North Shore INN Hosts IAC

The Glen Cove Interagency Council (IAC) recently held its monthly meeting at the North Shore INN.

The North Shore INN, located in the basement of the First Baptist Church on Continental Place, assists some of the neediest people in the Glen Cove area. Celebrating its 25th year, the INN operates a soup kitchen three days a week. On average, the INN serves approximately 60 to 100 lunches every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday throughout the year. The demand is greater in the winter when the guests tend to be unemployed men (landscapers and other seasonal workers) while the summer clientele tend to be families who rely on free or reduced lunches during the school year. The INN also assists guests with transportation to medical appointments and filling prescriptions. A bilingual social worker is available to guests once a week.

The Glen Cove IAC includes community leaders representing a variety of human and social service agencies throughout Glen Cove. It reflects Glen Cove's rich cultural, religious and ethnic diversity and meets regularly to identify and address changing needs in the community. This network has resulted in numerous projects and collaborations that benefit Glen Cove residents on a daily basis. For more information about IAC, please visit iacglen Cove.org.

Safe, Inc. Empowers Parents To Prevent Youth Substance Use

SAFE, Inc. is pleased to announce the implementation of bi-lingual Life Skills Training (LST) parent workshops to community residents.

In January, the Bach-Harrison Prevention Needs Assessment Survey administered to students in 6th, 8th, 10th and 12th grades revealed risk factors within the home across all grades and the need to implement a community-wide parenting prevention program. The Survey offers six family domain risk factors: Poor Family Management, Family Conflict, Sibling Drug Use, Exposure to Adult Antisocial Behavior, Parental Attitudes Favorable to Antisocial Behavior, and Parent Attitudes Favor Drug Use.

LST is designed to help parents strengthen communication with their children and prevent them from using drugs by helping parents teach their children the skills that help them resist the threats of tobacco, drugs, and violence. These tools help parents prepare their children for a successful transition from adolescence to early adulthood.

The Program is conducted by veteran LST Trained facilitator Mrs. Laurent Caballero from October 29th-December 11th on Tuesday evenings 7-9 p.m. Deasy Elementary School Room #105.

For more information about SAFE's bi-lingual LST Program or other SAFE initiatives contact SAFE at: 516-676-2008 or visit the website at www.safe-glencove.org

Richard Weiner Exhibits a Retrospective of His Work

By Sharon Collins

Artist Richard Weiner is exhibiting a retrospective of his paintings during November at the Golden Gallery of the Glen Cove Senior Center.

Born in Brooklyn in 1935, Richard attended the exclusive Stuyvesant High School in New York City. Under the tutelage of his high school art teacher, the late world renowned artist/critic Alfred Lerner, Richard won an award for his African-inspired sculpture which was displayed at the Museum of Modern Art. Richard went on to earn a Bachelor's degree from Syracuse University. Working as a lawyer to support his wife, Alice, and their three children left no time to pursue art.

After a vacation in Mexico in 1994, Richard dreamed of a particular painting similar to a painting he had seen in Mexico. He promptly purchased paints, brushes and canvas and recreated the painting from his dream. Primarily self-taught, he continued painting for five years. Desiring more direction in technique and composition, Richard studied painting with Victoria Carlin who, in addition to instructing Richard, encouraged him and arranged for him to exhibit his work. Later Richard studied Asian Brush Stroke Techniques with Kim at C.W. Post and Mark Making with Liam Davis.

Over the years Richard moved from portraiture and landscapes to semi-abstract and abstract paintings. "I make expressive marks that create a sense of motion...and not be static." Mark making also has given him the ability to express moods and emotions in his work. It is his desire that the viewer is stimulated by his paintings to delve into his/her own emotions and feelings. It is his hope that the viewer will recognize his progression and development as an artist through this retrospective of his work.

Richard has participated in numerous group shows with the East End Arts Council, the Huntington Arts Council, etc. He has had solo shows and exhibited at the Artifact Gallery, NYC; the Jadite Gallery, NYC; the Salon de Quartier, Brooklyn; Ward-Nasse Gallery, NYC; Galiara in San Francisco; the Haas Gallery in Charleston, SC; the DeBlois Gallery in Newport, RI, to name but a few. His work is in several prestigious collections including the Nassau County Art Museum and Harvard University and his shows have been reviewed in numerous publications.

The public is invited to attend the reception for Mr. Weiner on Thursday, November 6th at 1 p.m. at the Golden Gallery, 2nd floor of the Glen Cove Senior Center, 130 Glen Street, Glen Cove, NY.

Golden Gallery Exhibit and Reception

By S.F. Collins

The Golden Gallery of the Glen Cove Senior Center cordially invites the public to the Artist's Reception for Carolyn Quenon on Friday, December 5th at 1 p.m.

Ms. Quenon works primarily in oils and watercolor paints. She is best known for her series depicting Sea Cliff Victorian houses. The houses appear to be askewed as if they might fly off the paper in an instant. The paintings have been described as "dancing to the beat of jazz." The resulting images are vibrantly colored "painted ladies" that titillate the soul and motivate the mind.

Ms. Quenon has had numerous one-person exhibits throughout Long Island. Her work hangs in prestigious public and private collections throughout the United States. She is a member of the Art League of Long Island and, for 10 years, has served as the Exhibit Chairperson of the Manhasset Art Association. Ms. Quenon studied her craft at Long Island

University, The Stevenson Academy of Traditional Art, the Art League of Long Island and Nassau County Museum of Art.

Ms. Quenon resides in Sea Cliff with her husband Charlie Oppizzi, former proprietor of Thompson's Book Store.

The Golden Gallery is located on the second floor of the Glen Cove Senior Center at 130 Glen Street in downtown Glen Cove. Gallery hours are Mondays thru Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Personal Portraits to Last a Lifetime 24 Art Students at NS High School Participate in the Memory Project

Over the years, art students from North Shore High School have participated in the Memory Project, a special nation-wide initiative in which advanced high school art students create original portraits for children living in orphanages around the world. The purpose of this meaningful project is to provide these children with an extraordinary memory of their youth, honoring their heritage and identity, which helps them build a positive self-image. The assignment also provides an opportunity for young Americans to open their hearts to children who have endured many hardships and promote the value of sharing kindness with others.

Last school year, North Shore students in Elissa Theiss' class created beautiful portraits for children living in Nicaragua. The high school students included Brian Angulo, Annalise Apt, Alex Cefalu, Jamie Commando, Julia Cuite, Stephanie Cuomo, Dana DiGiovanni, Emily Doring, Toby Donoghue, Lea Eisenstein, Karina Ferrara, Marissa Frank, Gabby Gartner, Nicole Hasbrouck, Sonia Jain, Kira Martin, Grace Martino, Katie Nizich, Natalia Pardo, Sam Riccardo, Ksenia Schidlovsky, Chrissy Syracuse, Alaina Van Pak, and Hannah Webb. They received photographs of the children and worked in their art classrooms to create these special drawings. Once finished, the Memory Project organization delivered the portraits to the children around the world. In return, the Nicaraguan children were encouraged to make drawings or write letters of appreciation.

Ms. Theiss said, "I love the art exchange that happens through this project. My students put countless hours into these portraits for a child that they have never met, and then they say goodbye to their art and it gets delivered as a wonderful gift. I believe that both my students and the children receiving the portraits are forever changed by this experience. I do not require that students participate - the project is always voluntary, but every year more and more students sign up!" To see great and touching video footage about the delivery to the orphanages, please visit <http://www.memoryproject.org/Haiti2013.php>

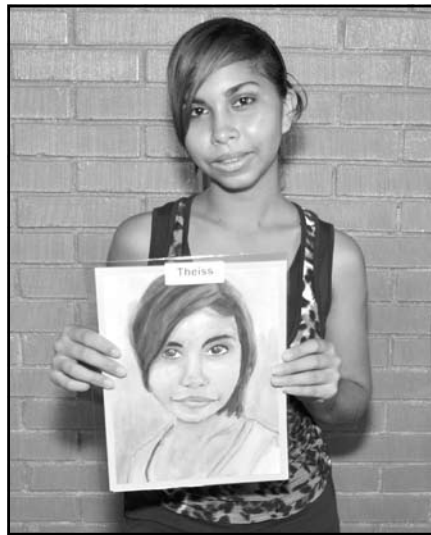

The Memory Project representative, Mr. Ben Schumaker stated, "The portraits were stunning and it is clear that the students received excellent instruction to create artwork of such a high caliber." Obituaries

Jeffrey "Jay" Schneider

Jeffrey "Jay" Schneider, 21, of Glen Cove, New York died Nov. 16, 2014 as a result of injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident. Born on Sept. 27, 1993 in New York City, he was the son of Jeffrey Schneider and Bonnie Bowes. He attended Friends Academy and graduated from Locust Valley High School in 2012.

Jay, an avid sportsman, was involved in football, baseball and basketball at Friends Academy. His love for sports continued outside of school on the tennis and squash courts as well as the slopes to ski and snowboard. He also contributed in the orchestra of both Friends Academy and Locust Valley High School playing the double bass. He had a great love of learning, and especially enjoyed classes with his political science and history professors during his college days at Bucknell and Nassau Community. Starbucks was another place outside home and class where he relaxed and never met a stranger. He would bring his computer and listen to top 100 DJ music, and continue his passion for music composition by creating his own mix tapes to share with friends. Jay will be remembered as a helpful, loving and outgoing friend and family member; a free spirit who remained untethered from convention. His eternal optimism gave him the ability to always see the best in everyone. He was a terrific chef, great salesman and loved music. His cousin, Alex Schneider, captured it best: [Jay was] "...always so enthusiastic and warm spirited in whatever [he was doing], and [he] brightened up every room [he] ever walked into with [his] kind, goofy personality. No matter what life threw at [him], [he] was always that same happy, headstrong kid that everyone loved." His girlfriend, Lisa Fontanarosa, shared, "He had great knowledge and GREAT potential to be a smart successful man. He was very friendly to [our] neighbors constantly holding doors, bringing the night guard freshly baked goods, collecting coupons for our neighbor who just had a baby, he was ALWAYS thinking about others."

Jay leaves behind a loving family who will miss him until they meet again. They include his parents Bonnie (Jerry) and Jeff (Angela), his brother, Will and sister, Kayla. Jay was Will's constant companion and defender, and co-inventor with cousin Alex of the Alex-Jay Game Organization, a magical, imaginary world that captivated the kids in our backyard. He leaves behind his grandparents Rena and Red Bowes ("Mramaw and Pram-paw") of Amherst, New Hampshire, and was preceded in death by Anne and Augie Schneider ("Oma and Opa"). He is also survived by his very loved girlfriend, Lisa Fontanarosa of Hempstead and his many aunts, uncles and cousins. Bonnie's brother Jeff and Julie Bowes (Tatum and Trevor), Jeff's brother Doug and Katie Schneider (Alex and Nicky), Jeff's sister Ingrid Schneider and David Rieger (Erika), Jerry's sister Desi and daughters Amanda and Sophie.

Visitation was held at Dodge-Thomas Funeral Home.

A Meeting for Worship will be held the Saturday after Thanksgiving, Nov. 29 at 9:30 a.m. at Matinecock Meeting House, Duck Pond Road, Locust Valley, NY. Please park at Friends Academy.

In lieu of flowers, and in keeping with the Quaker testimony of simplicity, donations may be made to the Friends Academy Diversity Grant Fund. Please contact the Development Office for more details at (516) 393-4269.

My Mother was a life long resident of Glen Cove, a City that she loved very much. She met my father James in high school, like so many other people of her time and raised her family surrounded by her parents, in laws and life long friends. She was the kindest, most loving Mother that any son could ask for. My brothers and I were truly blessed. My mother often spoke of how wonderful a time it was where family was the main focus in life and everything else came second. As I grew up I knew what she meant. It was the most important lesson that I would ever learn. The family values that were instilled in me by her and my father lives with me everyday of my life, and will be carried on by me for the rest of my life. Thank you Mom. Much Harmony" (1933), the part of his on-screen mother was played by his real mother, Mary Evelyn Offield. He is probably most notable for his portrayal of "Benzino Napaloni", the boisterous dictator of Bacteria, in Charlie Chan's "The Great Dictator" (1942), for which our celebrity received an Oscar nomination for Best Supporting Actor. The role was a broad parody of the fascist dictator of Italy, Benito Mussolini.

Last Week's Celebrity

Last week's celebrity was born Frances Charlotte Greenwood and professionally known as Charlotte Greenwood. She appeared with such luminaries as Charles Ruggles, June Haver, Betty Grable, Jimmy Durante, Eddie Cantor, Buster Keaton and Carmen Miranda. One of her own favorite times was playing with Shirley Temple and Jack Oakie in "Young People" (1940). Most of Greenwood's best work was done on stage and lauded by such critics as James Agate, Alexander Woollcott and Claudia Cassidy. One of her successful roles was that of "Juno" in Cole Porter's "Out of This World, in which she introduced the Porter classic "I Sleep Easier Now". She had some discomforts with being in that play as she had become a more ardent believer in Christian Science and feared the play was too risqué. She also reportedly turned down the role of "Mother Superior" in Rogers and Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music" partly because she felt she could not, in good conscience" play a nun because of her faith. She passed away on December 28, 1977, at the age of 87, from natural causes.

This week's celebrity was born Lewis Delaney Offield, on Nov. 12, 1903, in Sedalia, Missouri. He was mostly a film actor, but also worked on stage, radio, and television. He worked as a runner on Wall Street and narrowly escaped being killed in the Wall Street bombing on Sept. 16, 1920. While in NY, he also started appearing in amateur theatre as a mimic and a comedian, finally making his professional debut on Broadway in 1923 as a chorus boy in a production of "Little Nellie Kelly" by George M. Cohan. He moved to Hollywood at the end of the silent film era. He appeared in five silent films during 1927 and 1928. As the age of the "talkies" began, he signed with Paramount Pictures, making his first talking film, "The Dummy" in 1929. He made 87 films mostly in the 1930's and 1940s. In the film "Too

Great Book Guru

- Ann DiPietro

Dear Great Book Guru,
 We are busily enjoying this wonderful Thanksgiving weekend with family and friends, but I would love to read a compelling book—a mystery would be great—perhaps with a foreign locale. Any ideas??
 Thanksgiving Celebrant

Dear Thanksgiving Celebrant,
 I just finished a wonderful book—really a literary mystery—set in present day Dublin: THE SECRET PLACE by Tana French. In the opening chapter, Stephen Moran, a disgruntled Cold Case detective is visited by sixteen year old Holly Mackey who tells a strange story—she has found a photo posted on a bulletin board (the secret place) in her posh Dublin boarding school implicating classmates in the murder of a popular young student. The novel, while definitely a murder mystery, is also a story of adolescent friendship and Irish class warfare.

We meet eight young girls all with fascinating back stories—all of whom might be implicated in the murder of Chris Harper, the young man whose story differs widely depending on which of the girls is describing him. French's take on social media forays and language makes for a compelling read as we learn more and more of the tangled web that ensnares these young people. Told over one day, this novel spotlights the interrogating skills of the police as they delve into each of the young people's stories of what really happened that night. A great look into modern day social mores here and in Ireland 2014.

Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club
 Dinner Dance Replete with Goodness, Greatness and Gratitude

On Saturday, November 15, 2014 Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club at Lincoln House hosted their 38th Annual fundraising Dinner Dance. The event, co-chaired by Aimee Eberle and Julie Zarou, reflected the spirit of the season – thankfulness and gratitude.

Club parent and keynote speaker Colleen McGuire was the embodiment of appreciation as she shared her story of how the Club has been a lifeline to her and her children. Her words, spoken with pure gratitude, quieted the room to pin drop silence and brought tears to many eyes.

The Dinner Dance was held under a massive tent at the Meadow Brook Club and the space was elegantly and simply designed in autumnal colors. Auctioneer CK Swett, who according to the New York Times has "managed to shake up the staid world of auctioneering..." did an outstanding job auctioning the hottest tickets in town - Billy Joel at Madison Square Garden, fabulous getaways and highly sought after sporting events, all procured by Live Auction Chair Wendy Fentress. The Auction finale was a Driving Toward Our Future Campaign which helped the Club raise funds for a much needed bus. Exquisite wines flowed generously thanks to the gracious donation of Banfi Vintners of Old Brookville and guests danced the night away to music by the Rhythm Shop of Silver Pro Entertainment.

The Club is truly grateful for the many volunteers, sponsors, advertisers and donors who supported the event to help the children and families of the Glen Cove community.
