At the roller skating rink, the children learned about important STEAM topics including friction, acceleration, velocity, and rotation and how they each applied to the fundamentals of roller skating! In addition, they watched a presentation on the Science of Roller Skating and learned how newer roller skates have “Come a long way!” They have advanced in so many different ways throughout the years with improvements in support, balance, durability, polyurethane materials and weight. Not to mention, their cool designs and colors! Plus, they were shown favorite people of STEM including Albert Einstein, Steve Jobs, Sir Isaac Newton, Charles Darwin and Jane Goodall.

After the presentation, the Glen Head students were excited to put on their skates and start practicing their newly acquired STEAM roller skating skills! Now that the holidays are over, please don’t forget to ask your second graders who some of the most famous STEAM people are and what they learned on the field trip to United Skates of America!

Glen Cove to Host Tribute to the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. March and Celebration of Dr. King’s Life to be held on Monday, January 18

The City of Glen Cove, the Glen Cove School District with program support from the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Birthday Commission is proud to announce the 32nd city-wide tribute to a man whose leadership, life and legacy elevated the critical importance of civil rights and equality for all.

The ceremonial proceedings will be held on Monday, January 18. The day will begin at 8:45 a.m. with a symbolic march from the First Baptist Church, 7 Continental Place, to the Wunsch

Arts Center at the Robert M. Finley Middle on Forest Avenue. At 9:30 a.m. a commemorative program will dynamically bring to life the theme of this year’s presentation, “Dr. King’s Legacy through the Eyes of Youth,” with young people sharing their words, music and dance with the Glen Cove community. The event will feature guest speakers, performances from the magnificent Glen Cove High School’s Select Chorale straight from their triumphant appearance in Rome where they sang for the Pope, the ever-popular Middle School Choir, the heart pounding sound of the Glen Cove High School Drumline and the beautiful moves of the soulful ESOTA Dance Company.

“I want to recognize the dedicated volunteers of the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Birthday Commission who each year does an outstanding job in recognizing the contributions of Dr. King,” said Glen Cove Mayor Reggie Spinello. “We welcome all area residents to join us at important event.” For more information please call (516) 676-2004.

North Shore Key Club & Kiwanis Visit Ronald McDonald House

Major Emphasis Project Completed For 2015-2016

The North Shore K Family joins hands once again for the annual Major Emphasis Project (MEP) 2015-2016. Cooking dinner was only part of this fantastic venture hosted by the NS Key Club. The residents enjoyed having some fun with the key clubbers after a long day of treatment so we provided arts and crafts for the children.....with BooBoo Bunnies , face painting and making Valentine's Day cards, as the activities and this was a huge success. The Key Clubbers, the NS Builders Club members to include our Aktion Club also prepared cards with personal warm wishes that were given out to all residents who joined us at the dinner hour. The list continues and as an added treat, The North Shore Kiwanis Club collected toys at their annual holiday party and these toys were distributed to all children residing at RMH during our visit. In addition to the project both clubs jointly provided financial assistance to RHM. The clubs donated a 5 night stay for families in need of assistance. This gift will provide assistance for comfortable and affordable lodging for families that are far from home and keep the family unite together so children can cope and heal better.....that is a wonderful thing in deed.

Pictured are the NS Key Club and Kiwanis joining hands at the Ronald McDonald House January 10th 2016. It was an amazing project and we hope to return in the near future.

North Shore High School Students & Faculty Adopt-a-Family

This year at least 50 students and many faculty and staff participated in the Adopt-a-Family program at North Shore High School. The program provides participants with a profile of a family in need, and the volunteers shop to fulfill their wish list, and then wrap the gifts for delivery. This year, five local families were recipients of the generous gift bags. Groups that adopted families included the Newspaper Club, the Life Skills program, Anime Club, Boy Scouts, Sophomore Class, and several classes and individuals.

Ms. Halloran stated, "Participants in the project felt joy in making the holiday more festive for the families and said it made them feel the true meaning of the season."

North Shore key Club Sponsors Handball Tournament To Benefit F.I.S.T.

On January 6th 2016 at North Shore High School the North Shore Key Club sponsored a handball benefit tournament for the Families in Support of Treatment Organization (FIST) The event was very well attended and supported by North Shore High School students. Assisting with this event was the North Shore Kiwanis Club with President Roger Hill, DPP Doug Barnaby and SDPLG Larry Benedetti. The New York State Governor Forbes Irvine was also in attendance for this wonderful event to support the cause; FIST is an organization that addresses problems on substance abuse.

Strings For Healing

by Frederick Stroppel

When four years ago Francesca and Antonia Gambino's grandmother suffered a massive stroke, the two Glen Cove girls were heartbroken, and they wanted to do whatever they could to help in her recovery. Although they had no medical or nursing expertise, they realized that they had the gift for healing literally at their fingertips – music. And that realization led to the founding of their music-therapy movement called "Strings For Healing".

Francesca and Antonia both began playing the violin at age 4, via the acclaimed Suzuki method. Their parents, Dr. Charles Gambino and his wife Marisa, encouraged the girls from an early age to develop and expand their innate musical gifts. Now in their teens, they are students at Sacred Heart Academy, and have performed in the Nassau All-County Festival at the Tilles Center in Greenvale (where they will be participating this year as well). They have attended the Suzuki Summer Institute yearly, and have been accepted through audition to participate in their advanced program.

Their grandmother, Antonia Cipriano, had always been supportive of their talents, and looked forward to going to every recital and concert. When she was stricken and hospitalized, it was a devastating blow to Francesca and Antonia. But they were determined to make a difference, and through research they discovered something they instinctively knew: that music had a healing power, and that stimulating the brain with music would be the best medicine they could offer.

Francesca and Antonia played violin for their grandmother two to three times a week while she was in the hospital in ICU, and then at the local rehab center. Mrs Cipriano responded miraculously to their very special treatments. Even when she was in a coma, she would tap her foot in rhythm to the music; while in recovery she would bounce her head and wave her hand. She survived another three years after the stroke, and it was felt that the sound of her grandchildren's music was a major factor in prolonging her life.

That was the impetus for The Gambino sisters to launch their "Giving Back Through Music" program, or "Strings For Healing". In addition to Glen Cove Hospital, Francesca and Antonia presently play at all of the nursing homes and rehab centers in the Glen Cove area, and also at the Regency Assisted Living Center. "We enjoy giving back, and watching the smiles on the residents," says Francesca, now 16. "And it's a thrill when they sing along with our music." And while some in the audience may be physically unable to respond, 15-year-old Antonia is confident that the music is still working its magic. "As long as they can hear our music, I'm sure it helps them feel better".

Phyllis Coniglione can testify to that; she recalls how Strings For Healing raised her husband's spirits when he was at Glen Cove Hospital. "He was extremely ill at the time, and it was so wonderful to have these two lovely, talented young ladies bringing music into the room, and providing him with a joyous experience. It brought tears to my eye, and I thank them so much."

Expert opinions may vary about the medical benefits of music therapy, but the inspirational value of the "Strings for Healing" program cannot be denied, and Francesca and Antonia Gambino are committed to practicing their melodic medicine wherever they can. "Music makes us all feel good!"

You can follow the Strings For Healing project on Instagram @stringsforhealing, on Twitter @strings4healing and on Facebook, Strings For Healing.

North Shore Key Club Hosts Their Single Service Project 2015-2016 Compassion In Action

On January 6th at North Shore High School, the Key Club hosted their single service project entitled "Compassion In Action." This event was the brain child of North Shore Key Club President Elias Mastakouris and supported by the entire Key Club membership. Elias said, "The program was distinctly different from most other substance abuse events. We wanted to respond to an epidemic on Long Island in a more compassionate way. The goal was to raise awareness of the true nature of substance abuse, reach out to people who are struggling, and empower our community members to become involved."

Many Kiwanis dignitaries attended this event including New York State Governor Forbes Irvine who was so please that the North Shore Key Club hosted an event to show support for the Governor's Project 2015-2016. Other North Shore Kiwanis dignitaries who attended to show support were SDPLG Larry Benedetti, NS Kiwanis President Roger Hill, and DPP Douglas Barnaby. In addition, Key Club LG. Amanda Madenburg and LG. Rohit Mathews were also in attendance for this important event.

The program was dynamic and included keynote speaker Anthony Rizzuto, the founder of the FIST (Families in Support of Treatment Organization). Mr. Rizzuto and his team of gifted professionals addressed topics on substance abuse including Prevention, Treatment, Recovery and Advocacy. Directly following this program, a Resource Fair took place encompassing professionals from over 12 substance programs as well as representatives from prominent self-help groups from Nassau and Suffolk Counties.

The North Shore Key Club is very proud of their outstanding accomplishments in providing services that demonstrate their active citizenship. Key Club members strive to make a difference in their community and focus on issues that can affect each and every one of us. Ms. Julia Salat concluded by saying, "Education is the cure to the problem and the North Shore Key Club wants to be part of the solution"

City of Glen Cove Announces “Celebration of Life” Memorial Tribute to Howard Davis Jr.

Event to be held on Saturday, January 16 at the Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club

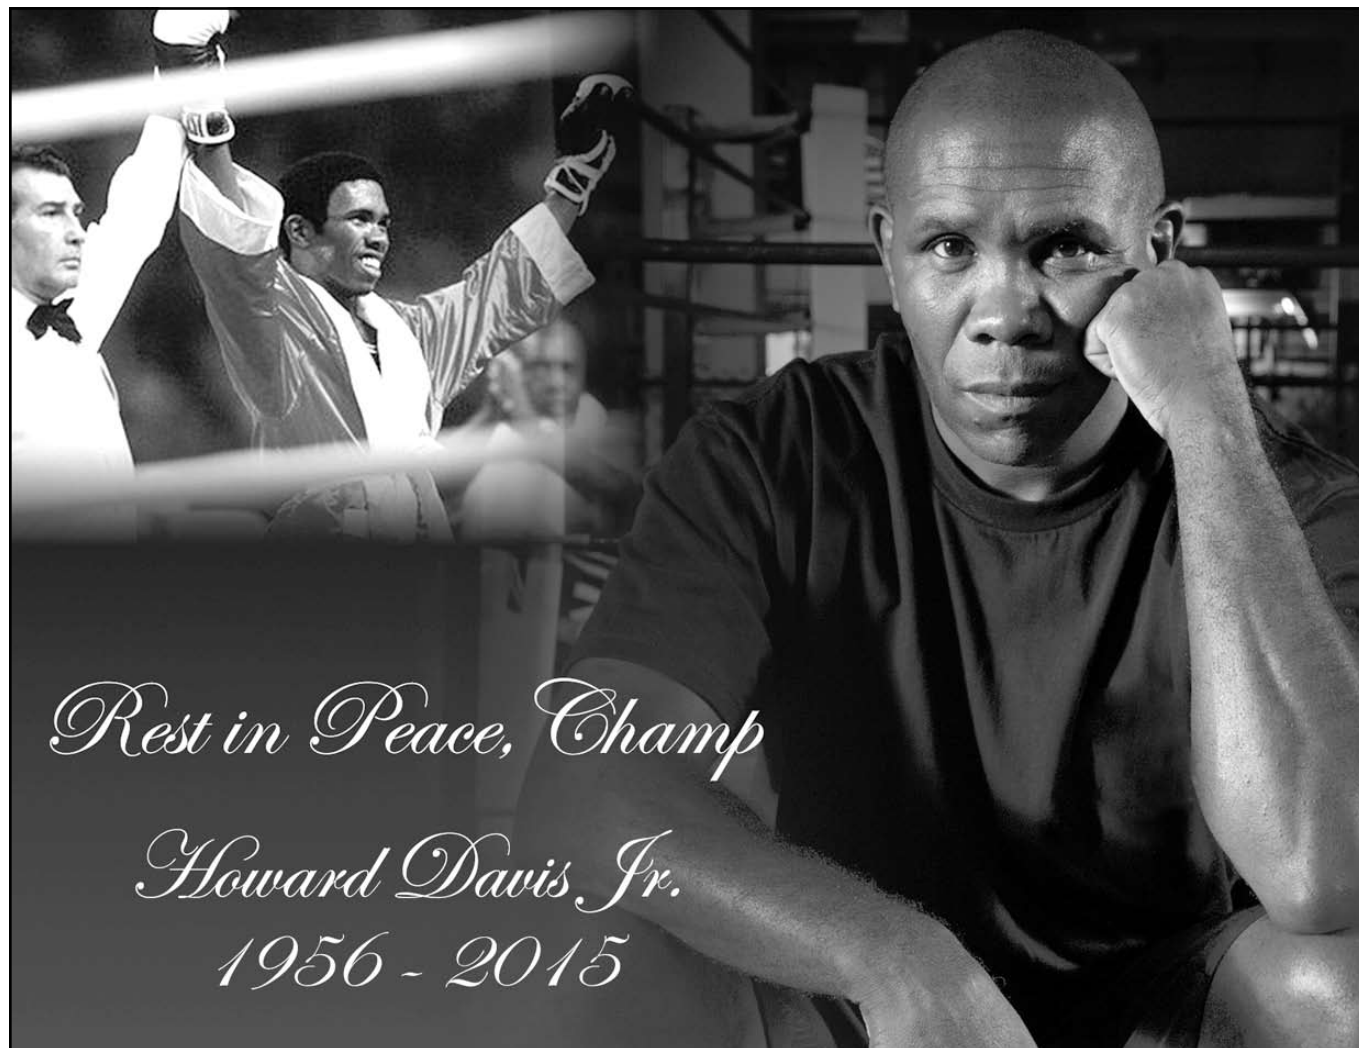

The Glen Cove community is invited to attend a special “Celebration of Life” tribute to remember one of Glen Cove’s favorite sons and former Olympic gold medal boxer, Howard Davis Jr. The tribute will be held on Saturday, January 16 from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at the Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club, 113 Glen Street. Diagnosed in early 2015 with Stage 4 lung cancer, Howard Davis Jr. passed away on December 30, 2015 in Florida. Ever the athlete, the clean living Davis never smoked and fought hard till the end with his wife Karla and five-year-old daughter by his side. “Howard stands tall in the history of our City,” said Mayor Reggie Spinello. “He will always be remembered as a champion, a gentleman, and the greatest amateur boxer.” To celebrate the life of Howard Davis Jr., the tribute will feature guest speakers including family members, friends, representatives of the boxing community and local dignitaries. Light refreshments will be served. Following the tribute, a reception sponsored by the Glen Cove Housing Authority will be held from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. at The View Grill, 111 Lattingtown Road, Glen Cove.

Last summer Mayor Spinello hosted a public reception for Howard at Glen Cove’s City Hall and presented him with the City of Glen Cove Flag. Following the presentation, and in what would be his final remarks to his hometown fans, Davis shared fond memories about his family, growing up in Glen Cove and information about his mission to “clobber cancer” with the establishment of his Howard Davis Jr. Foundation. He said, “I’m deeply humbled and honored to receive such recognition from my state and hometown. The success I have been blessed with over the years would not have been possible without the support and foundation I was given by my family and friends of Glen Cove. I may call Florida home now, but Glen Cove will always have my heart and will always be my hometown.”

To honor of Howard’s life, donations can be made to the Howard Davis Jr. Foundation. The Foundation provides education and financial support for individuals suffering from cancer and encourages alternative methods for fighting this deadly disease. For more information visit HowardDavisJrFoundation.org.

Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club Outstanding Youth of the Month

Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club has named Nyzia Vaughan and Leybis Villatoro as the December Youth of the Month.

Nyzia Vaughan is 16 and in the 11th grade at Glen Cove High School. She excels in English and is in an English honors class. She enjoys reading, both for school and for pleasure. Nyzia credits GBGC Associate Director, Desirae O’Neill and Interim Teen Program Director, Breanna Townsell with her determination to pursue a post high school and post graduate education. “I have watched Ms. Desirae and Ms. Breanna work so hard towards receiving their graduate degrees and I admire that. They have both been great role models for me,” said Nyzia, who has been a member of the Club for 10 years after enrolling in the Club’s Summer Program.

“There is so much I get from coming to the Club. For me it is not just a place to go afterschool but so much more. I feel that I have become a part of something by being a part of the Club.” Her positive experiences influenced Nyzia to participate in the Club’s Summer Youth Employment workshops and apply for a group leader position in the Club’s Summer Program. “It was really fun, I found it to be a great learning experience to go through the program from start to finish and work for the Club as a group leader.” In addition to working hard at school and participating at the Club, Nyzia also enjoys singing. She actively sings in the Club’s recording studio and is in Glen Cove High School’s elite Select Chorale. The Choir is currently in Rome to perform for the Pope at the Vatican, the only group leading the entire Papal mass in Latin.

Leybis Villatoro is nine years old and in the second grade at Deasy Elementary School. His favorite subject is math and he hopes to become a police officer when he grows up, just like Officer D. J. Martone. Officer Martone is among a group of Glen Cove police officers who check in on schools and afterschool youth organizations on a daily basis to ensure the safety of the children of the Glen Cove community. “I want to be like Officer Martone and help people and save lives, and I also want to visit schools to encourage kids to do the right thing,” said Leybis, who participates in the Club’s Snacks with Officer Jack, a program cultivating positive communication between kids and police officers. Leybis, who started attending the Club at the beginning of this school year, loves being a part of the Club. “This is my favorite place. I can do projects, play soccer, basketball and baseball in the gym, and play on the computer. I have made a lot of friends and everyone is so nice, especially Mr. Jahrae (O’Neill), who always helps me. The Club teaches you how important it is to treat other people the way we want to be treated.”

Mill Neck Students Utilize Many Skills to Support Local Charity

Mill Neck Manor School for the Deaf students in Donna Argeroplos' Home and Careers Skills class wrapped up their month-long, campus-wide project for Long Island Cares on December 16. That day, they delivered the items they collected to the food pantry operated out of St. Gertrude's Church in neighboring Bayville, a collection site for Long Island Cares.

After choosing the project, the students presented it for approval to the school's principal and then immersed themselves in every aspect necessary to get it rolling. The sixth through eighth graders were responsible for everything from start-to-finish; for tasks including research, strategy, marketing, distributing the collection boxes throughout the campus and packing up. Rather than have the items picked up by Long Island Cares, the students themselves delivered the items to the food pantry and also helped stock the shelves. Said Argeroplos, "We feel it's important to take the kids to the drop off location, rather than having the food picked up, to allow them to see where the food goes."

Argeroplos, who is also the school's librarian, described the significance of the Home and Careers class, saying it is organized around four process skills: communication, leadership, management and thinking. These skills are taught through ten content topics: community connections, career development, clothing management, consumer resource management, family/parenting, financial management, human development, interpersonal relationships, nutrition and wellness and personal environment management. The skills and content topics align with the National Learning Standards for Family and Consumer Sciences. Carrying out a community project is a natural extension of the course, as it is taught using a hands-on, experiential approach. "The use of real-life relevant tasks, laboratories, simulations, and community involvement are integral parts of the course. So is the use of research, class discussions and group activities," said Argeroplos.

Collectively, the middle schoolers expressed great enthusiasm for the project and felt they learned many valuable lessons, from awareness of the particular charity they supported to working as a team. They all agreed, too, that it is important to spread awareness about hunger throughout the year, not just during the holidays. "I don't think it matters the time of year, people always need food," said 7th grader Amanda Parrott.

Mill Neck Manor School for the Deaf, founded in 1947 by Lutheran Friends of the Deaf, is part of the Mill Neck Family of Organizations, a not-for-profit group dedicated to enhancing the quality of life for people who are Deaf, or who have other special needs. For more information about our programs and services, please call 516-922-4100 or visit www.millneck.org

Season Starts Off Right for Big Red Boys Basketball

The Glen Cove High School boys basketball team has gotten off to a great start with wins over Bethpage, Floral Park, Locust Valley and rival North Shore. The team's latest wins captured the Bob Morrison Classic Tournament at Great Neck North High School on Dec. 29 and 30.

The first win was an unbelievable come-from-behind victory against Oceanside. Oceanside led Big Red 31-10 at the end of the first quarter. From that point on, Glen Cove outscored Oceanside 65-37, en route to a 78-68 victory, which set up the championship game against Great Neck North the following night.

Corey Dinkins led the way with 33 points and six assists, while Khalil Zachary added 31 points and 14 rebounds to lead the team.

During the game against Great Neck North, Glen Cove jumped out to a 21-point lead, only to have the game tied with two minutes remaining. Junior guard Kevin Ernest hit a huge three-point shot to give the team some breathing room, and great free throw shooting from Zachary and Dinkins preserved the win and gave Glen Cove the trophy.

This was the first tournament win at the Great Neck Bob Morrison Classic for Glen Cove High School. The team hopes to improve its winning ways against league opponents Valley Stream North, Lynbrook and Lawrence.

SCO Family of Services Youth Honor Sea Cliff Fire Department

Youth from SCO Family of Services' Robert J. McMahon Children's Center (RJMCC) in Sea Cliff recently honored members of the Sea Cliff Fire Department by presenting them with a plaque and donations from two SCO supporters in recognition of SCFD's continued support of the SCO Family of Services and dedication and service to all members of the Sea Cliff community. SCO's Robert J. McMahon Children's Center serves 73 children and adolescents with developmental disabilities and provides 24-hour nursing care, social services and a variety of therapies that help youth with special needs to unlock their potential and achieve as much independence as their abilities allow. These youth attend the Tyree Learning Center, the campus-based special education school.

"The children at SCO's Robert J. McMahon Children's Center feel a strong connection to the Sea Cliff community," said SCO Executive Director and Sea Cliff resident Douglas O'Dell. "This sense of belonging to the social fabric of our community builds their self-esteem and makes them feel proud."

SCO Family of Services helps vulnerable New Yorkers build a strong foundation for the future. We get young children off to a good start, launch youth into adulthood, stabilize and strengthen families and unlock potential for children and adults with special needs. We enable New Yorkers to meet life's challenges with support, care and acceptance. SCO has played a vital role delivering human services in communities throughout New York City and Long Island for more than 100 years.

NS High School Photography Exhibit to Help Fight Malaria

North Shore High School photography students Alec Nation and Carly Spallone, with the help of photography teacher Ms. Johnson, hosted a Gallery Exhibition in the high school Photo Lab on Thursday, December 17th from 4:30 – 6:30 PM.

They showcased the photographs of 25 students in a walk-through style exhibit. Work was displayed in every area of the Photo Lab including the darkroom, classroom, film processing, and critique areas.

Carly and Alec invited guests to explore the photo lab while viewing the accomplishments of their peers. They asked for a $2.00 donation to raise money to help fight malaria. All proceeds went to Nets for Life, an organization that provides mosquito nets to African families to protect them from insect bites that spread this deadly, but preventable disease. For more information, please visit www.netsforlifeafrica.org

Name the Celebrity

This week's celebrity was born on May 6, 1904 in San Francisco. Having survived the 1906 San Francisco Earthquake, he went on to be a Broadway, movie and television actor. When he was a teenager, he went to Hollywood to seek movie stardom. He found it was harder than he thought, however, and took a variety of short-term jobs. He worked for a time as a day laborer at a movie studio in the days of silent pictures, but was fired for sneaking into a mob scene, while it was being filmed. He also worked for a while as a stockbroker and a banker. Having no success getting any kind of movie roles, he went to NYC where he had no better success getting into the theatre. Eventually, he began working as a merchant seaman and sailed to various ports of the world, including China, Japan, the Philippines, and the Mediterranean. While docked in Hawaii, he worked on a pineapple plantation, the community theatre and sang on a local radio program.

In 1938, he decided to try Hollywood again. His luck changed for the better when he actually began getting some bits in movies. However, after the U.S. entered WWII, he again served in the U.S. Merchant Marine. When the war was over, he returned to Hollywood and eventually began getting character roles. His film roles include playing a member of the board on the comedy/romance "Sabrina" (1954) starring Humphrey Bogart, Audrey Hepburn and William Holden; Mr. Benson in the drama "Picnic" (1955) starring William Holden and Kim Novak; a doctor in Hitchcock's drama "Vertigo" (1958) starring Jim Stewart and Kim Novak; and the colonel in the comedy "No Time For Sergeants" (1958) starring Andy Griffith.

Last Week's Celebrity

Last week's celebrity was Rochelle Hudson. She was the daughter of Ollie Lee Hudson, who worked for the State Employment Bureau in Oklahoma and was the direct descendent of famed explorer Henry Hudson, who in his ship, "The Half Moon", discovered the Hudson River and Hudson Bay. During her peak years in the 1930s, notable roles for Hudson included: Richard Cromwell's love interest in the Will Rogers showcase "Life Begins at Forty" (1935), the daughter of carnival barker, W.C. Fields, in "Poppy" (1936) and Claudette Colbert's adult daughter in "Imitation of Life" (1934) with Louise Beavers.

She married four times and was fluent in French and Spanish, which would eventually come in handy. There is little known about her first husband, Charles Brust. However, in 1939, she remarried and her second husband, Harold Thompson, was head of the Storyline Dept. at Disney Studios. She assisted Thompson, who was doing espionage work in Mexico as a civilian during WWII. They posed as a vacationing couple to various parts of Mexico, to detect if there was the German activity in these areas. One of their more successful vacations uncovered a supply of high test aviation gas hidden by German agents in Baja California.

In the 1954-55 TV season, she co-starred with Gil Stratton in the CBS sit-com "That's My Boy", based on a 1951 Jerry Lewis and Dean Martin film of the same name. She abandoned Hollywood for a time after playing Natalie Wood's mother in "Rebel Without a Cause" (1955) to run a 10,000 acre ranch in Arizona. She later moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma and work for a petroleum refinery. Missing California, she returned in 1963 and, briefly restarted her career, but left Hollywood for good in 1967. She moved to Palm Desert, where she found success in real estate.

On Jan. 17, 1972, at the age of 55, she was found dead in her home at the Palm Desert Country Club. A business associate, with whom she had been working in real estate, discovered her body sprawled on the bathroom floor. She died of a heart attack brought on by a liver ailment. Her only close survivor was her mother.

Letters to the Editor

Disrespect Displayed

To The Editor,

I attended the Glen Cove City Council meeting on Tuesday night, Dec. 8. As a resident of Glen Cove, I was stupefied at the level of disrespect displayed by the Mayor and the City Attorney in response to questions about the Waterfront development and other projects from concerned citizens.

I am apprehensive because I keep hearing that the City has approved the development of a very big, very tall, and very out of character for the area, mixed use complex on top of what is still a toxic Superfund site.

Is it true that the City is also on the hook to build the road going in and out of this toxic area at an estimated cost of $25,000,000?

How can the City sell land that has not passed inspection by the EPA? How can the City propose that the money from the sale of this land be used to balance the City budget when the land cannot be sold until it has passed inspection?

Why is the City so hell bent on pushing this down our throats without providing transparency to the residents of Glen Cove and our surrounding neighbors?

I was afraid to stand and ask the questions at the City Council meeting based on the way my neighbors comments were being shrugged off.

I am not opposed to development. I would love a destination full of vibrant stores and restaurants in Glen Cove. However, I do not want to risk our health and wellbeing unless answers about the toxicity, as well as other quality of life and economic issues are answered effectively, based on current information and unbiased testing.

I have not lived in Glen Cove for very long, only 3 years. I was unaware that this has been an outstanding conversation across several elected officials and many, many years. I am late to the game. But I would like to know the answers to the questions. I want to make sure that the development will not be further polluting the air and water, or condemning the City to more unsupportable debt. And worse, should people start getting sick during the proposed 10+ years of development, who is going to provide healthcare for those individuals?

I have watched with horror this week as our elected federal officials declined the renewal of the healthcare fund established for the first responders of 9/11. I don't want to see this happen in Glen Cove.

Great Book Guru

- Ann DiPietro

Dear Great Book Guru,
 This weekend celebrates the birthday of Martin Luther King and I feel inspired to learn more about world events. The problem is that I have a short attention span and the world is so, so complicated. Can you think of a book that will help me understand it all...?
 Weary of Wondering

Dear Weary,
 I just finished a very enlightening book with a bold title: PRISONERS OF GEOGRAPHY- Ten Maps That Explain Everything About the World- by Tim Marshall. Marshall carefully lays out his thesis that all past history and present politics can be explained by studying the geography of the world powers. Each chapter is preceded by a detailed map that shows how each of ten regions- Russia, China, the United States, Latin America, the Middle East, Africa, Western Europe, India and Pakistan, Japan and Korea, and the Arctic- is subject to the vagaries of geography. For example, he strongly links Putin's annexation of Crimea to his lack of a warm water port, while the United States' coastal borders make it an impenetrable paradise. Mountain ranges and waterways are far more important in Marshall's view than leaders and ideologies when it comes to having a lasting effect on history. This is a short (265 pages), highly readable, very informative take on the world.... highly recommended!

Glen Cove Democrats Elect New Party Chairperson

for over eight years, will retain the position as Vice Chairperson for the Glen Cove Democrats. Zangari, a newcomer to Glen Cove's political arena, placed ninth in the past November 2015 City Council race in a field of 18 candidates running for six open seats.

Zangari's goals for the future of the Glen Cove Democrats will be to increase both voter registration and turnout in Glen Cove, and increase diversity within the local party. He added "Decisions made in the past will not necessarily be the same decisions made in the future. It is our goal to return the Glen Cove City Council back to a Democratic majority".

Michael is employed full-time at as a pricing analyst/showroom manager for the durable medical equipment company Home Medical Equipment located in Garden City, which was recently acquired by National Seating and Mobility of Chattanooga, Tennessee. He resides in Glen Cove with his wife, Janice.

On Monday, January 11, 2016 the Glen Cove Democratic Committee held their first meeting of 2016 to discuss their plans for the future. At that meeting a majority vote taken placed prior 2015 Democratic Glen Cove City Council Candidate Michael Zangari to the position of their new party Chairperson.
