Waterfront Redevelopment Discussion

by Samantha Schwarz

Mayor Reginald Spinello organized a meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 19 at Glen Cove City Hall to discuss the plans for the waterfront redevelopment project.

Rick Parisi, a landscape architect with M. Paul Friedberg & Partners, reviewed the proposal with the public using a series of images that project the future appearance of the land upon completion. If approved, the new waterfront will include several parks, pathways, recreational space, as well as retail, a café, and an amphitheater. There will be 28.8 acres of open space allotted to the development.

Multiple parks will feature open space with shaded seating. Renaissance Park will also boast an 8,000 square foot playground. Additionally, there will be a full-service marina and observatory pier at Yacht Basin Park.

After hearing the plans, Parisi invited audience questions. One of the main public concerns was that there is only one prospective road leading into the area. "That's a project being built apart from our project," Parisi said. He did not comment on who is leading this segment of the project.

However, he did go on to say there would be parallel parking available on both sides of the road leading to the marina. There will also be a parking that the public will share with residents of a Glen Cove apartment building on the waterfront. The public can also utilize the two levels of parking underneath the building. Although many in attendance were eager to know the exact parking space plans, the project's representatives could not offer many details.

"The city has its own traffic and open space consultants. There's an elaborate parking plan," City of Glen Cove attorney and special counsel for this project Michael Zarin said. He did note that there would be approximately 1,700 to 1,800 parking spaces in total. Signs will be created to designate certain parking areas. He emphasized that the goal of the meeting was to share the general proposal with the residents, not to explain in detail every element of the project at this time.

"One of the overall objectives of this project is to link public amenities with residential areas," Zarin said. He went on to explain that the private entities surrounding the waterfront are likely to maintain it well in an effort to increase their property value.

Most of all, the audience was anxious to know what stage this project is in. Vice President and Project Executive with RXR Thomas Graham claimed that construction is hoped to begin next spring.

Spinello announced another meeting with greater detail early this spring.

"This project has come a long way, but there are a lot of moving pieces to it. It's a living, breathing organism," Zarin said.

Surveillance System Catches Burglar In The Act

On February 13th the Glen Cove Police received a call from a homeowner from Marietta Road in Glen Cove. Although the homeowner wasn't at home she had a home surveillance system installed in her residence which allowed her to monitor her home via a smart phone.

According to Det. Lt. John Nagle, The homeowner was shocked when she observed an unknown person inside her home and immediately notified the Police. Glen Cove officers Vincent Oppedisano and Eddy Linares responded and observed a front window open. The Officers while checking the rear of the residence observed the defendant flee from the house from a rear sliding glass door. The Officers gave chase as the defendant jumped a rear fence at that location and as he was attempting to scale the fence of the adjoining yard he was apprehended by the Officers. The defendant was identified as David Bradford age 26 of Flushing Queens. The defendant has numerous prior arrests. The defendant was charged with Burglary 2nd degree and Possession of Burglars Tools. The defendant will be arraigned today in District Court.

Sixth Graders Give Writing Tips to Elementary Students

To the delight of the fifth graders, sixth graders at North Shore Middle School visited the elementary schools to share their Personal Narratives – non-fiction, personal stories where the author focuses on a small moment in time from their own lives.

Sixth graders read parts of their Personal Narratives and shared with their younger peers some of the following writing tips:

- Use Descriptive Language - to help readers picture the stories
- Utilize a Checklist - look at goals and focus on them
- Work on Dialogue – create interesting leads and use figurative language
- Think of "Heart of the Story" – or the meaning in the stories
- Include Introductions and Endings – strong introductions that set up the stories utilizing details and conclusions that truly summarize what the stories were about

- Use of Images – photographs, visual images, and/ or graphs to help describe main characters or storyline

The Personal Narratives covered a wide array of main topics including favorite vacations spots, sporting events, animals, people, bands, and past-times. Some examples of the sixth grade Personal Narratives included:

- The New Family Member
- Rocking Roller Coaster
- Lake George Trip
- Where Are They Now?
- One Direction Concert With Jenny
- Saying Goodbye To Camp
- Pride & Baseball
- The Fire
- The Wet Day
- The Pepper Problem (About A Cat)

2nd Graders at Glen Head Celebrate Grand Apple Day!

Second graders at Glen Head celebrated in the annual Grand Apple Day as a culmination of their "apple study."

During the weeks of study, each second grader was given an apple to observe and investigate. They engaged in many educational and fun activities including peeling the apples, exploring its properties, weighing their apples using principles of mathematics, and even carving faces on them! Through the weeks, students eagerly watched as their apples underwent dramatic changes – from dehydration to wrinkling up! Throughout the month, the students monitored and kept track of the transformations.

This February, the study culminated with Grand Apple Day. Grandparents along with family members were invited to school to help make "apple dolls" complete with creative outfits for everyone to see! The wonderful variety of imaginative dolls clearly captured the interests of each student. They included: hockey, football, and baseball players, favorite animals, dragons, and even movie characters (e.g., Planet of the Apes!)

Many thanks to the students, relatives and the second grade teachers who all had a fun and educational Grand AppleDay!

Jacobs Honored by Alzheimer's Foundation

John Jacobs, The Regency's charismatic Recreation Assistant will be honored by the Long Island Alzheimer's Foundation and receive an award as an "Outstanding Recreation Professional," at their Awards Luncheon on January 30th at The Hilton Long Island in Melville.

John is extremely honored to be receiving such a prestigious and important award. It means so much to him to be recognized for his "work". John remarked, "I love working with seniors so much that it is not really like work at all. They are like family to me". John began working at The Regency in 2005 and became Recreation Assistant in 2006. He enjoys brainstorming different and stimulating activities for Regency residents and loves that he can help them enjoy life. John is known around The Regency for his upbeat and vibrant personality. The residents always look forward to spending time with him. He makes everything they do together more fun. Residents and staff alike know they can always depend on John for a smile and warm words of encouragement.

John was born and raised in Freeport with 4 siblings. He began working with seniors when he was only 16 years old. He started out volunteering in a senior living facility where his father was living and also helped to care for his father, who had dementia, for 2 years. Now John lives in Brooklyn with his own family; his wife Keisha and 2 children- Keston, 10 and Mia, 20 months.

John is undoubtedly an enormous asset to The Regency. His positive attitude and dedication help to make The Regency the special place that it is. The entire Regency family, residents and staff, would like to congratulate John on his well-deserved award and thank him for all of his hard work.

Congressman Tours NSHM

Congressman Steve Israel visited the North Shore Historical Museum recently and was given a tour by NSHM President Brian Mercadante and members of the Executive Board.

Vice President of Administration Victoria Crosby had organized the visit through the Congressman's office. Present at the meeting were Vice President of Strategic Planning Georgie Connett, Secretary Caroline Willson and Francine Koehler Executive Director of the Glen Cove BID, Business Improvement District. NSHM Treasurer Chris Brooks was unable to attend the meeting. The congressman, who is a history buff, was impressed with the restoration that had been done on the 1907 Courthouse and Police Station, including the jail cell.

NSHM is located at 140, Glen Street in Glen Cove

Smokey's Cigar and Chocolatier Celebrates Five Years

Congratulations to Smokey's Cigar and Chocolatier located at 70 Forest Avenue in Glen Cove (next to Delicious Pizza) as they celebrate their fifth year in business.

Owned by Tom and his son Justin Bellidora, the store has quickly become a staple of the community. Many residents of the area already know Tom as the owner of Classic Auto Body which he established in 1984... now, with the help of his now grown son Justin, he's enjoying the success of this business.

Besides the obvious cigars and tobacco items, Smokey's specializes in all aspects of convenience store needs including balloons, ice cream, newspapers, magazines, soda, and accessories. Readers of the Gazette might remember we wrote up Smokey's when they helped out during sandy.... How? Many of the linesmen who came up to help in the reconnection of the downed wires were from down south and had particular types of chewing tobacco they enjoyed. Justin admitted he'd never heard of some of the products before but they quickly got the product's in so that the linesmen could enjoy the items they had come to love from home. Congrats to Tom and Justin- continued success!

Pocketbook Found

While installing a new roof for Mrs. Wood's on Littleworth Lane in Sea Cliff an employee of Long Island Home and Property Maintenance, Rueben, found a pocketbook behind the bushes against the side of her house. According to the company owner Mark Doherty, Reuben rang Mrs. Wood's doorbell to return it. Mrs Wood's was genuinely shocked since she thought it was stolen out of her car 6 months ago. The pocketbook was soaking wet & not salvageable but the good news was her credit cards and cash were all intact!!!

Front Page Beauty To The Editor,

Last weeks (Feb. 6) front page of the Gold Coast Gazette was so beautiful I just had to convey my thanks to the photographer and editor. The stark black and white of the photo with the colors of the American flag in contrast, was dramatic. The Sea Cliff park pictured is a special one for me, as I grew up in a house directly across from it on Eighth Avenue. I have many warm memories of it, and Sea Cliff as well. Thank you again.

Sincerely,
Ruth Danancher DiChiara

Thank You To The Editor,

As the founder and president of the Glen Cove Arts Council, I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank and acknowledge the Long Island Academy of Fine Art, Hersh Gallery on Glen Street in Glen Cove, its owners, teachers and student artists who donated their time and talent in support of GCAC.

Over the years GCAC has sponsored talented youth with lessons and art supplies at LIAFA; youth who without the funding would have not been able to study art or build their portfolio to go on to college and a career in this field. The staff and students at LIAFA offered to give back to GCAC by hosting a reception, art exhibit and sale which raised needed funds for GCAC.

In addition to art classes the Glen Cove Arts Council exposes local youth to the arts through visits to museums, theater, ballet and opera. The board members of GCAC are also very thankful to Steve Forster who planned the event with Robert and Flora Armetta.

GCAC receives no government funding, has no paid staff and relies on fundraising events and the generosity of the community for support.

Victoria Crosby
GCAC founder and president

Glen Cove Council of PTAs Annual Community Scholarship Fund Event Honoring Our first Diamond Club Honorees

The Glen Cove Council of PTAs will be holding its Annual Community Scholarship Fund Event at the Swan Club on Sunday, March 9, 2014, beginning at 11:30. The Glen Cove Community Scholarship Fund was founded in 1958, and it annually administers funds in the form of scholarships to deserving Glen Cove High School Seniors. All proceeds from this event will be donated to this fund. This event will feature a performance by the High School Jazz Band and Basket Raffle. This year we will be honoring Nomi Rosen, Dr. Michael Israel, Rosemarie Sekelsky, Brittney Frank Rifkind, Suzanne Anderson and Mary Murphy (Camera Shy).

This First Annual Diamond Club gives each PTA unit an opportunity to honor a member of their community. The honorees are chosen from the PTA units school's administrators, faculty and staff, PTA members, parents and school volunteers; any individual who has brought a positive effect to the schools and to Glen Cove. This is the first year we induct these fine individuals into our Diamond Club where they will blaze a new trail of future Diamond Club candidates.

Our 2014 Honorees:

Nomi Rosen- The honoree from Deasy PTA, principal of Deasy Elementary School, past District Coordinator of Fine Arts. A graduate of The University of Berkeley and Bank Street College of Education. As the District Coordinator of Fine Arts, she helped to launch our elementary strings program, a middle school keyboard lab, and our high school digital photography sequence. She also created an international exchange program with students from China, Russia, and Uganda. As principal at Deasy, she fosters creativity and critical thinking while working with her teachers, parents and students through bringing in new and varied programs and experiences.

Dr. Michael Israel-The honoree from Landing PTA, our Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum, Instruction & Technology, past principal of Landing Elementary School. A graduate of SUNY at Stony Brook where he received his BA and MA, he received his doctorate in Educational Administration from NYU. Dr. Israel was Landing School principal from 1999-2012 when Landing Elementary School was awarded the distinguished "Blue Ribbon School" Award from the US Department of Education. In 2012, he was appointed Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum, Instruction & Technology. Throughout his career, Dr. Israel has modeled and shared his educational philosophy with colleagues, parents, and his community. Dr. Israel resides with his wife, Michele, and three children, Harrison (15), Sam (14), and Sarah (10).

Rosemary Sekelsky-The honoree

from Connolly PTA, principal of Connolly School and past Business Education Chairperson. Ms. Sekelsky began her career as a business teacher at the High School and was later appointed Chairperson of Business Education. She became the principal of Connolly School in 1993. Rose is proud to have created an educational community that recognizes the unique talents and gifts of its diverse student population and nurtures the full potential that lies within each child who passes through the school's doors. She is proud to share this honor with her husband Wendell and treasures her relationship with her mother, sisters and nieces and nephews.

Brittney Frank Rifkind-The honoree from RM Finley Middle School PTA, 6th and 7th grade band and general music teacher for Finley Middle School. Mrs. Rifkind received her BA in Music Education from Hofstra University and is currently pursuing her master's degree in Music Education from the Aaron Copland School of Music at CUNY Queens College. Mrs. Rifkind created the Instrumental NYSSMA Club, and was the assistant director for Middle School drama productions of School House Rock Live and Aladdin. In 2013, Mrs. Rifkind led the 7th grade band to win the Gold at the NYSSMA Major Organizations Festival. Mrs. Rifkind is also the Corresponding Secretary for the Nassau Music Educators Association. Mrs. Rifkind feels fortunate to have the constant love and support of her husband, Zachary Rifkind, and her parents, Mitchell and Melissa Frank.

Suzanne Anderson-The honoree from Glen Cove High School PTSA, past PTA President for GCHS and Co-President for PTA Council. Mrs. Anderson is a lifelong member of Glen Cove and joined the PTA back in 1992. She gives her time to many organizations such as: Jr. Soccer, Jr. Baseball/Softball, Jr. Football/Cheerleading, Cub Scouts, Girl Scouts, Landing Pride Civic Association, St. Patrick's Religious Ed., St. Rocco's Feast, Ladies Ancient Order of Hibernians, MPAPA, and Booster Club; feeling forever grateful to her family for sacrificing their time. Mrs. Anderson is honored to be chosen to represent the PTA knowing so many other volunteers also put in so much time and energy to the benefit of our youth.

Mary Murphy-the honoree from SEPTA, Director of Special Education. Mrs. Murphy began her career as a special education teacher at Glen Cove High School in 1979. She was appointed as the Director of Special Education nine years later, making the leap with the hopes to enact a positive change for children and their families. Over the years Mary has supervised many teachers and she realizes what a great privilege it is to work

Green Vale Students Take First Place in the Nassau County SumDog Math Competition

Twenty-seven second and third grade math students at The Green Vale School in Old Brookville took first place in the Nassau County SumDog Math Competition which ended on January 31. The week-long, online contest involved ten schools and included 814 students. After correctly answering 17,602 questions, collectively, the Green Vale team was elated to discover that they placed in the top spot. Second grade student Anna Sophia placed within the Top 10 of participating students in the county.

“Intense focus, careful calculations and dedication -- it’s what we as a math team are all about,” said math specialist Melissa Noga. For more information on regional and national competitions for math students, visit sumdog.com. For more on Green Vale, please visit greenvaleschool.org.

Eight North Shore High School Athletes Sign National Letters of Intent

North Shore Schools, Glen Head - Director of Athletics Don Lang proudly announced that eight North Shore High School senior athletes signed National Letters of Intent (NLI). A Letter of Intent is a binding agreement between a prospective student-athlete and an institution. Once signed, the institution agrees to provide that student with financial aid (if eligible under the NCAA rules) for one academic year in exchange for that student’s agreement to attend the institution for one academic year. Additionally, all colleges and universities that participate in the NLI program agree to not recruit these student athletes once he or she signs the NLI.

Congratulations go out to the following North Shore athletes: Claudia Ruiz playing tennis for Sacred Heart, Meaghan Brennan participating in lacrosse at Bryant University, Sunaina Vohra playing tennis at Johns Hopkins University, Ryan Perro participating in baseball at Plymouth State University, Nick Daley playing baseball at Mercy College, Carly Comitino playing lacrosse at the US Naval Academy, Ashley Wilson participating in soccer at Mississippi State, and Chris Oballe playing lacrosse at SUNY Oneonta. The students expressed their excitement and joy to achieve this prestigious accomplishment for all of their hard work and dedication.

At the National Letter of Intent ceremony, Mr. Lang praised these student-athletes while thanking their parents and encouraging all those in the audience to recognize and celebrate their tremendous success. Congratulations!

SAFE, Inc. PRIDE Project Coalition Partners with NYS OASAS and the New York National Guard Counterdrug Task Force to address community concerns

On Jan. 31, Board Chair Georgie Connett, SAFE Executive Director Dr. Sharon Harris, Coalition Coordinator Aimee Abraham LMSW and Nassau County Department of Mental Health/ NYS Office of Alcoholism and Drug Dependence prevention liaison Caroline Quadrino met with Staff Sergeant David You from the New York National Guard Counterdrug Task Force to discuss resources that will help to strengthen SAFE's Glen Cove PRIDE Project Coalition whose mission is to eliminate alcohol and substance abuse in Glen Cove.

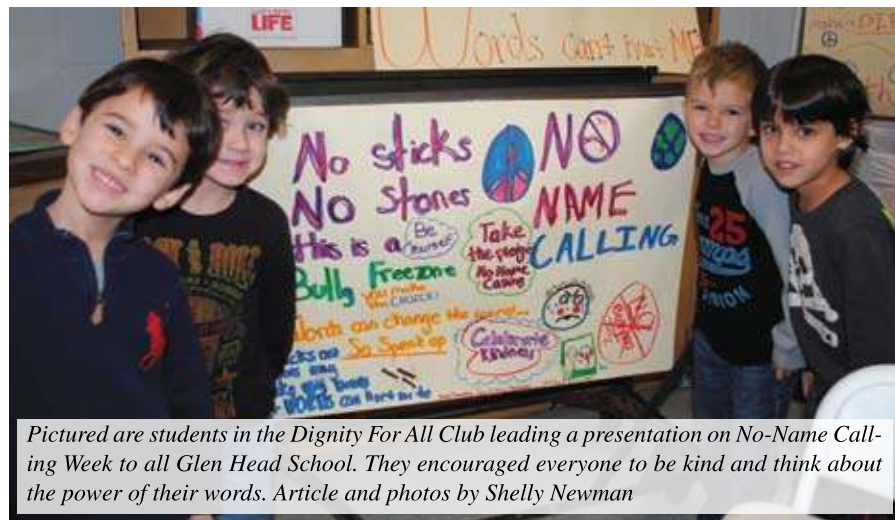

SAFE's PRIDE Project Coalition discussed partnering with the New York National Guard to achieve its mission. The Coalition has accomplished many of its goals through funding and support from SAFE, Inc., the Drug Free Communities Support Program Grant, the City of Glen Cove, Community Development Agency, community leaders and volunteers of Glen Cove. The coalition drives its goals and objectives based on the outcomes of needs assessment data and contributions from all 12 sectors of the community to gauge the effectiveness of the Coalition's efforts and to remain cognizant of the areas that need to be addressed.

The National Guard Counterdrug Task Force bridges the gap between the Department of Defense (DoD) and Non-DoD institutions in the fight against illicit drugs and transnational threats to the Homeland. The NGCTF's goal is to provide the nation with a drug-free mission ready force to defend the interests of its citizens at home and abroad. Through this partnership, the National Guard will be able to increase the Coalition's capacity to identify and address needs, improve communication, and data sharing with law enforcement and enhance our ability to implement alcohol and substance abuse prevention strategies. "The Counterdrug Task Force covers the areas of New York City, from the Mid-Hudson area to the Suffolk region, with civil operation programs to promote community development and coalition building" stated Staff Sergeant David You. The New York National Guard Counterdrug Task Force provide coalition's with technical assistance and training to create a strong response to alcohol and substance abuse within New York's communities to ensure long-term positive behavior outcomes.

For further information on any SAFE, Inc. PRIDE Project Coalition and their initiatives contact Coalition Coordinator Aimee Abraham at 516-676-2008. SAFE Inc. is a not for profit tax exempt substance abuse education and prevention agency located in Glen Cove. Glen Head School: No-Name Calling Week Celebrate Kindness

Pictured are students in the Dignity For All Club leading a presentation on No-Name Calling Week to all Glen Head School. They encouraged everyone to be kind and think about the power of their words. Article and photos by Shelly Newman North Shore Schools, Glen Head - During the week of January 21-24, students, faculty, and staff at Glen Head Elementary participated in No-Name Calling Week. Everyone was invited to the "Bully Free Zone" where they watched presentations given by members of the Dignity for All, an anti-bullying club, under the direction of Janet Goldberg, School-wide Enrichment Teacher.

Mrs. Goldberg said, "No-Name Calling Week is a national event that challenges students of all ages to think before they speak - to help put an end to bullying including hurtful teasing and put-downs."

The main theme that the fourth and fifth graders emphasized to their younger peers was to "Celebrate Kindness." They encouraged everyone to be kind and think about the power of their words. They said, "One kind word could make all the difference in someone's life."

All of the Glen Head students and faculty took a pledge to stop name-calling and received stickers further symbolizing their commitment to this important cause. Many thanks to the members of the Dignity for All Club for helping to put an end to name-calling and bullying at Glen Head School.

Nassau County American Legion Commander Speaks before the Glenwood Landing-Glen Head Business Association

At a recent meeting of the Glenwood Landing-Glen Head Business Association the Nassau County American Legion Commander, Angelo Grande spoke about the role of the Nassau County American Legion in helping the returning veterans. The Commander explained that that the Legion helps the returning Vets by making them aware of their benefits, including medical, education, job availability and training. The Legion provides Scholarships to the children of soldiers killed in combat. The Legion also assists the community by providing scholarships, conducting Oratorical Contests and sending young boys to Boys State. The County Commander's projects for this year are:

The Vet Dog Program, which provides guide dogs for returning Vets, Flags Over Nassau program which provides citations to businesses that fly a distinctive American Flag at their business and a program that establishes Legion Posts at colleges and universities in Nassau County. If anyone is interested in obtaining more information about any of the above programs, they should contact me at my e-mail address: aigrande@yahoo.com.

TO THE EAST

A FOUR MONTH JOURNEY

BY MARISSA CIAMPI

Two Chomps In Thailand

I awoke at sunrise and walked out of my bungalow directly onto the golden sands of the Hornbill Bungalows' private beach. CoCo, the family's golden retriever, was the only other creature stirring; we sat in the sand together, my feet buried in the gold and his paws on my legs. Looking out across the pristine Andaman Sea, I found the Thailand I was searching for: a deserted, unspoiled island without Wi-Fi, modern plumbing, air conditioning and, most importantly, tourists. Electricity is only run on generators for a few hours each night. For me, this is paradise.

Julia and I were spoiled by Vietnam and Laos, both of which we visited during the low season for tourism. The Thai islands have long been vacation destinations for an array of travelers, especially popular among Europeans, Russians, and Chinese tourists. It only takes one step on those white sand beaches to understand what has made Thailand so loved by visitors, but many of the country's more beautiful islands have turned into overcrowded tourist traps or been spoiled by an excess of partying Farang (Thai slang for western tourists).

A more authentic trip to Thailand can still be salvaged, so don't waste your precious vacation time following the crowd. There are still plenty of unblemished Thai islands left to explore, just ask the locals. I took advice from two expat restaurateurs in Bangkok who have lived in Thailand for over ten years. The owner of the café Chomp - the name catching my attention for obvious reasons - drew me a map of the best islands from her twelve years of experience in the country.

This map lead me on an overnight barge journey, on which I slept in a cargo hold full of bunk beds and had the most comfortable sleep in weeks. After traveling across the peninsula, I took a small commuter boat which dropped me directly on to the golden sands of Koh Chang Noi (little Chang island) and the Hornbill Bungalows. Not to be confused with the larger Koh Chang on the Gulf, this small, elephant-shaped island is home to a tiny population of Thai locals and resident ex-pats.

The sand truly is gold - not the yellow beaches of the Hamptons or the white sands of Mexico and most of Thailand's tourist beaches. On the private beach of the Hornbill Bungalows, I paid ten dollars a night for golden sand and crisp blue water the temperature of a warm bath. After one afternoon, I understood why the lovely owners, Mr. Ao and Mrs. Jib, said they never wanted to return to Bangkok.

Prior to my stint in utopia, I spent a week on Koh Tao, the diving capital of the world. I was warned by my Chomp counterpart that, while it is overcrowded with Farang, the island is still worth a visit for the price and ease of getting certified; with more dive shops than any other island, it only takes one week to achieve an advanced 30m (98ft) diving certification. Apart from the lure of diving, the small island still maintains its beauty and laid back atmosphere despite its touristic charm. It is a running joke/truth in the expat community that the island is impossible to leave. I certainly began to feel that way in my final days there; those who do stay are some of the craziest, funniest people I've ever met, truly a welcoming and kind family of expats.

A week after pulling myself away from Koh Tao, lazily sitting by the sea on Koh Chang Noi, I watched a dive boat glide off the water and onto the shore. Mr. Ao acted as my tour guide for the day and drove me around the tiny island, where we swam in the reservoir and shared a beer with the general store owners. As we sat on Ao Yai, the main beach, and watched the ship anchor, Mr. Ao called out in greeting to the men disembarking the boat. They had just returned from a dive trip to the Similan Islands, and my recently developed interest in diving sparked up a conversation. The next morning, I was picked up by the same boat, now headed for the near shores of Myanmar and a seven day dive trip of the country's beautifully preserved reef. I waved at my Hornbill hosts until the last glimpse of gold was out of sight, then looked out at the horizon of the Andaman; from this moment onward, I realized, diving was about to become a focal point of my trip to the east.

If you know our celebrity call us at 516-671-2360 or e-mail: Mail@goldcoastgazette.net

Last week's celebrity was B.D. Hyman. She was also known as Barbara Davis Sherry and Barbara Merrill, which she was credited as in "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?". (1962) She is the daughter of film star Bette Davis and artist William Grant Sherry. Bette Davis and Sherry divorced in 1950 and Sherry married B.D.'s nanny, with whom he had two more children. When Bette Davis married her fourth husband, actor Gary Merrill, he adopted B.D. and she took his last name. However, she took back her last name, Sherry, upon turning sixteen, claiming she wished to distance herself from Merrill. She appeared in two movies with her mother, "Payment on Demand" (1951) and "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?" (1962). B.D. met Jeremy Hyman, the British nephew of Seven Arts owner, Elliott Hyman, on a blind date for the film's ("Baby Jane") showing at the Cannes Film Festival. In 1963, the couple wed when B.D. was sixteen and Jeremy was 29. Her mother gave her consent and publicly supported this "underage" marriage. The couple remain together and have two sons. In 1985, B.D. wrote two books highly critical of her mother, which was met with mixed sentiment by the public. In 1987, Bette Davis wrote her own memoirs and described in an open letter to B.D., all the inaccuracies of her daughter's books. Bette Davis eventually disinherited her daughter. Today, B.D. is a TV evangelist and pastor of her own church and ministry in Charlottesville, Virginia.

Correct Callers

Callers who knew our celebrity were: Don Adams, Tony Mercado, Will and Babs Hutchins, Mario Moccia, Joseph Saepia, Roberta Pezza, Ted March, Nancy Shane.

This week's celebrity was born in London, England on March 10, 1905. He was known for playing eccentric characters such as the nosy neighbor "Clarence Appleton" in "Sitting Pretty" (1948) with Maureen O'Hara and Robert Young and "Jonathon Wilson", Jennifer Jones' character's fiancé, in "Cluny Brown" (1946). He was a regular on the "Burns and Allen" Radio Show and was readily recognized for his deliberate over-nasal and over-enunciated speech manner of stage delivery. He was particularly memorable as "Thomas, the Man-servant" in "And Then There Were Ten", the 1945 adaptation of Agatha Christie's murder mystery book, "Ten Little Indians", with Walter Huston and Barry Fitzgerald. For the baby-boomers, he may be remembered in the 1964 episode, "The Mad, Mad Tea Party Affair" of Robert Vaughn's "The Man From U.N.C.L.E." and as the Japanese businessman in a 1968 episode of Elizabeth Montgomery's "Bewitched", titled "A Majority of Two". The original "Twilight Zone" aficionados may remember him for his portrayal of "Mr. Bartlett Finchley", a quirky, self-absorbed technophobe, who is confronted by every machine in his home in the episode, "A Thing About Machines".

Deasy Elementary School Students Learn Martial Arts

Glen Cove, New York, February 10, 2014 – Principal Nomi Rosen invited GMA Martial Arts & Life Skills, located at 4 Cedar Swamp Road in Glen Cove, to deliver two assemblies to the 300 Kindergarteners through Second graders who attend Deasy Elementary School in Glen Cove. Though the martial arts is frequently viewed as a physical endeavor, Sensei Hender Alvarado and Sensei Andrew Goldberg gave the students a mental workout by teaching them how to "be safe, be kind, and work hard" through the valuable character developing lessons of the martial arts. Topics included "The A-B-C's for Conflict Avoidance," "The Value of a Polite Greeting," and "Dinner before Dessert."

At one point during the assembly, Ethan Graziosi, a student of both Deasy Elementary School and GMA Martial Arts stood before 150 of his fellow schoolmates and their teachers and performed his karate techniques with power, precision, and confidence. "Ethan's ability to courageously demonstrate his skills in front of his classmates really highlights how martial arts training improves confidence and leadership skills," remarked Sensei Goldberg, head instructor at GMA. Ethan along with his schoolmates were courteous and respectful during the interactive presentation. "Principal Rosen, the teachers, and the students were very hospitable and we look forward to continuing to partner with Deasy Elementary School and other schools in our community to enrich the educational environment," said Sensei Alvarado, owner of the karate school.

Paul's carpentry skill has been an asset to the club especially during a recent renovation of the interior. Rear Commodore Chris Brown returns this year with his invaluable experience on the waters of Long Island Sound in Lowanachen and can be depended upon to offer sound boating advice.

In the Treasurer's position is Marie Siobhan Gallagher, who also helps to organize the summer Ladies' boating programs in which the women of the club crew and take the helm on different vessels in the club and enjoy the camaraderie and improved knowledge that comes with that. Club Secretary is Betsy Gustafson, who has been a long time member and has served for many years on the Board, contributing in numerous ways to the smooth running of the club. Fleet Captain is Tim Barnard, who brings with him vast sailing experience and many good ideas for running the launch and organizing the fleet.

Great Book Guru

- Ann DiPietro

Dear Great Book Guru,
I attended a fabulous Presidents' Day brunch over the weekend, and one of the fun things we did was choose our favorite president. Many of us, myself included voted for Theodore Roosevelt. I have visited Roosevelt's homes in Oyster Bay and Manhattan, read a number of his biographies, but I would like to learn still more about this fascinating man. Any thoughts?
A Fan of T.R.

Dear T.R. Fan.

I too have always been fascinated by our 26th president. I just finished a great book by a favorite author of mine- Doris Kearns Goodwin: THE BULLY PULPIT. This is more than a standard biography of a president- it delves into Roosevelt's relationship with his handpicked successor William Howard Taft and also the role journalists played in creating the narrative of Roosevelt's life before and after his election. In fact the subtitle of the book is "Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft and the Golden Age of Journalism. Taft and Roosevelt make for such a wonderful contrast- the sickly child who devoted his life to becoming healthy, athletic, and fit and Taft, robust as a child, who went on to spend his adult life unsuccessfully fighting severe obesity. Both progressives, Roosevelt was the consummate politician and friend of journalists while Taft had little political acumen, shunning interviews and photo ops. Despite these differences, they had an intense friendship which came to a devastating end when Roosevelt decide to run against Taft for reelection with Democrat Woodrow Wilson winning the election. It was only years later, shortly before Roosevelt's death that the two men were to reconcile. A very long book (900 pages), BULLY PULPIT gives us an interesting look into a time when the presidency, politics, and the media were all reconfiguring. A very worthwhile and enjoyable read!

Glen Head Science Fair

Students Conduct Independent Investigations in Science

North Shore Schools, Glen Head - Recently, Glen Head students had the opportunity to showcase their independent investigations in the area of science. Children from all grade levels were provided with an overview of the scientific method and invited to complete projects alone, in small groups, or by working with their parents.

At the 2014 Science Fair on February 7th, the gym was packed with many excited elementary students, their family members and peers. The "young scientists" shared their work in a symposium format. The projects on display covered many intriguing scientific methods and facts including: "Solar Power", "How Volcanoes Erupt", "Electricity", "How to Make Rock Candy", "The Pulley", "Home-made Lava Lamps", "Thirsty Carnations", and "Rockin' Robot" just to name a few!

As the students explained their projects to the administrators and teachers in the gymnasium, you could see their enthusiasm and passion for science as they proudly revealed their respective observations and conclusions. Medals were handed out to all those who participated.

Many thanks to the many students who participated, all of the science teachers, parents, and the Glen Head PTO who helped support this exciting 2014 Glen Head Science Fair!
