Officials Announce Investment for Crescent Beach and Sea Cliff

A major step forward was announced this week for re-opening Crescent Beach and protecting our waters in general when officials gathered to discuss a $2 million Nassau County investment that will study sewerage Crescent Beach and Sea Cliff Avenue.

Nassau County owns a sewer system that serves a significant percentage of residents and businesses. For many years, officials have been discussing expanding the system to stimulate much-needed economic growth and home value, and also remedy pollution and health concerns affecting Glen Cove, Sea Cliff and the greater Hempstead Harbor / Oyster Bay / Long Island Sound area.

In Glen Cove, the water at Crescent beach has been contaminated for years as a result of faulty septic systems at one, or a handful, of the roughly 75 residential properties in the nearby community. This has resulted in one of Glen Cove's only beaches being closed to bathing to the city's 30,000 residents for five consecutive summers. Further, the greater Hempstead Harbor / Oyster Bay / Long Island sound shell-fishing and general revitalization efforts are being thwarted by this known source of consistent water pollution.

Nassau County's Department of Health (DOH) tried to work locally with the City of Glen Cove to study the cesspools that could be causing this large environmental / health issue. The final determination by The Nassau County DOH was that the only true solution would be to add these homes to the Nassau County sewer system.

The North Shore Historical Museum Names Its Building The Marguerite & Joseph Suozzi Building

Last fall, the North Shore Historical Museum embarked on a Naming Opportunities Campaign, offering friends of the Museum opportunities to contribute funds in exchange for the dedication of unique parts of the Museum building.

The Board of Trustees is delighted to announce that, in response to this campaign, a generous gift from the friends and family of Marguerite and Joseph Suozzi will result in dedicating the historic 1907 Courthouse building to them. The Suozzis are well known to the community served by the Museum. Both Marge and Joe have devoted a significant part of their lives to the betterment of the North Shore.

The Honorable Joseph A. Suozzi was born in Italy and has lived out the American dream of achievement and public service. He attended St. Patrick's School in Glen Cove and St. Dominic's High School in Oyster Bay. After majoring in education at Fordham University, he enlisted in the Air Force. As a navigator on a B-24 plane in World War II, he flew 35 missions, earning the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal and three Oak Leaf Clusters. After the war, he attended Harvard Law School on the G.I. Bill, graduating in 1948. He became the law partner of Mayor Luke Mercadante and, in 1949, at the age of 28, he was elected as a Judge of the City Court of Glen Cove, the youngest judge ever elected in New York State. He was elected for 2 terms as Mayor of Glen Cove, and to two 14 year terms as Justice of the New York State Supreme Court. During his second term, he was appointed as an Associate Justice of the Appellate Division. He eventually became a senior partner in the law firm of Meyer, Suozzi, English and Klein.

Marguerite Holmes Suozzi was born in Queens. She studied nursing at Mary Immaculate Hospital in Jamaica and worked as an operating room nurse at Glen Cove Community Hospital after her family moved to Sea Cliff. She met her future husband on the eve of his installation as City Court Judge and they were married 4 years later. They are the parents of 5 children, 14 grandchildren, and 3 great-grandchildren. In addition to her duties as a wife, daughter, daughter-in-law and mother, she has been an avid devotee and supporter of the political campaigns of her husband and her son, Tom, who served four terms as Glen Cove Mayor and two terms as Nassau County Executive. An enthusiastic gardener and champion golfer, she has also been active in the AARP, Girl Scouts, St. Patrick's R.C. Church and most notably, the Morgan Park Summer Music Festival. She has chaired this hugely popular event for over 50 years. Working with a committee of local volunteer residents, Marge has presented programs ranging from opera, ballet and Broadway musicals to swing, jazz and military bands.

The Museum is planning a series of events on Sunday, August 3, beginning at 3 PM, when the Plaque naming the building will be unveiled. Special guests and the public are invited to attend the ceremony at the Court building at 140 Glen Street in Glen Cove.

In recognition of Mrs. Suozzi's 50 year leadership of the Morgan Park Concerts, the public is invited to bring a picnic to Morgan Park after the ceremony to join in the festivities. A band concert will follow. Brian Mercadante, President of the Museum, when announcing this event, said that he is "anticipating that this gift will form the cornerstone of an endowment fund that will ensure the continued viability of the Museum and will enhance its presence in the North Shore community".

Anyone interested in information concerning other naming opportunities, may contact Naming Committee members Arthur and Rhoda Finer (671-5272) or Carolyn Willson (671-1537).

Working on Our Waters Officials Announce Investment for Crescent Beach and Sea Cliff

So, it is great news that Nassau County has committed to funding a feasibility study for the installation of public sanitary sewers in the North Shore area. A modern sewer system, in place of an aging septic system, will help eliminate bacterial intrusion in the local waters.

"It's important that we reopen Crescent Beach so that it once again serves as a beautiful destination for families, seniors and beachgoers," said County Executive Mangano. "The installation of sewers in this North Shore is an important public health initiative as it will protect the local environment and improve the Long Island Sound so that our recreational fishermen and residents can rely on these waters for enjoyment and business alike. I thank Mayor Spinello for his commitment to this project and for dedicating the resources necessary to identify which sewer areas should be incorporated into the County's sewage collection."

Legislator Delia DeRiggi-Whitton said she has worked on getting this project since her first day in office and was glad to help get things moving forward. She said, "Since being elected, having Crescent Beach be reopened has been one of my top priorities. This is the beach I brought my own children to when they were small, and I hope these actions the County is taking today will help to ensure that Crescent Beach is enjoyed for many generations to come."

Additionally, Glen Cove Mayor Reggie Spinello has been working on his own initiative regarding Crescent Beach. The City of Glen Cove is doing testing and legislation.

Mayor Spinello stated, "Once again County Executive Mangano has responded to my request for assistance in Glen Cove. Immediately after meeting with the County Executive and his staff to explain the inherent problems in the area surrounding Crescent Beach, the County laid the ground work for a long-term solution to our problem. This study, along with the supporting testing the City is providing and our new legislation regarding septic systems, will result in a marked improvement in the water quality in our area. I thank County Executive Mangano, Congressman Israel, Senator Marcellino, Assemblyman Lavine and Legislator DeRiggi-Whitton for their support and assistance in this matter."

In Sea Cliff, the main strip of restaurants and shops on Sea Cliff Avenue, is out of room for cesspools. The lack of any room for new systems makes any further economic development impossible and is even hurting existing establishments.

Connecting sewers and retiring old septic systems would be not only offer economic virtues, but would serve environmental and health interests. Ideally, waste should be sent through a treatment plant. Currently, a lot of waste is going into the soil, with indeterminate amounts making its way into our harbor.

The Village of Sea Cliff has had an existing design and possible funding for Sea Cliff Avenue, requiring a relatively small amount of additional funding to complete the project. So it is wonderful news that Nassau County is committing funding to getting this project going.

"This vital $2 million investment will ensure that Sea Cliff Avenue, the Village of Sea Cliff's main strip of businesses, will be accounted for in this environmental project. I thank County Executive Mangano and Congressman Israel for their work in forming partnerships to find a comprehensive and common sense solution to this issue," said Sea Cliff Mayor Bruce Kennedy.

Congressman Steve Israel stated, "Crescent Beach is a true treasure for the City of Glen Cove and for too long has been contaminated and unsafe for residents to swim and enjoy. I want to thank this bipartisan and diverse coalition of elected officials who have joined me in working tirelessly on finding a comprehensive solution to this issue and County Executive Ed Mangano for providing a $2 million investment in the future of this treasured natural resource."

"This study is a positive step in maintaining the natural beauty and resources of the waterfront. With the hard work of Nassau County Executive Ed Mangano we will finally be able to formulate a solution to the problems associated with Crescent Beach and get this cherished area open to the public once and for all," said Senator Carl L. Marcellino.

State Assemblyman Charles Lavine stated, "For far too long, Crescent Beach has been unavailable for use by the residents of the Glen Cove community. Understanding the problems that exist here and undertaking the effort necessary to ensure the environment is protected is a vitally important step in reclaiming the beach. I am very grateful for the County's role in this effort and I am pleased to play a meaningful role."

Sea Cliff Beach Palooza

By Carol Griffin

Sea Cliff Beach Palooza was held on July 5 at the Village Beach. The beach was so crowded that there was no where to park by lunchtime. The weather was conducive and made for a beautiful day and evening. There were bands, food and games that made for a perfect day and evening for all who attended.

A wrap up of the days complete activities appeared in last week's Letter to the Editor to check out the details of the day.

Glen Cove YMCA Summer Swim Club

The Glen Cove YMCA Swim Club started its summer session last week and they are already busy practicing and competing in scrimmages. The summer swim club had started as soon as school ended in June. Coaches Ginger Donaldson and Sean Vanvelsor are doing an excellent job of encouraging the kids and keeping them motivated to get up early in the morning and start swimming in the outdoor pool at 7:15am. They practice 4 mornings a week and just had their first scrimmage on July 9th against the Nassau Country Club. Everyone had a great time and are looking forward to the next scrimmage against the Sea Cliff Yacht Club.

Best Selling Author Helps Aspiring Book Authors on Long Island

"I started out with just self-published ebook and a simple blog..." Ron Douglas says about his initial journey into sharing his expertise in print. Little did he know that his little side project would evolve into a multiple-book deal with publishing powerhouse Simon & Schuster and over 1.2 million books sold worldwide.

NY Times Best Selling Author Ron Douglas has opened Publishing Etc., a full service book publishing, marketing, and consulting business located in Scoopy Doo Plaza at 175 Forest Ave in Locust Valley. Douglas says his goal with Publishing Etcetera is to help clients get published in order to share their message, talents, and expertise with the world.

In 2004, while working for JP Morgan, Douglas started a blog and free email newsletter at RecipeSecrets.net to share his recipes Online. He was looking for a way out of the corporate grind in order to spend more time with his two kids Nia and Ryan.

Douglas says, "When I was working 60 hours per week on Wall St., the best part of my day was coming home and hearing my daughter's beautiful little voice say "Daddy's Home!" I promised her that one day soon Daddy was going to be home with her all the time." Having grown up in a single-parent household himself, he was motivated to find a way to support his family by working from home.

Over time Douglas built a large following on RecipeSecrets.net which resulted in a huge demand for him to self-publish a cookbook. He launched America's Most Wanted Recipes containing 135 "copycat recipes" which were his reverse-engineered instructions for recreating popular dishes from 57 different restaurants including Red Lobster, Applebees, The Cheesecake Factory, Olive Garden, TGI Fridays, and Outback Steakhouse.

The cookbook was so well received that he sold over 60,000 self-published copies Online over the next few years. Douglas' hobby website and cookbook eventually got the attention of the media with an appearance on Fox News featuring his version of KFC's Original Chicken. That interview led to a book deal with Simon & Schuster and many more media appearances including Good Morning America, Home Shopping Network, ABC, NBC, People Magazine, and Today Show Australia.

Today Douglas has published five books in the "America's Most Wanted Recipes" series, which have cumulatively sold over 1.2 million copies. His latest book America's Most Wanted Recipes, Kids Menu Edition is scheduled to be published in September of 2014.

According to Douglas –

"Book publishing changed my life and now I want to give back by helping others do the same. There's no better way to establish credibility for your business or personal brand than to become an author. Most people don't realize that you can get started by publishing an ebook and selling it Online in Amazon.com's Kindle store. You can also get a self-published paperback book printed for about $3 per book.

For those who want to publish a book but don't have the time to write it, we offer ghostwriting services whereby a professional writer will interview you and organize your thoughts into a 'done for you' book with you as the sole author."

With the success of books like 50 Shades of Grey by E.L. James, more and more people are self-publishing Online instead of going the traditional publishing route. According to Forbes.com, "E.L. James single-handedly changed the industry's view of self-publishing. Her astronomically successful books (which sold over 70 million copies worldwide in 2012) came from a place no publisher would ever look: online fan fiction. After James, publishers could not afford to ignore self-publishing lest they miss the next commercial phenomenon."

And as a sign of the times, about 50% of the sales revenues from the 50 Shades trilogy were from ebooks. According to Jeff Bezos, Founder and CEO of Amazon.com "customers are now choosing Kindle books more often than print books. We had high hopes that this would happen eventually, but we never imagined it would happen this quickly - we've been selling print books for 15 years and Kindle books for less than four years." Douglas is certainly on top of this trend and has the experience to make a positive impact helping aspiring authors in our local community. For more information on getting your book published, go to HYPERLINK "http://www.PublishingEtc.com" www.PublishingEtc.com, call 516-669-0039, or visit the Locust Valley office.

North Shore Inn Holds Garage Sale Fundraiser

It takes a village such as Sea Cliff Village with its annual community Garage Sale to give impetus to a much needed fund raiser by the NORTH SHORE INN (NS INN), the Soup Kitchen in Glen Cove.

The INN's pantry was precariously low, its coffer was dwindling and the need to replenish was a must in order for the North Shore INN to continue its mission to help the impoverished and helpless.

President Estelle Moore held a meeting covering this very important issue. After brief brainstorming, Board Member volunteer, Harriet Lewis, with her entrepreneurial mindset suggested a garage sale. Volunteer and Sea Cliff resident Beth Fedirko, without hesitation, offered her home as the venue. As all were in agreement, the wheels were set in motion by sending notices to all volunteers asking for donations in the form of saleable items, to be sold for the sole benefit of the North Shore INN. The responses from the volunteers were overwhelming which is an indication of their dedication and commitment in helping those in need.

In short order, volunteers donated quality items such as a 5-piece wicker furniture set, art work, beautiful linens, collectible items such as clothing which included vintage clothing, antique lamps, furs, kitchenware, china, small home appliances, boating equipment, decorative bric-a-brac, flatware, books, collectible dolls, and many other items. The manner in which these items were delivered to the Fedirko home was poetry in motion. Volunteers donated their time and effort which showed their propensity to be team players who are organized, productive and effectual with a camaraderie that was unequaled.

The sale started at 9:00 a.m. on June 7th, with customers forming a long line in anticipation of purchasing items knowing that 100% of profits were being donated to the North Shore INN. The plan to have a one-way entrance path that ensured customers would have access to all diverse merchandise that were set up in stations of like kind, and manned by knowledgeable volunteers so buyers would have no difficulty in perusing, led to exciting yet smooth, stress-free buying sprees.

As an added bonus, Desert Tortoise mascot "Joey Fedirko," who had the run of the premises, both indoors and out, delighted the customers as he quizzically roamed around giving pleasure to both young and old alike. Customers chose to make donations on behalf of "Joey" a most exotic reptile.

The path culminated at the cashier station with negotiator, volunteer, Dr. Eileen Fontanetta who made sure each and every customer was satisfied with their purchases before they exited at 4:00 p.m.

The garage sale was super-successful and President Estelle Moore expressed her sincerest and deepest gratitude to all volunteers, the Village of Sea Cliff and the community at large for their dedication and commitment in helping NS INN continue in their mission to help others who are in need, making this community a better place in which to live. For more info call NS INN at (516) 759-7726.

Congratulations North Shore 2014 Valedictorian & Salutatorian

Valedictorian, Adriana N. Rubertone

Adriana Rubertone took the podium at the 2014 North Shore High School Commencement Ceremony while her peers, teachers, family and friends watched with joy and admiration. She began her speech by reminding her peers to "Remember the people at North Shore High School and the great teachers that have inspired you and made you who you are right now." She continued by saying, "We were blank slates coming into this school in 9th grade. Now, thanks to the support of the school, we've developed identities as a foundation for who we can become in the future..." She concluded by saying, "No matter, what our future holds, there will be opportunities for you to make a difference and 'be the change you want to see in the world.' Congratulations North Shore Class of 2014; let's go forward with confidence and make our community proud."

It is clear from reviewing Adriana Rubertone's extensive list of awards and honors that she has approached every challenge of her high school career with hard work, passion and dedication. This is reflected in her numerous accomplishments including: National Merit Scholarship Commended Student, recipient of the Dr. Bomberick Award for Excellence in Science and Department Awards in Mathematics, Band, and World Languages. Adriana was President of the Interact Club, Co-President/ Board of Education

Representative Student Government (SGO), a member of the National Honor Society, Tri-M Music Honor Society, and Science Honor Society. She also received the Girl Scout Gold Award. Additionally, Adriana was the Initiator/President of a Gender Equality Club and a researcher at a DNA Nanotechnology Lab at New York University.

While her academic accomplishments have been outstanding, Adriana also participated in a myriad of fulfilling activities including: Editor for the Mosaic Literature and Arts Magazine, and was the principal oboe of the North Shore High School Concert Band and Symphony Orchestra. Her stellar achievements have earned her acceptance into Princeton University, where she will be studying Chemical Engithe very best of luck now and in the future!

Valedictorian, Michael Ethan Rovner

Over his past four years at North Shore High School, Michael Rovner has truly excelled. Among his long list of honors, Michael received the following: North Shore Kiwanis James T. Hebron Memorial Scholarship Award, Dr. Leslie Wanek-Sgaglione Memorial Scholarship, Nassau Educators Federated Credit Union Making A Difference High School Scholarship, The Long Island Blood Scholarship, and was a National Merit Scholarship Commended Student. His achievements include member of the National Honor Society, Tri-M Music Honor Society (Vice President), and National French & Science Honor Society.

In addition to his academic accomplishments, Michael was Lieutenant Governor of the Key Club where he dedicated numerous hours helping others. He was also President of the Challenge Club and Vice President of the North Shore High School Peer Leaders.

During the 2014 North Shore High School Commencement Ceremony, Michael said, "Trying something new comes with a risk of failure, humiliation, or defeat. However, do not shy away from these challenges. It is often the riskiest gambles that pay off the most, and it is from our greatest mistakes that we learn the most....Someone once told me, you should learn to be comfortable, being uncomfortable. When you are able to do this, you know there is nothing you can't accomplish..." He continued by saying, "I believe that now more than ever, the world is in need of people who strive to make the world a better place through their everyday actions."

Michael will be attending Columbia University in September 2014 and looks forward to studying political science. Lots of luck to both Adriana Rubertone and Michael Rovner. We at the North Shore Schools are all so very proud of both students and congratulate them for their dedication, passion, courage, and talent. This is only the beginning and we celebrate you and the entire North Shore High School Class of 2014.

Mill Neck Manor Students Participate in Project for Ill Children

A few years ago, when John Quartuccio was a senior at Locust Valley High School, he began a service project to help hospitalized children. The project, "Kids Who Care about Sick Kids," involves the purchase of books, through fundraising and donations, for pediatric patients in local area hospitals. As a way to get other teens interested in joining his cause, John teamed up with seniors at Mill Neck Manor School for the Deaf, where his mother, Betty, is a speech therapist. The collaboration continues today.

Recently, five Mill Neck students and John traveled to the Glen Cove office of Dr. Catherine Scenci to deliver a batch of donated picture books. Afterward, the group was off to bring more books to one of several hospitals slated to receive donations. The idea for John's project took root when he endured a brief hospital stay some years ago. Now an undergraduate student at Nassau Community College, John recalled his hospital experience, saying, "Some of the children there were very ill. I wanted to do something, so I eventually created "Kids Who Care about Sick Kids." He chose to purchase books for the children because, "Young children relate to picture books and books are easily transported from one procedure room to another." John is hopeful that the books will serve as a measure of comfort and provide a bit of diversion for a child who will likely be frightened while going through medical tests.

The Mill Neck students and John are to be commended for their dedicated efforts, maturity and great community spirit. Aside from relieving a sick child's anxiety, if only momentarily, the donated books let parents know that students in neighboring communities are thinking about them.

Several Mill Neck Manor secondary students made a stop at the Glen Cove office of Dr. Catherine Scenci (third from right) to deliver a batch of donated picture books. They were accompanied by Betty Quartuccio, a speech therapist at Mill Neck and her son, John (first and second from right). The project involving the collection and distribution of donated books was started by John.

The Mosquito Authority is Now on Long Island to help you take back your yards. A little bit of background: (Tom Fancher is a life-long resident of Glen Cove and retired Glen Cove police officer and Barbara Podesta is a retired pharmacist who had been working for many years as a Medical Liaison for Lilly Oncology.) They had a terrible problem with mosquitoes at their Glen Cove home, something with which most Long Islanders can identify.

At their house the sandbox and swing set were never used and the beautiful backyard was empty. The problem was...Mosquitoes!! Relatives in Georgia, with two young sons who love to play outdoors, had the same problem and contacted The Mosquito Authority in Savannah. They were so impressed with the results that they immediately shared the news. On Long Island, much to their disappointment there was no Mosquito Authority. That did not stop them. The opportunity was there and now as TMA franchise owners they are able to offer this amazing service to friends and neighbors on Long Island. Families who enjoy playing outside with their children, grandchildren and pets; entertaining friends and family; or just love sitting peacefully in a mosquito-free backyard can enjoy quality time without having to coat their skin with bug spray or burn those ineffective citronella candles. Give them a call. "All you have to lose is your mosquitoes!"

So what are we up against? Mosquitoes don't just make you itch! The threat is real. There are 3000 species of mosquitoes, and 176 of those are present in the United States. Even in the US where mosquito-related deaths are relatively few, mosquitoes can transmit approximately 28 different deadly diseases like West Nile, Dengue Fever, Encephalitis and Malaria (and Heartworm Disease in pets). And while their goal is not to frighten you, they do believe it is their duty to provide you with accurate, helpful information about the diseases mosquitoes carry and how you can reduce the risk. Mosquito-borne diseases kill more people each year worldwide than any other single factor, including heart

Senior Moments

This column features a life-altering event that has had a great impact on a senior citizen's life, molding that person into who he or she is today. The people interviewed are all members of the Glen Cove Senior Center.

Piazza San Marco, Doge's Palace, Basilica di San Marco, the Astrological Clock, the Grand Canal, the Rialto Bridge and the Bridge of Sighs, Murano glass, and yes, the black lacquered gondolas with their handsome, singing gondoliers. The millions of tourists who flock to St. Mark's Square only outnumbered by the incessantly hungry pigeons. This is how we picture Venezia, Italia. But Venice is much more than a mecca for the hoards of tourists who flock to her shores to take in the glory of this romantic and historic city of 118 small islands connected by canals and bridges. Venice is also a haven to those who call her their home.

Claudia was one such person. She lived a fairy tale life growing up in Venice, married the love of her life and raising two handsome sons in this idyllic city. When each son reached the age of 16, he went off to America as an exchange student to study in the land of opportunity. Each son would mature, marry, have children and remain in the USA to raise their families.

Her husband's profession took them to numerous foreign countries where he would build power stations. They thoroughly enjoyed their travels together, seeing wondrous sights, experiencing new cultural traditions and meeting interesting people. Their affluent life allowed them the luxury of visiting their sons in America frequently. Life was good.

Suddenly Claudia's life was thrown into utter turmoil. Her darling husband became very ill. At first they continued to enjoy traveling together, but as his condition worsened, travel became impossible. Claudia tried everything to save her husband, even seeking medical treatment at the Mayo Clinic, but no cure could be found and he eventually succumbed to his illness.

The bubble burst; the fairy tale was ended and at 70 Claudia was alone. Venice was no longer the place that she wanted to be. Her desire was to be with her family and her family was in New York. Claudia packed up her treasured possessions, sold her home, said goodbye to her friends and left her beloved Venice for an unknown future in America. As she was leaving, her friends chided her, "You'll be back in six months."

Claudia bought a small apartment in New York City where one son had settled with his family. But life in the city was not for her. No trees, no car, noise, fast paced living was all very exciting but Claudia sought the tranquility of the country and the freedom of having a car that Long Island offered her. So she bought a house across the street from her other son and his family and moved to Glen Cove.

Claudia was alone and didn't speak English. She spoke Italian, French, Spanish and German. Glen Cove was an ideal city in which to settle. The diversity of Glen Cove's population allowed Claudia the ability to communicate in one of four languages. Her granddaughter was born when Claudia arrived in the United States and Claudia spent her days taking care of the infant. Still she felt all alone.

Claudia loved to take drives to discover new vistas in her new homeland. Six months after she arrived, her driver's license expired. Claudia took the driving examination in Italian, but the strip with the answers did not align properly with the question pamphlet. Speaking just a little English that she learned from reading books and watching television, Claudia decided to take a chance and take the driving test in English. To her surprise and joy, Claudia scored 20 correct answers out of 20 questions on the exam and her new driver's license was issued post haste.

Realizing that she had to master the English language, Claudia sought an English tutor which brought her to the Glen Cove Senior Center. At the Senior Center, with her vibrant personality and quick wit, Claudia has made lots of friends. She takes exercise and dance classes, knits, plays golf, volunteers to drive seniors to medical appointments and, generally, is just enjoying life.

She still is an ardent traveler, traveling to many countries including China, India, Thailand, and Hong Kong. This year alone she traveled by ship through the Panama Canal to South America, Hawaii, Australia, New Zealand and more. She returns regularly to Italy to visit friends and her friends, periodically, come to Glen Cove to visit her. Every other weekend she goes to New York City to spend time with her other son and his family. Besides her two sons and daughters-in-law, Claudia has three grandsons and a granddaughter.

In August 2013, Claudia applied for naturalization. She took the Citizenship exam on May 16th and two weeks later, on the 3rd of June, Claudia took the oath to become a citizen of the United States of America. She cherishes the American flag given to her by a friend to mark this auspicious occasion and now she anxiously awaits receiving her United States Passport as concrete proof that she is truly an American. Congratulations to Glen Cove's newest American citizen. Her life is here now and she is no longer alone.

disease, cancer, AIDS & car accidents. How can you reduce the Risk ?

If you don't want to bother with continually applying repellent or wearing long pants and long sleeves in warm weather, you can stay indoors especially at dusk. The Asian Tiger Mosquito remains active in daytime hours as well, so since Asian Tiger Mosquitoes have been increasing in numbers on Long Island, you may have to totally stay indoors and that's no fun. Families want to enjoy your yard and feel confident that you and your children/pets are protected.

How is The Mosquito Authority different? "We're the best at what we do. Everybody says it, but we can back it up. With more than nine years of experience and 325+ locations in 33 states, The Mosquito Authority is a leader in backyard mosquito control. We set the standards for the entire industry in everything from customer service and best practices to innovation and philanthropy, starting with our exclusive REPEL+PLUS mosquito treatment."

Their proprietary REPEL+PLUS mosquito treatment includes 4 stages of control – mosquito identification, habitat elimination, larval control and adult control (using an EPA registered solution). This comprehensive, 21 day recurring treatment breaks the mosquito life-cycle to practically eliminate mosquitoes from your outdoor living space for the duration of the season. It's great for kids and pets, (BAD for mosquitoes!) and the service comes with a 100% Satisfaction Guarantee. If you are ever bothered by mosquitoes between treatments, all you have to do is call. They will come out to re-evaluate and re-treat your yard... free of charge.

Who are their Customers? There is real value in mosquito-free outdoor living. This service adds true value to peoples' lives, and that's what keeps their diverse customer base growing.

People who have invested time and money on their outdoor living spaces – pools, gardens, patios, porches, outdoor kitchens and entertainment areas – can enjoy their investment even more.

Mothers who want their children to be able to play outside without the aggravation and danger of mosquito bites finally have peace of mind.

Pet owners who want to reduce their pets' risk of being infected with heartworm have an extra line of defense.

Commercial properties, businesses and homeowners who host outdoor events or have outdoor facilities can offer their guests a mosquito-free experience.

Families want to enjoy their outdoor living space in comfort. Restaurant owners want to provide a pleasant outdoor dining experience. Special event venues want to guarantee the perfect party. Everyone who spends any time outdoors wants to be free from the aggravation and danger of mosquitoes!

Their Mantra—"We don't just kill mosquitoes. We make backyards worth mowing and front porches worth swinging. We are The Mosquito Authority, and we are in the business of making life better. Not just for our customers, but for every one we meet. And not because it benefits the bottom line, but because it makes the world a nicer place."

Name the Celebrity

where our celebrity played girl detective, "Nancy Drew", based on the books by author Carolyn Keene.

Last Week's Celebrity

Last week's celebrity, Reginald Denny, was not only an English stage, American film, and TV star, but he was an amateur boxing champ of Great Britain, an aviator and a UAV (unmanned aerial vehicles) pioneer. The first large scale production purpose-built drone was the product of our celebrity. He served with the British Royal Flying Corps during WWI, and after the war, immigrated to the U.S. to seek his fortune in Hollywood as an actor. Between acting jobs, he pursued his interest in radio control model aircraft in the 1930s. He and his business partners formed "Reginald Denny Industries" and opened a model plane shop in 1934 on Hollywood Blvd. known as "Reginald Denny Hobby Shops". The shop evolved into the "Radioplane Co.". Denny believed that the low cost RC aircraft would be useful for training anti-aircraft gunners, and in 1935, he demonstrated a proto-type target drone, the RP-1, to the U.S. Army. He then bought a design from Walter Righter in 1938 and began marketing it to the Army as the RP-2, and after modifications, as the RP-3 and RP-4 in 1939. In 1940, he and his partners won an Army contract for their radio controlled RP-4, which became the Radioplane OQ-2. They manufactured nearly fifteen thousand drones for the Army during WWII. It was at the VanNuys Radioplane factory that in 1944 that an Army photographer, David Conover, assigned by Denny's friend, Army publicist and future U.S. President, Capt. Ronald Regan, saw a young lady named Norma Jeane, and thought she had potential as a model. This "discovery" led to fame for Jeane, who soon changed her name to Marilyn Monroe. Mr. Denny died on June 16, 1967, at age 75, after suffering a stroke while visiting his native Britain.

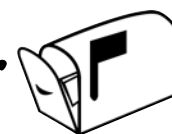

Correct Callers: Don Adams, Mario Moccia, Will and Babs Hutchins, Robertta Pezza

This week's celebrity was born in Chicago, Ill. on Feb. 2, 1923 and was the daughter of stage actors. She made her film debut at the age of nine in "Westward Passage" (1933). Over the next couple of years, she played uncredited supporting roles in such films as "Little Women" (1933) with Katharine Hepburn and Joan Bennet and in "Anne of Green Gables" (1934) with Anne Shirley. She played the role of "Mary" in the film adaptation of Lillian Hellman's 1934 stage play "The Children's Hour". The film was renamed "These Three", a 1936 film that told the story of three adults, played by Miriam Hopkins, Merle Oberon and Joel McCrea. They find their lives almost destroyed by the malicious lies of an evil attention-seeking child. For her role as that child, our celebrity was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress, then the youngest person to be nominated for that award. The film was later successfully remade, under the original stage title and starred Audrey Hepburn, Miriam Hopkins, Shirley MacLaine and James Garner. In 1938, our celebrity starred as the saucy mischievous teenager in the multi-Academy Awards nominated hit comedy film, "Merrily We Live" with Billie Burke, Brian Aherne and Tom Brown, later seen as a character actor in the 1970s, on ABC's "General Hospital", as the hospital's maintenance man, married to "Nurse Lucille". This film was followed by a series of four light-drama films,

Letters to the Editor

Proud of Loggia 1016

To The Editor,

Everyone should feel proud of what took place at the Loggia 1016 on July 2nd. I sure did.

The work of Loggia President Joseph Gallo, the scholarship committee, and the Loggia membership made a difference in the lives of 10 remarkable students that night.

Listening to them accept their awards and hearing from Kathy Grande about their accomplishments and aspirations was inspirational, to say the least.

Love of the Italian experience, the Italian language, its rich culture and love of family, was the focus of their essays. Their sincerity came through in their words.

On behalf of the New York State Assembly, congratulations go to these 10 young men and women as they start on their college careers: Daniella Joyce, Joseph Stanco, Robert Ottaviano III, Samantha Di Paolo, Erika Van Patten, Stela Ieraci, Sarah Hall, Morgan Di Martini, Samantha N. Speziale, and Brittany A. Grella.

They are a credit to their families, their high schools, their communities, and to Loggia 1016.

Bravissimi tutti!
Theresa Moschetta

Great Book Guru

- Ann DiPietro

Dear Great Book Guru,
 Last weekend I had a fabulous time at Sea Cliff Beach's Friday Night Music. Sue Giordano has been organizing these evenings for many years and this opening night was spectacular with both the Roger Friedman Band and Joe Ciampa's band RiDe performing- truly double the pleasure! While there, I heard a group of fellow music lovers talking about a new book they had all recently read- a psychological thriller whose lead character was particularly loathsome. Any ideas?
 Fan of Sand and Music is a successful physician to a star filled roster of actors, producers, singers, and models. His practice is based on keeping these celebrity patients happy by accepting- no, actively encouraging- their less than healthy lifestyles, in addition to offering a steady supply of drugs. In the first chapter Marc is accused of murdering one of his well-known patients and for the rest of the book we travel back and forth over the previous year to learn how these charges came about. He is a despicable character, but the story is compelling and cries out to be read in one sitting. Not as good as THE DINNER but recommended, nevertheless.

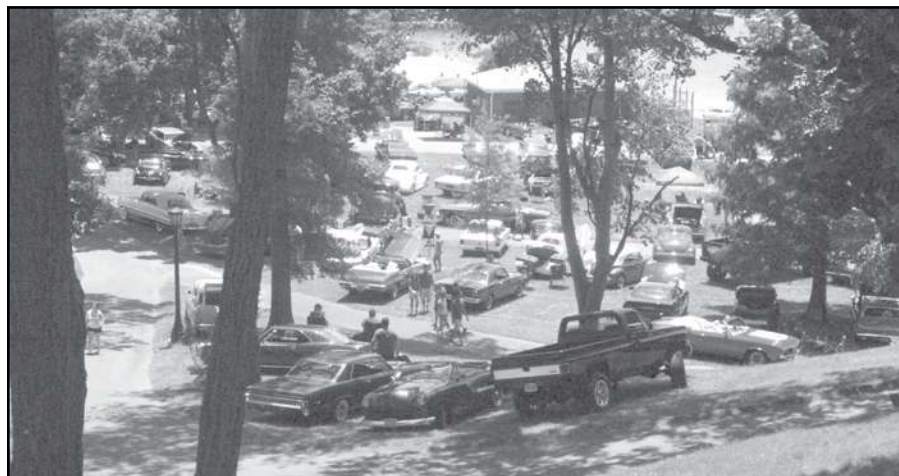

Dear Fan of Sand and Music,
 Listening to the amazing music at Sea Cliff Beach this weekend, I too vowed to return every Friday. Also, this weekend, I read the SUMMER HOUSE WITH SWIMMING POOL by Herman Koch who wrote the widely acclaimed: THE DINNER. The title SUMMER HOUSE ... is a play on fatuous vacation real estate offerings, but there is little playful about this novel. Marc Schlosser

Gold Coast Cruisers Car Show a Success

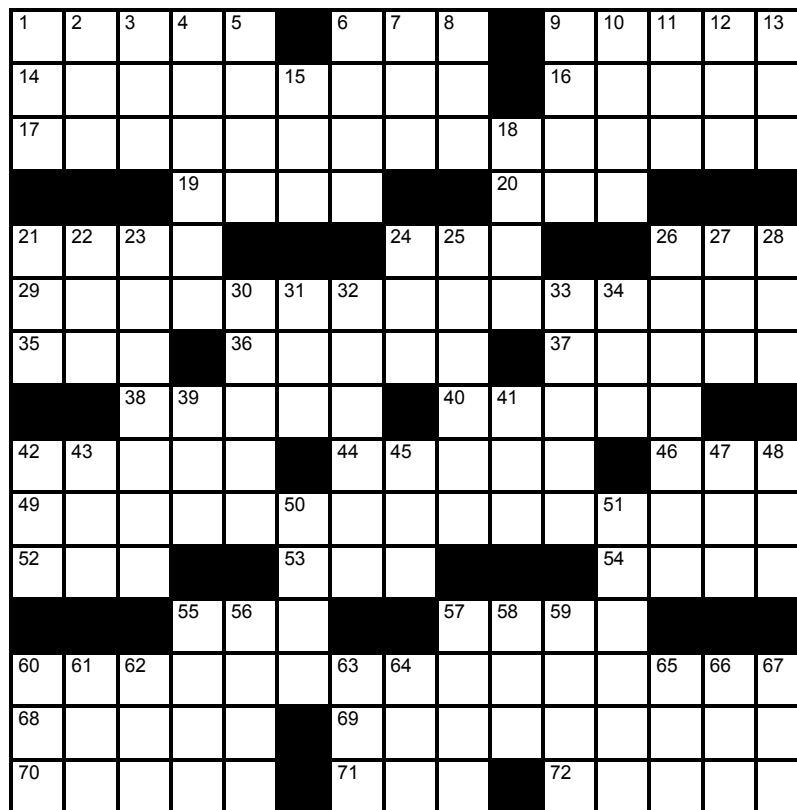

Mayor Reginald A. Spinello is pictured with the show's "Mayor's Pick," a beautiful Woodie, the car's owner, Bob Nelson, and Mr. Nelson's two granddaughters, Emma and Samantha.

The Gold Coast Cruisers held their annual Waterfront Car Show on June 29 in Morgan Memorial Park. The show was a tremendous success with more than 500 cars on display for visitors to view.
