Stango's To Close New Year's Eve

Stango's, Long Island's Oldest Italian Restaurant, will be shutting its doors after a 96 year run on December 31, 2015. Stango's promises to make December a fun-filled dining experience with your favorite Italian dishes as family and friends gather to celebrate the holidays and the history of this Glen Cove institution. In 2012 Stella Cocchiola, then 95 years old, planned to close Stango's until a local group of supporters agreed to keep the tradition alive. "So many of us and our families grew up coming to Stango's and we all agreed to help honor the tradition, Stella and Glen Cove's history. Early in 2015 Stella passed away and we have now planned to formally close the doors with a final party on New Year's Eve," said Helene Suozzi, the managing member. John and Gabe Cocchiola, Stella's sons, plan to sell the building and everyone plans to move on to the next exciting chapter. "There is a time and a place for everything," said John Cocchiola who still tends bar at Stango's on Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday nights, and now is the time for Stango's to close and for all of us to move forward. It was a great run, and there will always be some wonderful memories. "Come celebrate the holiday season at Stango's with your family. The Glen Cove High School Select Chorale will be performing on December 8 where a portion of the proceeds will go towards their trip to the Vatican in January 2016. We are available for your holiday party and will be serving Christmas Eve Dinner featuring the "Feast of the Seven Fishes." Finally be sure to join us on New Year's Eve as Stango's celebrates the past and looks forward to the future..

Village of Sea Cliff Straightens the Record

SEA CLIFF, NY, November 24, 2015: Earlier this month, the Incorporated Village of Sea Cliff filed a lawsuit seeking relief as it relates to the Garvies Point Project. This legal action arises from the October 6, 2015 decision of the Planning Board of the City of Glen Cove granting an application for an extremely dense development that would include the single largest building in Nassau or Suffolk County.

Over the years, Sea Cliff has repeatedly expressed concerns for the potential of Glen Cove's development plan to negatively alter the collective character of our communities and adversely affect the environment of the residents Hempstead Harbor. Back in 2000, as the result of a different lawsuit in regard to the development of this same property, Sea Cliff and Glen Cove reached a settlement in the form of a written and signed agreement. The purpose of the Memorandum of Understanding was to establish a framework for the Village and City to work together in a spirit of cooperation to achieve the most beneficial outcome for Hempstead Harbor and the entire North Shore community. Parameters included total density of the development (the developer wants to increase the agreed upon density by 260%) and the maximum height of buildings facing Sea Cliff (the tallest of the currently proposed buildings is 280% taller than what was agreed). Furthermore, the City committed to give the Village due notice of any public meetings scheduled with regard to development in the Waterfront Revitalization Area. This Memorandum is stipulated in the contract of sale of the land from the City to the developer.

Recognizing that there may be future modifications to the 2000 plan and the desire for our communities to have framework for cooperation, the MOU called for the creation of the Glen Cove Creek Redevelopment Commission chaired by the mayors of the City and the Village. Among the objectives of the Glen Cove Creek Redevelopment Commission were to reach consensus and to render advice to the Glen Cove IDA regarding the scope of the environmental impact studies and the application of those studies to the overall development of the waterfront. The parties were to share and respond to ideas and input regarding specific aspects of the development in order to promote harmonious resolutions of any concerns that may arise.

Last week [printed in the GCG 11/19] the City of Glen Cove issued a press release that contained inaccurate statements including Spinello's statement that he has kept the Village fully informed about the project. Mayor Kennedy states "The City did not reach out to inform us of meetings of the IDA or the Planning Board regarding proposed modifications to the proposed Plan. Conversely, I emailed Reggie when I became aware through a third party that significant amendments were being proposed. I explained that this project has the capacity to affect the Village of Sea Cliff greater than any other development on the North Shore and formally requested a meeting of the Glen Cove Creek Redevelopment Commission be called. Only Spinello can explain why this request was ignored." According to the Spinello, his attorney's advise him that the Memorandum of Understanding is legally unenforceable to which Kennedy counters "It appears we will have to let a judge make that call but it leads to the question of what is a man's word is worth. We have a signed agreement between the City and the Village and that should be enough."

Michael Zarin, special counsel to the City, stated last week, "If anything, this suit has made the city and the redeveloper more resolved to move the project forward." Mayor Kennedy was shocked when he read this aggressive comment by Zarin. "We believe there were errors in process and procedure as it relates to review of this Project and have asked a judge to review the facts," stated Mayor Kennedy. "It is not personal. Maybe if Mr. Zarin was more receptive to the concerns of Glen Cove's neighbors, they wouldn't be in this position right now."

The Village of Sea Cliff has always supported the cleanup of Brownfields in Glen Cove and recognizes that the area will at some point be developed. As stakeholders, the residents of the whole surrounding area simply want a place at the table in the planning and visioning process. Mayor Kennedy once again affirmed, "The Sea Cliff Board of Trustees and I welcome a meeting with Glen Cove Mayor Spinello and the City Council to attempt to resolve the outstanding issues and reach consensus on this regional development plan."

The Glen Cove Light and Power Company offered to wire the tree with lights and provide electricity for Christmas Week - it took a crew three days to wire the tree and when it was first lit on December 24th, the Glen Cove community gathered to listen to children singing Christmas carols.

For the Merry Tree Festival, visitors will enjoy strolling down Glen and School Street and viewing an assortment of trees that each will feature its own decorating theme. Dwyer, who finished first on bars (9.525) at the New York State championship meet in Rochester in March and won the all-around (37.70) at the USA Gymnastics Region VI championship meet in Springfield, Massachusetts in April, has a 96.86 GPA and achieved high honor roll status every semester during her high school career. In addition, she has volunteered for a variety of organizations, including the K.I.D.S. Plus sports program for children with disabilities, the Big Sister/Little Sister program at Gold Medal Gymnastics Center, and multiple American Cancer Society Relay for Life events.

"I'm so happy and excited," Dwyer said. "I'm looking forward to the atmosphere of a different place."

"[Dwyer] is an unbelievable gymnast and at the top of her class," said guidance counselor Christine Mulhall. "She's so humble and has taken some of the hardest classes offered at Glen Cove. Even with all of her traveling, she still managed to keep up with her coursework and be a good friend."

MultiMedia & Video Production Classes Visit Cooper Hewitt Museum for Design Week

North Shore High School students from Ms. Green Multimedia and Video Production class visited the Cooper Hewitt Design museum last week for design week. Cooper Hewitt Design museum is located in New York City it features several exhibitions that are a mix of historic and contemporary design objects and dynamic interactive experiences.

The Multimedia and Video Production classes focused on two main exhibits, "Pixar Studios: The Design Story" and "How Posters Work." "Pixar Studios: The Design Story" is an examination of the collaborative design process behind Pixar Animation Studios. The Museums Processing Lab, featured original artwork—including rarely seen hand-drawn sketches, paintings, and sculptures from over 25 years of Pixar filmmaking.

"How Posters Work." Featured nearly 125 posters that demonstrate how designers use the principles of composition, perception and storytelling to convey ideas.

When students arrived at the museum, they received a Cooper Hewitt electronically interactive powered "Pen" with their ticket. The "Pen" enabled every student to collect objects from around the museum store them online for future use and create their own designs on interactive tables.

"This museum really made me think about how design works and when it doesn't. I can't wait to view all of the artwork which interested me online," said classmate Alexandra Johanson.

"My students were motivated by the innovative, immersive technology of the museum that allowed them to utilize the electronic pens in a number of different ways. They were immediately drawn to the large touchscreen tables where they not only explored high resolution images but were able to zoom in on various object details to learn about their similar design themes and motifs," said Ms. Green. In the Immersion Room, they were able to create their own floor-to-ceiling digitized wallpaper utilizing repeated patterns and color. "Their interest peaked in the Pixar Animation exhibit where they were eager to see how the Pixar characters were originally sketched, revised, and ultimately made into the popular characters we know today." Ms. Green is now incorporating the development character ideas behind Pixar: The Design Story into her Multimedia class. She concluded by saying, "We are currently creating new Pixar characters using Adobe Illustrator software. This entire process has increased the design capabilities, creativity, and critical thinking skills of all my students."

George Gach and the North Shore at NSHM

The North Shore Historical Museum recently held a preview reception of the current exhibit, George Gach and the North Shore, paintings and sculptures by the late George Gach.

and his daughter Susie Gach Peelle. Although some of the paintings and sculptures are part of the permanent collection of the museum, donated by Susie Peelle, many are on display for the first time.

Guests sipped wine and enjoyed a variety of nibbles while perusing the artwork. The attendees included Glen Cove Mayor Reggie Spinello and City Councilwoman Pam Panzenbeck.

George Gach was born in Budapest, Hungary in 1909, the son of artist Stephen Gach. George attended the Fine Arts Academy in Budapest. Academically trained, he became prolific in numerous mediums, themes and styles on an international scale: Europe, the Middle East (1947-52) and the USA (1952-1996).

He was a pilot with the Hungarian Air Force during World War II, and was a prisoner in Russia. He returned to Budapest after the war, but in 1947 he fled to Beirut, Lebanon, and worked as a pilot and an artist, traveling all over the world, until 1952 when he relocated to the United States as a painter, sculptor and teacher of art living on the North Shore in Roslyn, for forty four years.

This new exhibition of sculpture and paintings of the late award-winning artist at the North Shore Historical Museum is a photographic display, giving a biographic synopsis of his life and work on three continents, as artist, aviator and survivor of two Russian POW camps, as well as a seven-minute video of the artist in action in 1989 makes this an exhibit that should not be missed.

Some of his work can be viewed at The Cold Spring Harbor Labs and CSH Library, Hofstra and Adelphi Universities, Holocaust Museum in Manhasset, St. Mary's Church in Roslyn, Cradle of Aviation Museum in Garden City, African American Museum in Hempstead. Over 80 public national institutions, including Harvard, Duke, Stanford, Rusk Institute, Eisenhower Medical Center, own his artwork.

This exhibit can be seen at NSHM 140 Glen Street, Glen Cove until February 20, 2016.

For further information call 516 801 1191 or visit northshorehistoricalmuseum.org and georgegach.com.

NSHM is open Wed., 2 - 6 and Sat., 11 - 3

Gifted Young Artists Shine At Island Chamber Symphony Concert

The Island Chamber Symphony continued its policy of giving talented young artists an opportunity to play with an orchestra this past Sunday, November 8th, at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Glen Cove.

Two exceptional soloists, Grand Prix Winners of Concert Festival International Concerto Competition were featured.

16 year-old soprano Gwyneth Campbell gave a stunning performance of Mozart's "Exsultate Jubilate" which includes the much loved "Alleluja." She combined a beautifully pure tone quality with a sparkling, impeccable technique.

Yurie Minamiya, a 17 year-old violinist, displayed a thorough mastery of the devilishly difficult 2nd Violin Concerto by Wieniawsky. Yurie's gorgeous sound, exuberant stage presence and total control of all the twists and turns is truly exceptional in such a young artist.

The orchestra, under the baton of Music Director Jeremy Niles Kempton also performed a beautifully lyrical version of Mozart's Symphony #40 in G Minor, capturing that melancholic undertone unique to this symphony.

The Island Chamber Symphony is proud to have St. Paul's as its home base. The sanctuary provides a beautiful and acoustically excellent performance space.

ICS will give another concert at St. Paul's on Sunday, April 10th, 2016 at 3:00 P.M.

Name the Celebrity

Dwayne Hickman, Nat King Cole, and Lee Marvin. Marvin won an Oscar for his dual role in the film, but he thought the horse was the real winner and star of the movie.

Last Week's Celebrity

Last week's celebrity was Diana Lynn. She was so well received in Preston Sturges' 1944 "The Miracle of Morgan's" with Ginger Rogers, she was immediately cast in two "Henry Aldrich" films with Jimmy Lydon. She also played writer Emily Kimbrough in two films "Our Hearts Were Young" (1944) and "Our Hearts Were Growing Up" (1946) both with Gail Russell. After a few more films, she was cast in one of 1950's biggest successes, the comedy "My Friend Irma" with Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis in their film debut. The group reprised their roles for the sequel "My Friend Irma Goes West". During the 1950s, Lynn continued acting, portraying Spencer Tracy's daughter in the crime drama, "The People Against O'Hara" and as the female lead in the much lampooned "Bedtime for Bozo" opposite Ronald Reagan. She was in "Meet Me at the Fair" (1953) with Dan Daily and Hugh O'Brien and the "Annapolis Story" (1955) with John Derek and Kevin McCarthy. She also starred with Maurice Evans on Broadway in "The Wild Duck". In 1964, she not only did a six month stint on Broadway replacing Barbara Bel Geddes in "Mary, Mary", but she also recorded a 3 record album playing Mozart's "Rondo", "Laura" and "Body and Soul" on the piano. At the age of 45, she suffered a stroke and died Dec. 18, 1971.

This week's celebrity, an American actor known for his portrayal of wise, grizzled, old rural characters, was born on Feb. 17, 1910. He was a native of Gravelly, Arkansas and attended Arkansas State Teachers College but dropped out during his junior year when he ran out of money. He moved to Martha's Vineyard, Mass., where he joined up with a theatre company. Then he migrated to NYC, where he began to find acting roles in Broadway and on tour. He played in numerous productions including the leading role in "Tobacco Road", a part his rangy country persona was made for. Back and forth from Hollywood and Broadway, in 1949, he came back to Hollywood permanently and began a long career as a reliable supporting player. His wonderfully written and vibrantly played role in the Howard Hawks western "The Big Sky" (1952) won him acclaim and an Oscar nomination for Supporting Actor. One of his roles he enjoyed the most was as "Butch Cassidy" in the 1965 western comedy "Cat Ballou" with Jane Fonda, feeders and trappers to help control the feral cat population throughout Glen Cove. CAR, and associates, paid for the neutering of feral adults that were then released, as well as over 100 kittens that were then given vaccines and placed for adoption. CAR's expenses were reduced through the generous discounted fees offered by local veterinarians and donations. To further limit these expenses, the CAR is completing the restocking and set up of medical equipment to re-establish an operating room to meet the medical needs of animals and to consider future opportunities for community neutering and TNR (Trap Neuter Release) programs.

Cove Animal Rescue Presents Six-Month Progress Report to Glen Cove Officials

Highlighting Improved Animal Care together with Ground-Breaking improvements to structure and function Cove Animal Rescue (CAR), with members of its Board of Directors, recently presented a six month progress report to Glen Cove Mayor Reggie Spinello and Deputy Mayor Barbara Peebles. The Board members presented varied accomplishments, from the impressive census of successful adoptions to the acquisition of new surgical equipment to be used in furtherance of its joint effort with citizens to control and reduce the local feral cat population. Noting the challenges that were faced when taking over the facility as it was in March of 2015, Board members shared that ground had been broken on its plans for the physical improvement of the facility; including beautiful dog space to allow for healthy activity and dog socialization.

Construction has started to eliminate the cages that house about 85 cats in a windowless area of the shelter; instead there will be cage-free, sunlit rooms on the perimeter of the structure; with cat doors that allow the cats to go outdoors into a screened-in cattery.

Supportive volunteers, including dog trainers, have helped to improve the adoptability of our dogs and cats.

Mayor Reggie Spinello said, "I am proud of the work that the CAR team has accomplished in such a short-time frame." "These are incredible volunteers who have done an outstanding job in managing the facility," said Deputy Mayor Barbara Peebles. "They have introduced important recommendations that have improved the quality of care and streamlined the financial reporting of the organization and collaboration with the City Clerk's office."

The community has been very generous in their support of CAR; CAR has actively participated in adoption events and informative community programs as well as hosting the fundraising gala and golf tournament. "Great staff (mostly Glen Cove residents,) volunteers and donors are the keys to our success," remarked one Board member.

"Passing not just one, but three, reviews by New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets is personally rewarding for all of our dedicated staff members and volunteers," said CAR's president. As per this State agency and its requirements, "we have worked in close cooperation with the Police Department and the city Dog Control Officer (DCO) to handle emergency situations. The DCO has gone above and beyond in his duties, and we are grateful to the City to have been provided with, and to be able to rely upon, someone with his exceptional skills and background."

According to the Board of Directors, CAR will continue to focus on the care of the shelter's animals, increasing the number of adoptions and improving the structure. "Supportive funds are CAR's life-line and we believe everyone who has donated is proud to know their donation is associated with this on-going project," said a Board member. "Thank you to everyone who has supported our program."

Highlights of the CAR's progress report included following:

- As of August 31st. 52 dogs had been taken in by CAR and 52 had been adopted out or returned to their owners. 15 cats and 57 kittens were adopted.

- The asphalt immediately in front of the Shelter has been removed and is being replaced with an attractive, special "doggie" artificial turf that will be enclosed by a nice fence and plantings. The dogs can play, build socialization skills, and enjoy the great outdoors. By placing this playground in public view, it is expected that adoptions will increase even more.

- While not required by law or contract, CAR assisted and supported local cat

GH Harvest Festival Featuring Storyteller Janice Buckner

Students and faculty at Glen Head welcomed fall with their annual Harvest Festival on October 30th, a day devoted to the study of all aspects of the Harvest including folktales and storytelling.

This year, storyteller, musician, and certified teacher, Janice Buckner, entertained students with her interactive song and puppetry concert for children teaching the importance of the harvest, animals, the changing seasons, respect, and kindness!

But that's not all! Students and parents in all of the classrooms participated in many harvest crafts and activities. Around Glen Head, you could see second graders divided into four harvest stations where children were weighing apples in grams on scales and measuring the circumference with tape measures. Many of these apples will be dehydrated and utilized during Grand Apple Day! Other students were making dream catchers with the help of parent volunteers. In addition, many students were also at stations concentrating on their Harvest Literacy and Math packets that included fun puzzles, word searches, and color by numbers all related to this special day!

Many thanks to the GH PTO and teachers, for organizing such a wonderful event to coincide with the Harvest Festival for all of the students to enjoy. For more information on storyteller Janice Buckner, please visit her website at www.janicebuckner.com

Great Book Guru

- Ann DiPietro

Dear Great Book Guru, With all the Thanksgiving weekend festivities, I know it's going to be hard to find time to read but winter is coming soon. So my question is- do you have a good series I can begin that will take me through the cold dark months ahead? Thankful for a Good Book

Dear Thankful, I have begun a great fifteen book series that Dan DiPietro introduced me to a few weeks ago: Daniel Silva's Gabriel Allon. Gabriel Allon is an Israeli art restorer who travels around the world- quite reluctantly as a spy and sometime assassin. Each novel deals with a work of art that Gabriel is painstakingly restoring while involved in deadly subterfuge in a brutally unforgiving world. The series' recurring characters are Allon's fellow spies all connected to "The Office"- the Israeli secret intelligence agency. His assignments take him to the capitals of Europe, and frequently involve Russian counter espionage and Islamic terrorism. The most fascinating thing I have found about this series is how prescient Silva is about world politics. Events presently unfolding in Paris, Turkey, Egypt, and Russia have all been foretold in Silva's novels. His first book is THE KILL ARTIST and is set in England where the brooding Allon is restoring a Renaissance masterpiece. He is brought into a deadly fray by his spymaster who reminds him of evils that must be revenged. A thriller but so much more- highly recommended!

Feast of the Giglio

Loggia Glen Cove No. 1016 sponsored a lecture by Dr. Salvatore Primeggia about the Feast of the Giglio.

The tradition of the Giglio started in the Italian town of Nola, Italy. The feast in Nola pays homage to San Paolino, who is the patron saint of Nola.

When the Italians from Nola came to America they continued the feast in Williamsburgh, Brooklyn at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church.

The structure of the Giglio is now made of metal. It was once made of wood. The structure itself weighs over four tons. The tradition of the Giglio has been going on for over a hundred years. The highpoint of the feast is the dancing of the Giglio, when it is carried through the streets and moved back and forth. The Giglio is carried through the streets along with a band and clergy on top of the bandstand. As many as eighty men, who are called carriers lift to the commands of the leader who is called the Capo. The Capo carries a cane to direct the carriers of the Giglio. It may take as long as thirty years to become a Capo of the Giglio. It is a great honor and privilege to be part of the Giglio tradition. Dr. Salvatore continues to be a carrier at the Giglio Feast.

The feast brings together religion, heritage, community and identity while passing on traditions, values and sense of purpose through the generations.
