

The Beacon Music Series at St. Patrick's Church in Glen Cove welcomes illusionist, Adam Trent

"Magic's newest sensation"; "thrilling, surprising, funny and extremely entertaining"; and "Justin Timberlake meets David Copperfield" are among the phrases used to describe Adam Trent. Adam Trent is taking the magic world by storm. He is not only the youngest international award-winning magician in history but he was also identified as one of the "10 Most Influential Youths in the Nation" by US News and World Report. The Beacon Music Series is pleased to present Adam Trent, fresh off his run on Broadway in "The Illusionists". Where else can you experience a Broadway-quality show in your own neighborhood at such reasonable ticket prices? This show will appeal to all age groups. Adam is rapidly shattering the stereotype of your typical magician. Glen Cove St. Patrick's Day Parade, March 20, 2016, 1pm

The Glen Cove St. Patrick's Day Parade Committee installed the Grand Marshal of this year's parade at a ceremony which took place last week at St. Rocco Parish Hall. The Grand Marshal is Locust Valley resident, Paul Long, well known on the North Shore as a community activist, a first responder in both Locust Valley and Glen Cove and a proponent of efforts to provide support services for serving soldiers and returning veterans. Mr. Long will be accompanied by Aides to the Grand Marshal Regina McGannon Begley and her husband Peter Begley, both well known for their involvement in Irish social and cultural affairs in the metropolitan area.

The 28th Annual Glen Cove St. Patrick's Day Parade takes place on Sunday, March 20, 2016 at 1pm in downtown Glen Cove. This dazzling event is the premier St. Patrick's Day celebration on the North Shore of Long Island and it is the largest annual parade in the Glen Cove area.

Installation MC Robert Lynch, Aide Peter Begley, Grand Marshal Paul Long, Aide Regina McGannon, Parade Chair Lisa Forgiore.

St. Patrick's Day Parades around the world this year are joining in the celebration of the Centennial of the Irish Revolution which began in Dublin on Easter Monday, 1916.

The backbone of the Glen Cove St. Patrick's Day Parade, as always, will be its exciting mix of marching groups, including many bands of Irish pipers and other musicians. Further color will be added to the festivities by vintage cars, costumed performers, face painters, fire and police units and much more. The

Annual North Shore Middle School Team Challenge Fun-filled events combining academic, athletic and artistic skills

Principal Dr. Marc Ferris kicked off the annual North Shore Middle School Team Challenge to a gymnasium filled with enthusiastic students, faculty and staff. A shortened schedule due to snowy weather didn't dampen spirits! The annual Team Challenge consists of a wide variety of fun-filled events combining academic, athletic and artistic skills. Dr. Ferris introduced the 2016 teams including Crocodile Hunters, Amojis, Beast Mode, 2 Legit 2 Quit, All Stars, Savage3s, and Red Rhinos to a thunderous round of applause! In addition, Assistant Principal Green dressed as a Viking matriarch helped re-enact the story of the NS Middle Challenge with her co-workers!

A favorite event at the middle school, the Team Challenge enables students to demonstrate their abilities learned during the first part of the school year. It builds on their already strong teamwork skills and eases the tension that often goes along with an extremely rigorous middle school academic program. Sportsmanship and acts of kindness are always rewarded!

Dr. Ferris concluded by saying, "Win, lose or draw, all of our students win when they work together, learn from one another, and make a difference in the lives of others."

For years, Gabe Shtanko and his family have run one of Long Island's favorite bakeries — the Park Bake Shop in Kings Park. One important cost of doing business has always been electricity for refrigeration and lighting. Working with our commercial efficiency team, Gabe received almost $23,000 in rebates to slash the cost of new LED lighting and other upgrades by 70%. He's now going to save every year with a 10% reduction in energy costs.

Letters to the Editor

A Glen Cove-Sea Cliff "Win-Win" Ending Is Needed To The Editor,

Because the Glen Cove Waterfront Project is not an in-depth Sea Cliff village wide issue there probably is an overwhelming silent majority among Sea Cliff home owners and business people who believe Mayor Kennedy himself has overstepped his bounds by being ingenuous and unprofessional in interfering with Glen Cove's home-rule style economy, quality of life, and future.

If Mayor Kennedy's and other's differences are not put aside concerning the Glen Cove Waterfront Project we cannot expect or hope for a joint Glen Cove-Sea Cliff "win-win" ending. Progress is painful but regression is more so. Your readers have the good sense to determine which one will it be?

Taking a look at the "Shore Road, Glen Cove, NY Google Earth Satellite Image" one can see for themselves that there are not that many Sea Cliff shoreline and/or hillside property owners as they might have imagined whose northerly lines-of-sight-views of Garvies Point itself would actually be altered by the development of this project. A point to explore further is whether these then are the few property owners who are the main catalysts that propels Mayor Bruce Kennedy and others to oppose Glen Cove's efforts to finalize this once-in-a-lifetime effort that can improve the quality of life and economies for not only Glen Cove but all the surrounding communities including Sea Cliff?

Mainstream economists point out that when adjoining municipalities task-organize and communicate, coordinate and cooperate with one another that their respective economies improve and flourish. It is a fact of life that when these communities instead interfere with one another, their individual economies show little or no gain and/or continuing growth. Instead they stagnate over a short time. In this regard, perhaps Mayor Kennedy himself needs to know from concerned citizens and shopkeepers in Sea Cliff that it might be more advantageous for everyone that if he chooses not to lead or follow in a positive manner on this project, then it might be best for him to professionally recuse himself from further involvement.

When decisions are made at any governmental level that cite junk science language and/or anecdotal evidence as fact it is not considered to be good law or in the best public interest. Other than rhetoric, has Mayor Kennedy, or anyone else ever cited any hard reliable facts, data, or evidence of any kind to prove in a clear and convincing manner that the infrastructure, health, physical well-being, finances, or lines of sight will actually be harmful in any way among any of the few affected Sea Cliff shoreline and/or hillside property owners or anyone else?

This waterfront project is a once in a lifetime opportunity. Mayor Spinello has produced factual objective and meaningful quantitative data and timetables as to how Glen Cove and its contiguous communities can jointly benefit economically if they communicate, coordinate and cooperate with one another. Accordingly, I hope the good citizens and entrepreneurs of both Glen Cove and Sea Cliff will thus recognize that the project itself is of vital economical interest and gain for all of us.

Local Author Publishes Book To Introduce Children To Spanish American Kids About To Become Polyglots

Judy Martialay ¡Hola! Let's Learn Spanish Publishes Book On Learning Spanish

Most of our kids are at a disadvantage in the global world. Even though 75% of the world does not speak English, nationwide, only 15% of American elementary schools offer any kind of foreign language instruction. This is down from 35% twenty years ago. It looks like, as life becomes more global, we're going backwards. FLES (Foreign Language in Elementary School) programs are on the chopping block even here in N.Y. State.

The consequences of this situation cannot be overlooked. Our ability to compete in the global marketplace, to influence world-wide opinion, to understand and solve international problems, to cooperate in research and peace initiatives is in jeopardy.

Cuts have been made to early foreign language programs because of the economic turndown and the demands of Race to the Top and No Child Left Behind, which focus on testing and a narrow curriculum. What can parents do who want their children to have the many advantages of early language instruction?

¡HOLA! Let's Learn Spanish is for anyone who has a child roughly 6-10 in his or her life and would like to give that child the advantage of starting to learn Spanish at an early age. Even children younger than 6 can benefit. The book can be used by parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, friends, neighbors whether they know Spanish or not. Both adults and children will enjoy using the language that they learn in every day situations. It's a great way to bond with kids! It's the perfect gift because it's fun to use and it's educational. It's a great gift for the holidays, birthdays, for any time.

Children love a story. The book captivates kids with an entertaining story that teaches Spanish, and introduces them to the culture of Mexico. There is a variety of activities which encourages them to use the Spanish that they learned, including a skit, Culture Corner and a song.

¡HOLA!..introduces the child to learning

Spanish. Parents should insist that their school district offer the language so that they will have the continuity that they need to develop a useful and employable skill that will benefit them throughout their lives.

Young children's brains are wired for learning languages. They learn languages effortlessly. They don't have the inhibitions and preoccupation with the opposite sex that older students have. They have more chances of acquiring native-like pronunciation and becoming proficient in the language because they have more time to master the skills. Research shows that early language learning gives children cognitive thinking skills that carry over to other subjects and a better understanding of their own language. If they continue learning the language, they will have a skill that makes them more employable, and better able to handle cultural differences. The benefits of language learning last a lifetime.

Judy taught foreign languages in Bethpage, N.Y. Schools for over 30 years. Currently retired, she has devoted many years to public advocacy for the New York State Association of Foreign Language Teachers.

¡HOLA! is a labor of love. Her dream is to give America's children the opportunity to learn a foreign language at an early age.

¡HOLA! Let's Learn Spanish costs $19.99. It is available on Amazon.com or pre-order until November 30, when it can be ordered at http://www.amazon.com/s/ref=nb_sb_noss?url=search-alias%3Dstripbooks&field-keywords=HOLA+let%27s+learn+Spanish.

The audio version of the book is free and can be downloaded at <http://www.polyglotkidz.com> There you will find advice for parents and interesting links to language learning.

Name the Celebrity

This week's celebrity was born on Dec. 14, 1924 in Cleveland, Ohio. She first ventured into acting as a member of her high school drama group, the "Barnstormers". After graduation, she worked in a bank as a typist and a mail page. Beyond that, her theatrical experience ranges from appearing with actress, Nancy Walker, in the 1955 revue "Phoenix '55" to understudy both Angela Lansbury in the original Broadway production of Stephen Sondheim's "Sweeney Todd" and Judy Holliday in "Bells Are Ringing". Coincidentally, she parodied Lansbury's "Jessica Fletcher" character on a 1988 episode of "Hunter", with Fred Dryer and Stephanie Framer, entitled "Murder He Wrote". Films in which she appeared include "Trouble With Angels" (1966) directed by Ida Lupino and starring Rosalind Russell and Hayley Mills, Billy Wilder's "The Fortune Cookie" (1966) with Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau, Alfred Hitchcock's "Family Plot" (1976) with Karen Black and Bruce Dern and Woody Allen's "Manhattan Murder Mystery" (1993) with Diane Keaton, Anjelica Huston and Alan Alda. She also may be remembered portraying "Sarah Tucker" in the Cool Whip commercials and a few Jell-O spots for good measure.

Last Week's Celebrity

Last week's celebrity was Jesse White. Some of his other film appearances were "Back From Eternity" (1956), "The Rise and Fall of Legs Diamond" (1960), "Period of Adjustment" (1962) and "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" (1963). During the 1950s and '60s, he began landing roles on TV shows such as "Tightrope", "The Twilight Zone", "The Dick Van Dyke Show", "The Donna Reed Show", "The Beverly Hillbillies", "Petticoat Junction", "The Munsters", "Mannix", "Perry Mason" and "I Dream of Jeannie", to name a few. He has done voice-overs for shows such as "Jonny Quest", "Alien Worlds", "Inspector Gadget" and "Garfield and Friends". In 1966, he accepted the role of "Donelli" in "The Reluctant Astronaut", playing a curmudgeonly janitorial supervisor, who instructed his use of a mop in a deadpan delivery rivaling that of an aerospace engineer. In a short but memorable performance, he routinely castigated Don Knotts' character for "...his lack of dedication". An advertising director for the Maytag Appliance Corporation saw his performance and soon cast him as the "Maytag Repairman, the loneliest man in town", because Maytag washing machines don't break-down. That campaign proved wildly successful and he began a long-running paid career in that role. His final film appearance was a small pivotal role in the 1993 Joe Dante comedy, "Matinee" starring John Goodman. His last TV role was in an episode of "Seinfeld" in 1996. On Jan. 9, 1997, he died of cardiac arrest following surgery, only six days after his 80th birthday.

Great Book Guru

- Ann DiPietro

Dear Great Book Guru,
As we face the last few days of February, it really feels that Spring is near. Soon we will be dining outdoors at Sea Cliff's great restaurants and bars. Speaking about bars, a friend of mine told me about a great book she had read about the rise and fall of the Prohibition. Are you familiar with it?
Cocktail Connoisseur

Dear Cocktail Connoisseur,
LAST CALL by Daniel Okrent is the book for you. It's the story of probably the most puzzling period in American history. How could a freedom-loving people willingly give up something that been part of their lives since the 1600's, consumed by rich and poor, men and women, something cheaper than tea, safer than water? Indeed, how could Prohibition ever work? Well, Okrent maintains it didn't- that Prohibition was a disastrous failure from its inception. He presents us with a colorful cast of strange bedfellows: women suffragettes, the Klu Klux Klan, rural sharecroppers, judges, pharmacists, smugglers, bootleggers... fueled by anti-Semitism and anti-Catholicism . Susan B. Anthony, Billy Sunday, Charles Walgreen, Samuel Bronfman, Meyer Lansky, August Busch and a myriad of others are spotlighted for the roles they played in this drama. Although repealed after less than fourteen years, Prohibition was to change American society forever. Highly recommended!

A local law to amend Section 280-28, Powers and duties, of the Zoning Code of the City of Glen Cove, to allow for an expeditious procedure for the rendering of decisions of the Board of Zoning Appeals.

BE IT ENACTED by the City Council of the City of Glen Cove as follows:

SECTION 1. Subsection (C)(6) of Section 280-28 of the Code of the City of Glen Cove as last amended by Ordinance on August 24, 2010 is hereby amended as follows:

(6) Every decision of the Board of Appeals shall be recorded in accordance with standard forms adopted by the Board. Every decision of said Board shall be filed by case number. In each case, the Board of Appeals shall notify the DBD, City Clerk, the Planning Board and the Nassau County Planning Commission of their decision.

(a) The Board of Appeals may render its decision in summary format, setting forth the Board's decision and conditions imposed, if any, without enumerating detailed findings which formed the basis for its determination. If any aggrieved person seeks judicial review without having requested a long form decision, the Chairman

North Shore Senior Takes 3rd Place at the Junior Science Humanities Symposium at York College

The North Shore School District is proud to announce that Anne Marchildon, a senior at North Shore High School, was invited to the semi-finalist stage of the LI Region Junior Science Humanities Symposium (JSHS) competition at York College in February 2016. Of the hundreds of research papers submitted, Anne's was among 37 biological semi-finalists in New York City and Long Island. Her research teacher, Dr. Molly Mordechai, said, "We were excited to recently learn that Anne came in third place for her research presentation titled, Inhibition of the Protein Kinase MRK Sensitizes of Glioma Stem Cells to Radiation."

Anne said, "After taking eighth grade biology, I became more interested in science. Additionally, my whole family is engaged in science - my one brother is an astrophysicist and my other one is a mechanical engineer." She added, "In July 2014, I worked at the Feinstein Institute for Medical Research in a laboratory in Manhasset assisting on guided experiments. In 2015, as a junior in high school, my mentor Dr. Ruggieri encouraged me to work on my own individualized research to sensitize a subpopulation of cancer stem cells in the brain to radiation therapy. Ultimately, the goal of my research is to reduce the amount of radiation administered to brain cancer patients by making the cancer cells more vulnerable to radiation and other cancer treatments."

In addition to the JSHS competition, Anne submitted her science research paper to the Intel Science Talent Search, the Long Island Science Engineering Fair (where she presented a poster summarizing her research), and the N.Y. State Science and Engineering Fair (NYSSEF). She will also be presenting in April 2016 at the Long Island Science Congress. Anne is waiting to hear back whether she will be a finalist in the national JSHS competition.

Anne Marchildon will be pursuing her passion of science next fall at Cornell University as a freshman in the College of Agriculture & Life Science. She concluded by saying, "Being engaged in this whole process makes me realize the level of impact that I am leaving on society. I feel so innovative and believe that one day soon the results of my study can really change the lives of cancer patients in the future. By lowering their doses of radiation, it will give patients a better quality of life, a longer life span, and more time to enjoy with their friends and loved ones."

Congratulations to Anne Marchildon and all those who have assisted her. We wish her the best of luck now and in the future as she continues to make a difference in the world by pursuing her passion of science.

Elizabeth Kolligs Exhibits Paintings at the Senior Center

By S.F. Collins

The Glen Cove Senior Center takes pride in announcing an art exhibit by the renowned painter Elizabeth Kolligs in the Center's Golden Gallery. The exhibit opens March 3 and runs through the end of April.

A native New Yorker, Elizabeth grew up on Long Island with an abundance of horses and riding trails. In high school, after years of riding lessons she longed for a horse of her own. Her first was a Quarter Horse gelding named Riscos Rascal. Her other love was to spend hours drawing with the art supplies borrowed from her father's studio. Riding trails, crossing streams lined with ferns opening up to grassy fields instilled a deep love for horses that is reflected today in her painting. Ms. Kolligs states, "I believe that much more than visual observation is required in capturing the horse in art: time must be spent listening, studying, and sketching their movements because of their intensely generous yet self-absorbed nature. The subtle nuances that reflect a single moment in time are what I want to capture in my art."

Ms. Kolligs studied painting at the Art Students League, equine anatomy at the New York Academy of Art, and sculpture of horses in motion at the Fechin Institute in New Mexico. She lectures and demonstrates equine painting techniques and anatomy throughout Long Island. Recently she taught a workshop on equine painting in Huntington, NY. She has exhibited at the American Academy of Equine Art. She works and gives private painting lessons at Rare Horse Studio located in Glen Cove, NY. Elizabeth, also, specializes in the restoration and conservation of historic art murals and easel paintings. She is the Artist-in-residence at Old Field Farms in Old Field, NY. In addition to exhibiting her work at Old Field Farms, she does painting demonstrations and offers lectures, promoting equine art. She is an associate member of the American Academy of Equine Art. Ms. Kolligs has participated in numerous group art shows from New York to Kentucky at prestigious galleries, e.g. Elaine Benson, Discovery Gallery, Islip Art Museum, The Steinberg Museum of Art, and Gallery North, to name just a few.
