and fulfills them, which is priceless.

Volunteer Susan Tawil opted to honor her beautiful Mother, Julia Rousso, who passed away last year by donating and dedicating a Chinese luncheon feast at the Soup Kitchen on December 20, 2013 memorializing her mother's life. Susan knows there is always a need to feed the hungry so she decided to make it a win-win situation; remembering her mother who was a Chinese food aficionado, plus donating food to the INN to feed the hungry. Over 100 guests were present who partook and enjoyed a catered feast by a local Chinese restaurant, Uncle Dai. Susan selected a most delicious menu for the guests which consisted of soup, spring rolls, egg rolls, chicken, pepper steak with onions, lo mein, wonton noodles. Miniature parasols in pink, blue, red and green adorned the serving tables which gave the luncheon a cheerful atmosphere. Guests ate with gusto and were eager to read the innumerable fortune cookies that were distributed to everyone,

The ambiance was festive yet poignant. Guests felt special with the lavish luncheon served and volunteers felt special for sharing a remembrance with Susan, a very special volunteer. The camaraderie among the group is memorable and a sight to behold. The INN extends its appreciation to the Tawil family for their generosity and thoughtfulness.

Glen Cove Youth Bureau presents... YOUTH, NEWS & VIEWS

Here at the Glen Cove After 3 program, we have many exciting events occurring! As the first cycle comes to an end, we are getting ready for our winter student showcase presentation. Connolly Elementary School's showcase will be held on January 28th. Deasy and Gibbin Elementary Schools as well as Finley Middle School's showcase will be held on January 29th. Lastly, Landing Elementary School's showcase will be held on January 30th and all three showcase presentations will begin at 5:00pm. All of our students have truly been putting their best efforts and creativity into producing educational, fun projects to show to their parents, teachers and their community. Participants in the Glen Cove After 3 program will also be performing a few different entertaining acts that they have been practicing since September. Our participants are truly excited and really looking forward to shining at their showcases!

At our Finley Middle School program, the Kiwanis Club students have been working extremely hard at raising money and receiving food donations for those in need. The students plan on cooking meals and delivering the food to those in need within the Glen Cove Community. The Kiwanis club has recently held their installation dinner to in-duct the students into Kiwanis. We here at the GCA3 program couldn't be happier and more proud of our participants. At our newest programs for Deasy and Grbbin Elementary Schools, the students are constantly raving about the fun and creative projects that they have been working on and they can't wait to show off their work at their showcase. The students are consistently involved and broadening their minds with new information and facts on our current educational theme of Traveling the USA. The GCA3 participants have been exploring the history of theme parks around the USA as well as the different state monuments, food, and culture that encompass our country.

February 3rd starts our second cycle here at the Glen Cove After 3 program. We offer tons of activities for our youth to participate in and enjoy. Art, Cooking, Career Exploration, Introduction to Film Production, Kiwanis Club, Music, Positive Youth Development, Science, and Introduction to the Spanish language are just to name a few. Along with these activities, students are able to partake in educational activities led by our group leaders. During the second cycle, the participants of the GCA3 will be focusing on Important People Who Impacted America. The students will research and learn about the most influential figures in American History such as explorers, authors, political figures etc. The students will also have a chance to explore the different individuals who have impacted the cooking, music, art, and film industries as well as create projects just like those who have become famous.

Students and staff here at the GCA3 program are looking forward to another fun filled, successful cycle. If you would like to join the Glen Cove After 3 program, please contact our office at (516) 277-1303 or inquire at your child's individual school. We accept students from grades Kindergarten through 8th grade. We hope to see you soon!

Hersh Gallery Benefit for the Glen Cove Arts Council

A benefit art sale, titled Wrap It Up For The Holidays was held at the Hersh Gallery in Glen Cove by students and teachers of the Long Island Academy of Fine Art. The following artists participated in this exhibit. Larry Aarons, Emily Adams, Robert Armetta, Toni Barnes, Dina Brodsky, Dennis Cheaney, Diana Corvelle, Jessica Dayan, Rebecca Forster, Steve Forster, Tom Forster, Letizia Gentile, Barbara Hyman, Amy Jalbert, Robin Kappy, Debbie Kossoff, Anthony Mascioli, Michael Meadors, Letizia Morely, Livia Moseau, and Elizabeth Turnbull.

The works were selected by a jury for the exhibit. The artists whose work sold donated 50% of the sales to the Glen Cove Arts Council.

Victoria Crosby said that she is most grateful to Steve Forster and Robert and Flora Armetta for organizing this benefit and to the many artists who contributed. GCAC is a 501c3 non profit organization founded by poet Victoria Crosby to promote the arts to you in Glen Cove and surrounding areas who may not have the opportunities. In the past GCAC has sponsored students for art classes at LI-AFA, taken then to Tilles Center for the opera, ballet, and theater and to the Nassau County Museum of Art for docent led exhibits.

For further information or to donate to GCAC email GCartsCouncil@aol.com or contact GCAC resident Victoria Crosby at PO Box 27 Glen Cove NY 11542

Monica Randall's Winter Dreams Exhibit at NSHM

Author and historian Monica Randall's current exhibit at North Shore Historical Museum is her collection of winter gowns worn by ladies of prominent Gold Coast families, along with her photographs of models, Monica and her friends, in authentic costumes reproducing vignettes of that era. The photos were tinted to look aged and were shot on the property of various mansions on the North shore.

This is the second exhibit of clothing from Monica Randall's collection. The first exhibit Abandoned Trunks was a very successful well attended exhibit. In addition to Monica Randall's collection are two photographs depicting winter scenes at Inisfada with a poem written by Victoria Crosby, vice president of NSHM, "Ode to Inisfada." The word Inisfada is Gaelic and means Long island. The mansion in Manhasset, the former St Ignatius Retreat House owned by the Jesuits and sold to a developer, was recently demolished. Another Long Island treasure lost forever. You can read Victoria Crosby's article on Inisfada at 25amagazine.com/inisfada.

Winter Dreams will be on exhibit until February 15. NSHM is located at 140 Glen Street in Glen Cove and is open on Wednesdays from 2-6pm and Saturdays from 11am-3pm. For further information call Museum Director Colleen Yoder at 516 801-1191 or visit northshorehistoricalmuseum.org.

“Not To Exceed 1%”

The mayor approached Legislator DeRiggi-Whitton with his research and requested she assist in setting up a joint meeting with the appropriate county officials. Together they met with both the Nassau County assessor's office and several representatives from the Nassau County attorney's office.

Mayor Kennedy's main contention has been, under New York State Real Property Tax Law, it would be illegal to shift the tax burden from one property tax class to another tax class (i.e.: business to residential) by more than 1% per year (this is known as a shift in base proportions). The County Assessor's office concluded that he was, in fact, correct.

Legislator DeRiggi-Whitton stated that she, along with all of her colleagues on the Nassau County Legislature voted to approve the 2014 tax levy. She asserts that the numbers they approved confirm that there is no spike for residents and business owners stemming from the changes at National Grid.

This is just a preliminary announcement regarding a large, complicated issue. As our local elected officials continue their research, there are several important issues that must be dealt with. For one thing, when the PILOT's for other LIPA/National Grid properties expire, DeRiggi-Whitton would like to explore a regular taxing scenario. She also will work to push for redevelopment of the property in a timely manner to make sure taxes are coming from the property at an optimum amount.

Legislator DeRiggi-Whitton commended Mayor Kennedy on his knowledge and persistent efforts on this issue and points out the progress that can be made when elected officials work together to better serve their communities.

Name the Celebrity

Project. Our celebrity and Welles made history that year when they presented a controversial version of "Macbeth" set in Haiti, with voodoo priestesses playing the roles of Shakespeare's weird sisters.

Last Week's Celebrity

Last week's celebrity was Jeffrey Lynn. After his success in "The Roaring Twenties" (1939), he continued with such films as "The Fighting 69th" (1940), in which he portrayed poet-soldier, Joyce Kilmer, opposite Jimmy Cagney and Pat O'Brien, "It All Came True" (1940) with Humphrey Bogart and Ann Sheridan, "All This and Heaven, Too" (1940) with Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, and "Million Dollar Baby" (1941) again teamed up with Priscilla Lane. His movie career was interrupted by military service during WWII and when he returned to the screen in 1948, he was not able to establish himself again. He was in the notably success "A Letter to Three Wives" (1949) with Ann Sothern and Paul Ford, but his film career had stalled. Lynn starred in "Home Town Story" (1951), which featured Marilyn Monroe in a minor role. It was not until the 1960's that he achieved more successes with "Butterfield 8" with Elizabeth Taylor and "Tony Rome" (1967) with Frank Sinatra. He began appearing on TV shows such as "Robert Montgomery Presents" and "Your Show of Shows". His final acting appearance was a guest role in "Murder She Wrote", in 1987, with Angela Lansbury. This episode was a TV sequel to the feature film "Strange Bargain" (1949), which reunited him with his original co-star, Martha Scott. He died on Nov. 24, 1995, at the age of 86, from natural causes.

Correct Callers

Callers who knew our celebrity last week were: Marrio Moccia, Ted March, Don Adams, Roberta Pezza, Tony Mercado, Will and Babs Hutchins, Nancy Meyer John Rogalski.

This week's celebrity was widely regarded as one of the most respected innovators of the American stage. He also enjoyed a tremendous success as a producer, screenwriter and perhaps most remarkable of all, as a character actor in a prolific later career, begun at the age of 70. He was born in Bucharest, Romania on Sept. 22, 1902. His mother was British, while his father was an Alsatian Jew of Romanian descent, who owned a grain business. His father's substantial wealth and mother's background led him to be raised in the United Kingdom, where he was educated at Clifton College. After becoming a British citizen, he entered the family grain business as an international speculator traveling first to Argentina and later immigrating to the U.S.A. in 1924. Initially holding a seat on the Chicago Board of Trade, he was rendered nearly destitute by the Stock Market Crash of 1929. In 1935, he began a fruitful, but stormy creative partnership with the brash, enormously talented Orson Welles, then barely 20 years old. Ironically, the Depression that destroyed our celebrity's business led to many unique artistic opportunities enabling the pair, under the auspices of President F.D. Roosevelt's Works Progress Administration (WPA), to form the Negro Theatre

What is Happening with Glen Cove Hospital?

By Laurie Huenteo

Ms. Susan Kwiatek, Director of NSLIJ Hospital at Glen Cove and Dr. Barbara Barnett were kind enough to come to the Glen Cove Senior Center today, January 10, 2014, to let us know what is going on at the hospital and what is planned for the future. Although Glen Cove will be giving up inpatient services as we know it, the hospital will be expanding its Emergency Services and Stroke Center, and will have thirty-six hour inpatient care for about twenty patients at a time. Within this stay, aggressive care will be provided including physical therapy to keep the patient moving as best he/she is able from the start. If more intensive care is needed, the patient will be transferred to the most appropriate facility. Once a patient is released, the hospital plans on stepping up its aftercare by making sure a strong discharge plan is in place that will include meals, therapy if needed, and doctor, nurse, and aide visits when needed. As well, the hospital will be expanding mental health services and dental care. The goal is to see up to 5,000 patients in the dental unit in the near future.

The Don Monti Oncology Center

will remain and will include Hospice services in house. The Ambulatory Surgery Unit will be expanded. Family Practice will be kept in tact, and the Rehab Unit will incorporate nutritional services, as well as a Pulmonary component as of February 14, 2014, thanks to intensive input from the Glen Cove Senior Center's Advocate, Shirley Pinckney.

The Hospital recently did a pilot program in which nurse practitioners were sent into the local nursing homes, and it was quite successful. They are now looking into implementing this service on a more regular basis. They are also looking into incorporating more alternative methods such as acupuncture, massage therapy, and others to support their goal of prevention and wellness as opposed to re-admission and repeated treatment of same illness.

Many of the local doctors have already joined NSLIJ, and others are being invited to become a part of the Glen Cove Campus. Ten Medical Plaza will remain with its services and doctors.

If you have any questions, concerns, or suggestions, feel free to contact the hospital, and let them know. Their goal is to have a strong working relationship with the community to make NSLIJ Hospital at Glen Cove a model that hospitals across the country will want to emulate.

Obituaries

Burt Sloane

Burton Sloane died peacefully January 4, 2014 after a brief illness. He was 92 years old. He was predeceased by his wife of 67 years, Charlotte, and is survived by his sons Gary (Barbara) and Steve (Melanie), daughter Louise (Don), and four grandchildren.

Born August 16, 1921 in Brooklyn, he worked as a business reporter for The New York Times before and after his induction into the Army Air Corps, where he served with distinction as a B24 navigator and as an intelligence officer. His last official rank was Lt. Colonel.

Burt visited the new New York Times building in 2011 with his son, Steve. There they met with Arthur Sulzburger, Jr. who confirmed that Burt was both the youngest NY Times reporter in its long history, only twenty in 1940, and the only one without a college degree.

Later, aided by the GI Bill, Burt earned a BS in Economics from Brooklyn College a MS in Retailing from NYU. He had a long career as a manufacturer's agent starting as an associate with his brother-in-law Sig Morvay's firm, Mitchell and Morvay in 1949. Going out on his own, he became the first manufacturers' agent for Salton, Inc. After twenty five years with the firm, Marty Kabak, Salton's VP of Marketing presented Burt, who by then was one of the Salton's owners, a plaque certifying that he was "a man with something rare...principles." His son Steve joined him in 1973. At their peak they simultaneously represented Revereware (20 years), Salton (25+ years), (Braun 12 years), Chemex (10 years), Eltron Shavers, Allesi and Gaggia. Steve continues in the business with a new partner, his daughter, Burt's granddaughter, Molly. Burt taught economics and merchandising courses at Queens College to night-school graduate students.

Known among friends and family for his unfailing wit and generosity, Burt was a founding member of LI Hospice and after retirement volunteered as a lecturer and grief counselor.

During the past two years he has been a member of Glen Cove Writers' Group, where he has regularly contributed expertly crafted short stories. He described himself as having lived his life in a comfortable glow of self-appreciation.

Great Book Guru

- Ann DiPietro

Dear Great Book Guru,
I was at a great family reunion last week in Point Lookout, a community that reminds me a lot of Sea Cliff, when a group of partygoers left to finish the night's festivities at a new restaurant right on Lido Boulevard: J.A. Heneghan's Tavern. What a fabulous place! Named after the iconic John Anthony Heneghan, it combines the feel of a cozy Irish pub in the front and a lovely, romantic restaurant in the back. Well, while I was there one of the patrons began talking about a controversial new book about TV's role in local and national politics. I can't find it listed anywhere. Any thoughts?
Fan of J.A. Heneghan's has shaped the political climate of this country beginning with his grooming of presidential candidate Richard Nixon—many believe Nixon would never have been elected without Ailes's coaching. The Florida recount, the Clinton/Lewinsky scandal, the emergence of the Tea Party, the alleged War on Christmas, the Sarah Palin candidacy are just a small part of the Ailes's legacy, leading many including President Obama to call him "the most powerful man in America." While a fascinating look into the life of one man, the book is much more: it is a study of power and the ease with which a nation can be manipulated. Terrifying!

Dear Fan of J.A. Heneghan's,
I too love this restaurant with its fun atmosphere and delicious food! The book you are looking for was just published this week and "controversial" is putting it mildly. THE LOUDEST VOICE IN THE ROOM by Gabriel Sherman is an unauthorized biography of TV mogul Roger Ailes, who singlehandedly

A Tasteful Lesson in Language, Business and Etiquette at Finley MS

Students in Rosa Malley's Spanish class at Finley Middle School transformed their classroom into a Spanish restaurant for a day. Part of the project included designing menus, comprised of dishes and descriptions written entirely in Spanish. To make the experience authentic, students reconfigured their desks to simulate a dining area, complete with table clothes and the proper place settings. Students were expected to place their order in Spanish, exercise proper dining etiquette and even pay the bill, calculating the tip based on percentage of the total amount while considering the quality of service.

Ms. Malley played the role of the waiter. She was pleasantly surprised by the generosity.

Mill Neck Services' "Adopt a Family" Tradition: Giving and Receiving Joy

Mill Neck Services (MNS), part of the Mill Neck Family of Organizations, once again spread some seasonal joy with their latest "adopt a family" event. Recently, siblings Richard and Ria Kihm were the recipients of MNS' yearly generosity. The brother and sister, accompanied by their grandmother, Maureen Risi, gathered at the Mill Neck Services office where several staff members were on hand to present the family's gifts.

Richard, now 16, was once a pre-school student at Mill Neck Manor Early Childhood Center. He's also attended Mill Neck's annual summer Sign Camp for Hearing Kids and his family has volunteered for Mill Neck's Fall Harvest Festival.

Donations from MNS employees, along with the generosity of two of the organization's service providers, Ricoh Corporation and Abbas Dastgir, an entrepreneur operating several AT&T stores, made this holiday tradition possible. After acknowledging the kindness of all involved, Loretta Murray, Executive Director of Mill Neck Services, touched upon the spirit of giving and receiving, when she told the Kihms, "Every year we adopt a family with joy, and this year, you bring us joy." Richard and Ria, in turn, thanked everyone by performing a stirring rendition of "Silent Night."

Established in 1986, Mill Neck Services has placed more than 1,000 Deaf, hard of hearing or otherwise disabled workers in over 400 businesses operating on Long Island. Mill Neck Services is part of the Mill Neck Family of Organizations, which also includes Mill Neck Manor School for the Deaf and Mill Neck Manor Early Childhood Center.

For more information on any of Mill Neck's programs and services, please call (516) 922-4100 or visit www.millneck.org
