Holiday Season Begins in Glen Cove

The City of Glen Cove Christmas Tree is officially aglow with more than 5,000 lights and a beautiful new star donated by City Hall staff. Many thanks to Lucy and Jeffery Jackson for donating the 30-foot Norway Spruce, to Woody's Tree Service for transporting the tree from Ralph Young Boulevard, to Joseph Basile Electric for stringing the lights all through last Friday night, our Department of Public Works personnel for their hard work in cutting, fitting and placing the tree "just right," and to our Glen Cove

Volunteer Fire Department for escorting a very special guest in a red suit to the event. What a pleasure it was to have Joe Basile, Sr. flick the switch and light the tree. Mayor Reginald Spinello and the City Council would also like to thank the Glen Cove High School Jazz Band for setting the tone for the event, Glen Cove High School DECA club members for all their assistance, and the Business Improvement District for bringing to our City another wonderful winter celebration.

Joe Mazzeo welcomes Sigal as the newest member of the Bart's Barber Shop Family!

It's been an exciting year for Bart's Barber Shop. This year marks the shop's 80 anniversary. Joe was given a wonderful commemorative plaque by the village.

Now we begin a new chapter in our business. The increase in volume of new clients led us to look for a stylist who could work alongside Joe with expertise in haircuts for men, women and children. We also advertised for a colorist to satisfy a need that wasn't being met in the shop.

Sigal comes to us with 20 years of experience in providing extraordinary hair care and the latest cuts and styles for men, women and children. In a few months she will also be offering hair color as an added service. She is a local resident who has worked in NYC and Glen Cove.

Sigal works Tues-Fri from 8:30 to 6:30 and Sat. from 8 to 5. There is never a need for an appointment with Joe or Sigal. She is amazed at the energy and the "Sea Cliff Vibe". Stop in to say hello and stay for a great haircut.

Happiness has always been our business!

Glen Cove student signs letter of intent

Glen Cove High School senior Taylah Hudson has signed a Letter of Intent to play Division I basketball at Texas Southern University.

"I've been playing my whole life for this moment," Hudson said. "I hope I can contribute to the team."

Hudson, who received a full scholarship to Texas Southern, has been playing varsity basketball since grade seven. She has been honored twice as an All-County Player by the coaches in Nassau County and was named Conference Player of the Year in 2013. She was also designated as an All-State Player by the Sportswriter's Association of New York and named to the Basketball Coaches' Association of New York Section 8 All-Star Team.

Varsity Girls Basketball Coach Greg Mayerhoffer said Hudson reached a milestone in her career last season, when she became the all-time scoring leader in the history of the girls program at Glen Cove. Ultimately, she went on to surpass the 1000-point total, an achievement accomplished by very few student-athletes in the sport.

Superintendent of Schools Maria Rianna, Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum, Instruction and Technology Dr. Michael Israel, Athletic Director Denise

Kiernan, Glen Cove High School Interim Principal Roseann Cirmigliaro and guidance counselor Christine Mulhall offered their congratulations to Hudson at a recent celebration held in her honor.

"I'm so happy for her," Mulhall said. "She has a great work ethic whether it's at school or on the court and is a great role model for younger girls."

Taylah's father, Glen Cove High School Assistant Principal Allen Hudson, expressed his pride in his daughter's success.

"Anyone that meets her knows how humble she is," Hudson said. "She always thinks about her teammates first." Coach Mayerhoffer agreed, and said Hudson would always be regarded as one of the very best to ever play basketball in Nassau County and New York State.

"I've coached so many good players over the years, but she's the best," he said. "I have no doubt she will be successful in the next stage of her life, but I'm sad to see her leave."

Troop 6 of Glen Cove Makes Historical Trip

November 7th thru 9th Boy Scout Troop 6 made a trip to Gettysburg, PA, accompanied and guided by Glen Cove's Eagle Scout and Civil War Re-enactment buff Michael Mienko. The scouts hiked parts of the battlefield beginning with General Lee's approach to the town, proceeded to Little Round Top, then took an indepth look from the Union Army's defensive position that held back the Confederates Pickett's Charge.

They also visited the site where President Abraham Lincoln delivered his famous address.

SCO Program Director For Robert J. McMahon Visits The North Shore Kiwanis Club

The North Shore Kiwanis Club has many programs throughout the year. Each weekly meeting is filled with interesting presentations for everyone's interests.

On October 30th the program was especially appealing to the members when SCO Program Director for the Robert McMahon Children's Center Amy Gunter took center stage and told about the many things that the SCO has accomplished and how they continue to support special needs children in our community. Her own story is very interesting in deed; Ms. Gunter joined the SCO in 1984 working her way up the ranks to becoming the Program Director. A North Shore High School Alumni and a participant in the North Shore High School Senior Project, volunteering was a requirement for this course. She volunteered at the SCO and as they say .....was hooked!! To quote a member of the Kiwanis club: "It is so nice and encouraging to know that her senior project led the way to her career." This is a true success story for Amy!! Pictured is Kiwanis President Julia Salat presenting a certificate of appreciation to Ms. Gunter. The North Shore Kiwanis Club works with the SCO especially during the holidays. ## American Legion Reaches Out

The food baskets were made possible with the funds raised at a Cocktail party held on Oct. 3 at the Legion Hall to bring Thanksgiving and Christmas meals to families in need. The Post would like to thank Peggie Como, President of the Sea Cliff Mutual Concerns Center, and the Glen Cove Senior Center for their assistance in selecting the families.

In early March of 2015 the American Legion will hold another "Food Drive" affair to raise funds for a similar Easter dinner.

Landing Celebrates

Students enjoyed a traditional Thanksgiving meal and a visit from their loved ones, when Landing School in Glen Cove held its annual Thanksgiving Feast.

The event, which gives family members an opportunity to enjoy a delicious meal and desserts with their students, was held prior to the Thanksgiving holiday. In preparation of the celebration, students created placemats with artwork that represented what they were most thankful for to share with family members.

Parents and students in attendance feasted on turkey, stuffing and all the trimmings, while viewing a photomontage created by Teacher Assistant Michele Muzante, which included photos from student activities from earlier in the school year.

Food at the celebration was prepared by North Shore Farms and served thanks to faculty, staff and parent volunteers.

The first place poster created by Yanes was sent to Lions District Governor Fred Rieger and entered into district judging. Ultimately, Yanes was awarded second place in Nassau County.

GWL Third Graders Participate in a Dissection & Utilize Stereo-Microscopes

Mrs. Maryalice Kelly joined Mrs. Darlene Skaee's 3rd grade class to conclude the Food Web unit by dissecting an Owl Pellet. The 3-day lesson was an amazing experience where the students used the outdoor classroom while they dissected, analyzed and sorted bones from an Owl Pellet. The students used Stereo-Microscopes to help analyze and identify the bone structures. Then, the children were able to collect numerical data from their findings and incorporate it into their math lessons.

Once the children recorded their numerical data in a data table, they were introduced to using the data to generate graphs. Mrs. Kelly said, "The students were so excited when they were able to analyze their graphs and make sense of their discoveries using their newly found math skills."

Great Book Guru

- Ann DiPietro

Dear Great Book Guru,
 With temperatures in the 60's, it certainly doesn't feel like December, but the coming weeks will certainly be filled with winter fun, beginning with the Tree Lighting on Sunday, December 7 at 5pm on the Village Green. Last week I read a mystery you recommended - somehow winter nights cry out for a good mystery- and I would love to read another - something short but heavy into character. Any thoughts?
 Mystery Maven

of London. Her first case involves the death of a young Cambridge student Mark Callendar, son of a wealthy, aristocratic scientist. As in all James's novels, it is the descriptions of place and character-not the plot or crime- that capture the reader's attention. Gray's struggles with class obsessed witnesses and sexist colleagues make this 264 page book so much more than a quick mystery, and the intrigues of university life and village politics elegantly overshadow the details of the actual murder. Recommended!

Dear Mystery Maven,
 One of the most revered mystery writers of the last fifty years, P.D. James died this week so I think it fitting to recommend one of her classic works: AN UNSUITABLE JOB FOR A WOMAN. Featuring the indomitable Cordelia Gray, a young English woman, who in the opening chapter inherits a rather shabby detective agency on the outskirts

I have previously eluded, "The Charity Tango", "Huddled Masses". Each song had clear purpose, to define a character, clarify a point of view, and/or to move the plot. Melodies carried the words, bringing the characters to life, enabling them to give passionate, transcendent performances to the grateful audience. If you missed this fine production, don't fret. You will get another chance. Liberty deserves a bigger venue. It re-enforces the ideals of liberty, freedom, and opportunity that make Americans proud. The melting pot concept was explained by the sculptor to his little Liberty, as something like bouillabaisse. I agree, and like the French fish soup, Liberty is hearty peasant faire...for pleasing and nourishing the quintessential spirit of America.

"Liberty" is the story of America's first crowd-funding campaign: The Statue of Liberty's Pedestal. And now a campaign has been launched to fund a cast recording of the show. # Superintendent's Conference Day held in Glen Cove

Teaching professionals from the Glen Cove City School District received professional development when they attended Superintendent's Conference Day on Nov. 4.

As part of the day's events, teachers attended workshops focusing on a variety of topics, including differentiated instruction and the development of parallel ELA and math questions to mirror state assessments.

Carol Varsalona, an independent ELA consultant and former director of language arts and testing in West Babylon School District, trained ELA teachers from grades 6-8 and social studies teachers from grade 8, in a workshop entitled, "Close Reading Across the Disciplines."

"My goal is to get the teachers more comfortable with the practices and protocol that are inherent in the Common Core so they can ratchet up instruction for students," Varsalona said.

She added that ongoing professional development and collaboration between colleagues was vital to student success.

"Without support and collaboration teachers will feel isolated from the message of the State Education Department to power up instruction," Varsalona said. "Today's focus is on scaffolding instruction for all learners. I want them to bring passion to their instruction, to teach in the moment."

Meanwhile, elementary teachers Jennifer Russo, Meryl Gordon, Cyndi Van

Ommeren and Mark Glaviano unpacked "Go Math" for their colleagues after attending a Nassau BOCES workshop on the math program.

"We focused on breaking into small groups and teaching to the level that each student needs," Russo said. "We also discussed how to utilize all the components of the program to help provide successful instruction."

Other training provided to teachers focused on writing as well as word study and science. The district also offered workshops on "Nonviolent Crisis Intervention" and "How to Deal with Difficult People," which was facilitated by Brad Withers of Skill Path.

Elementary teachers utilized blocks to count during their "Go Math" training. Photos provided by the Glen Cove City School District.

Bravo to all of the North Shore High School students who were inducted into the Foreign Language Honor Society. LOTE teacher Eric Lepetit said, "It has been our pleasure to watch these students progress through the grades, diligently working to acquire a skill that, for many adults, remains elusive. These young people, however, through their hard work and determination have acquired a highly marketable skill. These students are well situated for a life in what is increasingly a global economy."

Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club November Youth of the Month Appreciate the Value of Friendship

Ten year-old Adam Bonilla and Juan Carlos Molina, 13, have been named Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club Youth of the Month for November.

Junior Youth of the Month Adam Bonilla attends Connolly Elementary School and his favorite subject is social studies. Adam is an avid soccer player who plays striker in his league. In fact, Adam received top score in his league. His favorite team is Real Madrid and he hopes to become a professional soccer player someday. Adam, who attends the Club every day, has been a member for almost three years and credits the Club for his improved grades in school and scoring in the 80s, 90s and 100s. In addition to participation in Power Hour, the Club's homework help program, Adam also enjoys the Learning Center, playing in the gymnasium and activities that take place in the teen room. During his time at the Club Adam has forged a special bond with group leaders Jacobb Coleman and Dah-keem Williams and said with a great smile on his face, "I have learned the importance of friendship at the Club."

Senior Youth of the Month Juan Carlos Molina who has been a member for only a year and a half and during this short time has secured the Youth of the Month title for a second time. He was named Youth of the Month this past April. Juan, who is in the 8th grade at Robert M. Finley Middle School, was taken by surprise and remained humble when told of his nomination. "I'm so happy to be chosen again. I work hard every day and make school a priority. I also try my best to be a positive person and to be healthy." Juan, whose favorite subject is social studies, credits Middle School Coordinator, Desirae O'Neill and Teen Program Assistant, Jordan Alexander with helping him improve his grades. "I just scored 93 on a science test at school and it's because of the Club I did so well." Juan attends the Club every day and participates in a number of teen program activities with the many friends he has made at the Club. He also enjoys participating in the Club's sports programs, especially soccer. He plans on attending college where he hopes to have the opportunity to play in his chosen school's soccer league. After college, Juan would like to pursue a career in the automotive industry.

Congratulations to Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club Youth of the Month for November Adam Bonilla and Juan Carlos Molina.

LIBERTY (A Monumental New Musical) Book and Lyrics by Dana Leslie Goldstein

Music by Jon Goldstein
Review by Steve Sloane

Jon Goldstein of Glen Cove is prolific. His latest production, Liberty, a Monumental Musical just finished a successful extended run at Theater 80, on the lower East-Side. Jon wrote the music. His sister, Dana Leslie Goldstein wrote the book and lyrics.

Liberty opened with a French sculptor putting the finishing touches on a little girl version of the Statue of Liberty. Imagine that.

The story grew into a fascinating history lesson. Characters were introduced and the music defined them. I learned that when the statue arrived in NY, the budget for its pedestal had been vetoed by President Grover Cleveland from 1884's recession budget. Go know!

In the course of the play I was introduced to larger than life American heroes like Emma Lazarus, the poet who wrote the famous inscription, "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses, yearning to be free..." Considering the controversy with immigration here, in France and all over the world, this theme remains urgent, one hundred and thirty years later.

Joseph Pulitzer, who published the New York World, was performed with bravura. He had the entrepreneurial brilliance to fund Liberty's pedestal with a precursor of today's crowd-source funding. He offered to print the name of every contributor, no matter how small their donation. This kick-started a social movement and expanded his readership, because as he astutely predicted, everybody who gave would buy the paper to see their name in print.

Political balance was achieved by a "work for pay" politician, named Walker. His anti-immigration policy was presented with great voice. His dignity and logic might inspire more intelligent oratory from present day conservatives.

There was great humor in one scene when an Irish immigrant and a Jewish immigrant compare notes about how bad it was for them. The Irishman says that the potatoes that survived the blight were rotten. The Jew says, "You had potatoes?" The Irishman says, that he stowed away in the cargo hold of the ship, sleeping with rats. The Jew says, "You had rats?" The show was rich with humor, never cruel or belittling, always respectful and fair. That is an accomplishment in itself.

The music was delightful and seemed effortless, with characters naturally erupting into song. Every actor was polished. Every voice well trained. I could understand every word. Timing was impeccable. Kudos go to the director, Evan Pappas. The cast moved briskly, with never a dull moment as scenes changed without missing a beat. There were seventeen songs with titles like "We Had It Worse", a scene to which

Name the Celebrity

Last Week's Celebrity

Born Lewis Delaney Offield, last week's celebrity was Jack Oakie. His father was a grain dealer and his mother a psychology teacher. When he was five years old, the Offield family moved to Muskogee, Oklahoma, the source of his "Oakie" nickname. His adopted first name, Jack, was the name of the first character he played on stage. He also spent time with his grandmother in Kansas City, Missouri. While he was in elementary school, he made spending money as a paperboy for The Kansas City Star. He recalled years later that he made especially good money selling "extras" in Nov. 1916, during the re-election of President Woodrow Wilson.

Some of his other film roles were as "Luke" in "The Toast of New York" (1937) with Cary Grant and Frances Farmer, as "Lanny Morgan" in two of the "Annabel" comedy series films (1937 and '38) with Lucille Ball and as "Shorty Hoolihan" in "The Call of the Wild" (1935) with Clark Gable and Loretta Young. According to Judy Lewis, this is the film that united her biological parents Gable & Young, which resulted in her secret birth and "adoption" by Loretta Young. All done to protect careers.

Later in Oakie's career, he appeared in several TV shows including "The Real McCoys", "Bonanza", and "Daniel Boone". In 1950, Jack and his wife, Victoria, acquired Barbara Stanwyck's former "Marwyck" estate where they planted a citrus orchard and bred Afghan hounds. After his death, due to an aortic aneurysm, on Jan. 23, 1978, his wife continued to live on the estate but bequeathed it to the University of Southern California upon her death.

Correct callers: Will and Babs Hutchins, Don Adams, Mario Moccia, Roberta Pezza

This celebrity was born on Aug. 21, 1898 in St. Helen's, Merseyside, England. He had one of those character faces that one would recognize but not necessarily know his name. He was a short, blubbery-jowled Hollywood character actor of the 1930s with prior experience in the United Kingdom theatre and cinema. He was a member of the Royal Navy during WWI. He first travelled to America on Dec. 18, 1923 for a series of theatrical engagements in NYC. His big break as an actor came with Gertrude Lawrence and Beatrice Lillie in "Charlot's Revue" in 1925. Some of his notable roles were as "Barkis" in "David Copperfield" (1935) with Freddie Bartholomew and Edna May Oliver, as "Grove" in "Dangerously Yours" (1933) with Warner Baxter, as "Larsen" in "Shanghai Madness" (1933) with Spencer Tracy and Fay Wray, as "Baxter" in Warner Oland's "Charlie Chan's Secret" (1936) and "Smith" in "The Mutiny on the Bounty" (1935) with Charles Laughton, Clark Gable and Franchot Tone.

New Novel by Katherine Kranz Features Family Betrayal, Revenge

Summary: Vampires and beings with unnatural powers clash in this new book released by Dog Ear Publishing.

The abduction of a young child and brutal slaying of his babysitter on a cold winter night in January 1990 have ramifications years later. The perpetrators are no ordinary men, however, because the victim has two bite marks in her neck. This new novel presents a story of revenge and centuries-old rivalry between vampires and immortal electro-kinetic psychics known as seers – including the child's mother.

Monica, a reporter, is working on an ongoing story about an increasing number of missing people when she sees a small woman fight off two attackers with a burst of light, helped by a mysterious man in black who jumps from a nearby building. That same man shows up the next day in her apartment, and he has a warning for the ambitious journalist: The men she saw work for a vampire known as Lived, and he's on a quest for vengeance. Now she's helping Drake, a vampire himself, who is working to atone for his own misdeeds centuries earlier.

The baby grew up, fed on lies to help him hate his own kind. Even as he works toward the culmination of the vampires' evil plan, the young man makes a shocking discovery and the true identity of his mentor is revealed, complete with a deception that has affected more lives than his own. A final battle will determine whether the seers or the vampires prevail and who will be collateral damage. "A Bolt of Crimson" brings its own spin to a traditional tale of light and evil starring creatures of the night.

Katherine Kranz, who writes film reviews for the Gold Coast Gazette, studied at the New York Film Academy. She lives in Long Island.
