Savino Honored “Kings Of Long Island”

Glen Cove resident, Bob Savino, founder and CEO of Automatic Industries, was honored on April 12th at Leonard’s Palazzo in Great Neck as one of the “Kings of Long Island.” He was recognized as an outstanding leader along with other prominent business owners on Long Island. Both Nassau County Executive, Ed Mangano, and Suffolk County Executive, Steve Bellone, were in attendance as “Kings of Long Island Stars” and to present awards to the other honorees.

The event marked the Star Network’s first “Kings” ceremony east of New York City and was a huge success with more than 500 people in attendance.

Automatic Industries which was founded by Mr. Savino in the 1960s provides central laundry systems to multiple dwelling, hotels and college dormitories and is one of the leading laundry providers in the tri-state area. Mr. Savino and his wife, Angela, raised their three children in Glen Cove and have resided in the community for over 50 years. In addition to being an esteemed leader in his field, Bob has dedicated his time to the local community serving on numerous community and not for profit boards over the years. He was a member and the former Captain of the Glen Cove Harbor Patrol. He volunteered endless hours on the auxiliary police force and ambulance corp.

Glen Cove Residents Show Strong Support for E-Waste Collection Day

Over 300 Glen Cove residents parted ways with their aging technology, old televisions, VCRs, miscellaneous monitors and dated digital devices during Glen Cove’s bi-annual E-Waste collection day. “The beautiful weather definitely encouraged our residents to do their technology spring cleaning and our Department of Public Works Sanitation team did a great job in coordinating the event’s logistics with AHRC E-works and Winter Brothers,” said Mayor Reggie Spinello. Thousands of items were collected during the day’s event and for residents who want to dispose of microwaves and small appliances; those items can be collected on Wednesday’s metal pick-up day. The next E-Waste Collection Day will be scheduled for Saturday, October 1 from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. For more information call DPW at (516) 676-4402.

Area residents are calling for the removal of the rubber mulch from school playgrounds within the North Shore Schools such as above at Sea Cliff, citing health concerns. (SNH photo)

Residents Call For Removal of Rubber Mulch

Through grassroots efforts spearheaded by Sea Cliff resident Dr. Nick Virgilio, the North Shore Central School District is contemplating the removal the rubber mulch from school playgrounds within the North Shore Schools.

Dr. Virgilio said, "The rubber mulch is toxic. There are 96 known chemicals present in the mulch, 1/2 of which have never been tested for human exposure. 20% of these chemicals are known carcinogens such as phthalates and PAH's. A California study tried to mimic skin exposure by doing what they termed as a 'wipe test.' On the samples of wipes there were carcinogens present. Standards for these carcinogens are set by OSHA for a 160 lb male. Children are of course much smaller therefore increasing the exposure level. The children ingest it, place it in their eyes, ears, nose, roll in it and come home with it in their shoes, hair and clothing, all of which of course increases the exposure."

Elizabeth Yaachos and some concerned Glen Head mothers contacted Dr. Virgilio after seeing the online petition he started over 3 weeks ago, which now has well over 500 signatures. After presenting to Dr. Melnick and the BOE at the March 31st meeting the group has been sending numerous research articles and information proving the toxicity of the mulch and its effect.

At the April 14th meeting Dr. Herman Berliner, Board President, invited a toxicologist, Dr. Kenneth Spaeth to speak on the matter. Dr. Spaeth reiterated information that was presented at the March 31st meeting by Dr. Virgilio. He also added, "Rubber is rubber. The toxins are there. Pound for pound the exposure is going to be greater for children".

Dr. Virgilio stated, "There are safe, non-toxic, eco-friendly alternatives that are available. These include virgin hard wood chips and poured in place rubber. The research proves the presence of these hazardous chemical in the rubber mulch. Lets get this out of the playgrounds as soon as possible. I hope the Board moves swiftly and makes a favorable decision to remove this toxic material as soon as possible for the health of our children." The Board will make a decision regarding the rubber mulch after the issue has been discussed and a recommendation is made by the district Construction Steering Committee. That group will meet on May 2.

Glen Cove Senior Honored at Board Meeting

Glen Cove's Board of Education honored Glen Cove High School senior Makaela Vaughan at its meeting on April 11.

Makaela was recently named the Glen Cove Boys & Girls Club's 2016 Youth of the Year, with the organization describing her as an excellent student, a star athlete and a positive and outstanding role model for her siblings and its younger members.

Glen Cove High School Principal Antonio Santana and Superintendent of Schools Maria Rianna commended Makaela at the meeting, where she was given a certificate to honor her achievement.

"You're an outstanding individual, a wonderful young lady and student, for all that you do not just here, but for all of the children in the community, I thank you," Rianna said. "It's my honor to be your superintendent."

Makaela is headed to Albany at the end of May where she will compete against other local winners at the state level competition. At that event, she will be tasked with presenting her "personal brand," (what she stands for) to a panel of judges. Makaela plans on pursuing a career in law enforcement and is determined to make the world a better place.

Letters to the Editor

Sequel To Love Of A Dog To The Editor,

I'm the dog that got adopted. So let me bring you up to date about the old guy who adopted me and is living happily ever after as was described a month or so ago in your paper under the caption "LOVE OF A DOG."

First of all my original name was "KATNESS." The old guy named me "Honey" because every dog he ever owned was so named. I found out later that many years ago when he got his first dog named "Honey" he had what he said was a family heirloom silver dish. He got the dish engraved with the name "Honey." I don't know what family this beat up dish ever came from, but I can tell you that now even a junk-yard dog might turn his or her nose up at it.

He was right when he mentioned that he had adopted me from a wonderful family who couldn't keep me. I kinda got the feeling at the time that something was in the wind when different people came to see me but left abruptly. Some of the people they didn't like and a few probably didn't think I was too swift.

When the old guy showed up, the drama began to unfold. The next thing I knew, me, my crate, blanket, leash and toys were loaded into his car. The kids were told I was "going to a farm."

I thought "a farm - what am I going to do on a farm, be harnessed to a plow or something?"

Within an hour I arrived at the "farm." This so-called "farm" was a fifty foot by 100 foot lot with a house and garden shed on it. Some farm? An elderly lady came out. When we got inside I heard her say to the old guy "Where'd you ever find this thing. Look at it. It has one ear up and one ear down."

I thought I ain't going to last long here if I don't go through the paws on her lap and my best sad brown eyes looking into hers routine. This was do or die for me. She looked at me and said "OK, you're a keeper." I wagged my tail as a sigh of relief.

She then got me a dish of ice cream, something I'd never had before. Up until the day she died we were pals. No day ever went by that we didn't spend a lot of time together. I miss her so much.

Your readers can be assured my life really changed after adoption. Every day became a holiday. Every meal has become a banquet. Every time someone calls my name it is a family reunion.

I stay on the "farm" property. There is some sort of an invisible fence that was activated. It probably had been used years ago to keep the chickens in but now gives me little tingle if I try to run into the street. It ain't worth it to go exploring as I had done a couple of times and had to be rounded up by a posse of neighborhood kids.

I love just "hanging out." I must be a celebrity because neighbors come over the see me. Some bring kids and others bring both kids and dogs. You talk about a "dog's life," well let me tell you I'm leading a pretty good one right now.

In the morning the old guy takes one of my collars off, opens his rear car door and tells me to "kennel." He must think I'm stupid, but I humor him and get in the back seat where he has a special bed for me.

I go with him to a law office where the old guy hangs his hat and coat. The other two guys are lawyers and treat me as one of their own. I don't think the old guy does too much there. In fact we both went to SLEEPYS, you know, the bed place, and he brought a real bed back to his office. You ain't going to believe this one either, but that bed is mine to sleep in whenever I want to. The old guy gets into it once in a while also and we both nap.

Life's been good to me. My first family was young and caring. The old guy's wife could not have been better. The old guy himself and I are inseparable. If there are any other dogs out there that have doubts, I'd be the first to tell you that old guys and gals can be wonderful companions for dogs like us.

All you gotta do is sit near them - place your head on their knee and put up with them petting and talking dim-witted to you. At night, if you jump on the bed and put your head on the pillow they go zonkers petting and talking to you. Believe me, it just plain ain't all that bad.

Glen Cove Beautification Commission to Host Earth Day and Arbor Day Tree Plantings Trees from City's Merry Tree Festival will be planted at Two City Parks

Embracing the importance of protecting our natural resources and keeping Glen Cove green, the City of Glen Cove's Beautification Commission will host two special tree plantings to celebrate Earth Day and Arbor Day. Commission members will plant three trees on Earth Day, April 22, at 1:00 p.m. at the site of Glen Cove's 9/11 Memorial in Pratt Park. Then, on the following Friday, April 29 at 1:00 p.m., the group will plant four trees at Big Ralph Park in honor of Arbor Day.

The trees were donated to the City as part of Glen Cove's Merry Tree Festival held this past holiday season. "Thanks to the support of local businesses and Glen Cove residents, the "living" holiday trees which created an exciting attraction for our downtown corridor during the holiday season will now be planted throughout the City to keep Glen Cove's parks and landscapes green and vibrant," said Mayor Spinello.

For further information regarding the Earth and Arbor Day activities, the Glen Cove Beautification Commission, please contact Glen Cove Parks & Recreation at 516-676-3766.

Mayor Spinello Joins Nassau County Executive Ed Mangano and Municipal Leaders at Long Island Builders Institute's Annual Members Dinner

The Long Island Builders Institute (LIBI) invited Nassau County and local municipal leaders to present growth and development reports at their annual member's dinner which was held at the Woodbury Country Club. Mayor Spinello spoke to the group about Glen Cove's three point development plan that focuses on the City's waterfront, the center of town and the City's gateways. Mayor Spinello said, "We are intent on infusing our local economy with new jobs, expanded tax revenues from sources other than residents, and bringing in young professionals, empty nesters and new families who appreciate the benefits of an affordable suburban City with beautiful surroundings and beaches." LIBI is a strong advocate for responsible building and remodeling on Long Island.

Diabetes Fundraiser Helps DRIF Get Closer To Cure

By Debbie Greco Cohen

The Diabetes Research Institute Foundation (DRIF) held its 13th Annual "Cooking For a Cure" fundraiser on April 11. Co-chaired by Nassau County Legislator Delia DeRiggi-Whitton and Rebecca Castronovo, the event was a huge success. Both women have daughters who were diagnosed with type 1 diabetes when they were very young and have been deeply involved with DRIF for well over a decade. "I would like to thank the committee and all those who support the DRIF, especially Stacy Sissons McKenna and Sue Herbst for helping to organize this great event," event co-chair Delia DeRiggi-Whitton said.

The DRI runs the largest and most comprehensive research center dedicated to finding a cure for diabetes. In type 1 diabetes, the immune system mistakenly destroys insulin-producing islet cells in the pancreas. The DRI's focus is to develop a biological cure by replacing those cells.

A very promising study for which the DRIF recently received FDA approval to conduct in clinical trials is their BioHub. This bioengineered "mini organ" contains thousands of insulin-producing cells that sense blood sugar levels and release the precise amount of insulin needed, thereby mimicking the function of a normal pancreas. The BioHub containing the donor islet cells is transplanted into the omentum, which is an apron-like lining covering the abdominal organ. The BioHub acts as a "scaffold," holding the cells in place until they naturally adhere to the wall of the omentum, after which point, the BioHub naturally dissolves.

"We know that transplanted islet cells have already functioned in some patients for more than ten years," DRIF Long Island Regional Director Anthony Childs said. "THE DRIF is building on that progress by developing the BioHub, a bioengineered min-organ, to reach a biological cure for type 1 diabetes."

"The BioHub is the most promising clinical trial yet for a biological cure for diabetes," DeRiggi-Whitton added. "I am so proud to be part of an organization that can help potentially the 29 million Americans and 370 million people worldwide with diabetes to live longer, healthier lives."

Visit diabetesresearch.org/diabetes-clinical-trials for details on this breakthrough treatment as well as the Diabetes Research Institute Foundation overall.

NSSP Hosts a Successful Open House

The North Shore Sheltering Program held its 3rd annual Open House fundraiser recently in order to keep the shelter open for the coming winter of 2016-2017. Board members provided refreshments and donated raffle prizes. Local musician Matt Grabowski provided musical entertainment and Barry Rivadue showed on short video narrated by founding Board Member, Victoria Crosby, giving a brief history of NSSP.

NSSP president Gustavo Gitlin welcomed guests, which included Glen Cove Mayor Reggie Spinello and his lovely wife Coleen. This year president Gitlin recognized a young girl who had raised funds for NSSP.

“At 6 years old, Hazel Harris is North Shore Sheltering Program’s youngest fundraiser to date! Hazel raised over $300 for NSSP last April when she hosted her “Give Like a Movie Star” birthday party and requested donations to the shelter in lieu of birthday gifts. Hazel’s generosity got the attention of the New York Times blog as well as other parenting websites. Hazel and her family are members of the First Presbyterian Church of Glen Cove, where the shelter is housed. Hazel is also a member of Girl Scout Daisy troop 132 and in December she and some of her Girl Scout sisters cooked and served dinner to the shelter residents. Hazel’s family has volunteered at the shelter since it first opened its doors in 1996 and they are proud to pass the tradition of service to the next generation!”

Funds must be raised each year for the rental of the space, an overnight supervisor and other expenses. A hot meal is provided each night by churches, schools groups, temples and other organizations and individuals. Many volunteers help to make the shelter a success, so that men who are homeless during the winter months, have a safe, warm place to stay overnight, shower and eat.

If you would like to support NSSP, donations may be sent to NSSP PO Box 415 Glen Cove NY 11542.

Plaque Dedication Ceremony at NSHM

The North Shore Historical Museum held a reception for the unveiling of the third fundraising plaque, and of three chairs named in honor of Judge Joseph McCann, Georgie Connett and the late Arthur Finer. The Raise the Eagle Façade Improvement Plaque was unveiled by NSHM vice president Rhoda Finer after a welcome from president Georgie Connett.

Amy Driscoll NSHM Director also welcomed guests, which included Glen Cove Mayor Reggie Spinello and his lovely wife Coleen Cole Spinello.

The room was filled with people who had contributed to the plaques and supporters of the museum. Delicious hors d’oeuvres were generously donate by the Atria, NSHM’s next door neighbor. Wine and champagne were also served. Board member who planned the reception were Linda Darby, Eve Califano and Victoria Crosby.

The Naming Opportunity Plaques were placed on three chairs, and the donations received from these and the Raise the Eagle Plaque help the museum to continue to raise funds for renovations to the facade of the 1907 Justice Court building, on Glen Street in Glen Cove, which has been completely restored inside, and has been open as a museum since January 2013. There are other naming opportunities available to those who would like to honor or memorialize a loved one.

The current exhibit is The North Shore Worships; An Historical Overview With Local Cemeteries and Burial Grounds. Young Sophia Chavez was working on stone rubbings in the area which depicted the ornamentation of gravestone.

The exhibit includes photographs, artifacts and information about the many varied religious institutions on the North Shore.

For further information about any programs, exhibits or naming opportunities visit northshorehistoricalmuseum.org, or call Amy Driscoll Director of NSHM at 516

801 1191. The museum is located at 140 Glen Street in Glen Cove. Museum hours are Wednesday 2-6pm and Saturday 11am-3pm

Letters to the Editor

Vote for Jones To The Editor,

On May 17th, I will be gladly voting for Sara Jones for the North Shore School District Board. I would encourage all residents of the North Shore School District to consider doing the same. I have known Sara and her family for many years. Sara encompasses all the qualities a successful school board member should have. She is engaged, reasonable and intelligent and most importantly she gets things done. Sara has been an active volunteer in the schools since her older daughter began kindergarten at the Sea Cliff School. She worked tirelessly with our Nutrition Committee to improve the lunch offerings in our cafeteria, worked year round on our Sea Cliff PCA website and started an annual Book Swap so that families could exchange books between themselves. Sara is present at our PCA events and PCA meetings. She is a wonderful advocate for the children and an asset to our school community. We are so lucky to have her at Sea Cliff School and I know that she will generously devote her time and talents to the North Shore School Board. Sincerely,

Alexandra Ciampa

Sara Jones for North Shore Schools To the Editor,

I would like to announce my candidacy for re-election to the North Shore Board of Education. Through my experiences as a board member over the last three years, I have gained a great deal of insight about the workings of public education both on a local and national scale. I believe this experience makes me an even stronger candidate now than I was three years ago, and I hope to have the opportunity to put my knowledge and skills to work for the North Shore community for another term.

During my tenure on the Board of Education, I have advocated for a curriculum that focuses on creating life-long learners and engaged citizens. As such, I authored the board's Resolution on High Stakes Testing which argued for limiting the impact of government mandated testing on our high performing schools.

My work on the Board has also focused on promoting and protecting the overall well-being of our students. I am a Board representative to the Wellness and Health & Safety Committees and have also initiated a review of our student data privacy policies.

As a CEO and business owner, I am very conscious of the duty of a school district to be fiscally responsible. For the past 16 years, I have owned and run a national, catalog-based company, an experience that has honed my skills in long term planning, budgeting, and creative problem-solving. I also bring to the Board a significant background in fundraising and public/private partnerships through my work for Citymeals-on-Wheels.

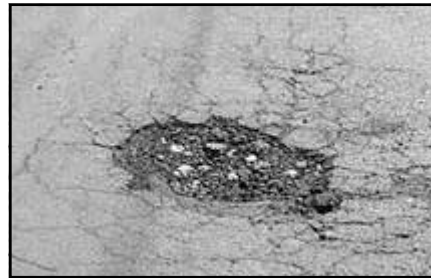

In addition to serving on the Board of Education, I have greatly enjoyed volunteering in our schools and community. Most recently, I co-founded the volunteer run, nonprofit Sea Cliff MAKEshop which brings new opportunities for the children in our district to learn coding, math and engineering.

My wife and I have lived in Sea Cliff for 16 years and currently have a daughter at North Shore Middle School and a son at Sea Cliff School. We consider ourselves lucky to live in a community where so many residents, even those without children in the schools, are such staunch supporters of our district. I believe our strong schools contribute to the value of our homes and our community, and I ask that you vote on May 17th to re-elect me to the Board of Education.

"We greatly appreciate the support of Nassau County's DPW road crews to repair and resurface the County maintained roads in our City," said Mayor Reggie Spinello. "My office and Glen Cove's DPW staff receive many calls each year about these thoroughfares and we look forward to bidding farewell to our pot holes."

Suozzi Raises $450K In First Quarter

The Suozzi 2016 campaign filed its first quarter campaign finance report and report that Tom Suozzi has raised over $450,000. The contributions were raised between January 19, 2016, when Suozzi filed his congressional campaign committee, through March 31, 2016. Suozzi, the former Nassau County Executive and Glen Cove Mayor, is running to replace Rep. Steve Israel (NY-3), who is retiring from Congress at the end of the year.

"People are investing in my campaign because I have a proven record of going up against the status quo to get things done," said Suozzi. "They know that's what Washington, DC needs these days."

In the filing with the Federal Election Commission (FEC) the campaign will report contributions of $451,306.07, expenditures of $76,960.09 and will have $374,345.98 cash on hand. Approximately $50,000 can only be used for a general election campaign.

"Tom's numbers are impressive because it was such a short fundraising period," stated Mike Florio, Suozzi 2016 campaign manager. "More importantly, he is one of the few candidates in this race who has not loaned or given his campaign money. This bodes well for the support that Tom will need to win the Democratic primary on June 28th and the general election."

The 3rd Congressional District covers northern portions of Queens, Nassau and Suffolk counties. A primary for the Democratic nomination will be held June 28, 2016.

Great Book Guru

- Ann DiPietro

Dear Great Book Guru,
My friends and I are thinking of starting a monthly book club focusing on non-fiction. Do you have any suggestions for a good book we could begin with- something short, something compelling?
Reality Reader

Dear Reality Reader,
I have a wonderful book for your group: WHEN BREATH BECOMES AIR by Paul Kalanithi. Kalanithi was a brilliant scientist, writer, and linguist with advanced degrees in medicine and literature. Then at age 36 he received what was basically a death sentence: a diagnosis of advanced lung cancer. This slim (240 pages) volume details his last years as he tries to answer a question he has been obsessed with his entire adulthood: "given that all organisms die, what makes a virtuous and meaningful life?" We learn about his parents, his large family of cousins, siblings, aunts and uncles, his wife, his many friends- all who play a part in his quest for understanding. We see as he goes from powerful physician to contemplative patient and are with him as he decides to have a child so that he can experience the joy and pain of loving and leaving something of himself. Beautifully written, this book with its poetry and carefully crafted prose is not so much sad as instructive, offering profound insight into human mortality. Highly recommended!

Name the Celebrity

This week's celebrity was born in New York City on August 8, 1930. She began her acting career appearing as a model in the 1949 film "It's a Great Feeling" with Doris Day, Jack Carson and Dennis Morgan. She signed a Warner Bros. Studio contract at the age of 18. She was afforded a wealth of varied screen roles from the love starved switchboard operator in a "Very Special Favor" (1965) with Rock Hudson and Leslie Caron to the brassy Madame Esther in "Buck and the Preacher", a 1972 American western film starring Sidney Poitier as "Buck" and Harry Belafonte as the "Preacher". She also appeared in such films as "Bright Leaf" (1950) with Gary Cooper, Patricia Neal and Lauren Bacall, the title coming from the type of tobacco grown in North Carolina after the American Civil War and "This Could Be the Night" (1957) with Jean Simmons, Paul Douglas and Anthony Franciosa.

A TV series mainstay, she was seen as "Mabel Spooner" opposite Larry Blyden's "Joe Spooner" in "Joe & Mabel" (1956), "Iris Anderson" in the 1958 "Perry Mason" episode "The Case of the Pint-Sized Client" and con-woman/struggling actress "Susan Reed" in the first season of "Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer" (1958-59). She also played a nurse friend of Anne Francis, who played another nurse, in the second season, in an episode on "Columbo" with Peter Falk, called "A Stitch in Crime" with guest star, Leonard Nimoy. She may also be remembered playing the slim, street wise character, "Blondie Collins" on the NBC TV series "The Thin Man" starring Phyllis Kirk and Peter Lawford, as the famous sleuthing couple, "Nick & Nora Charles", and of course, "Asta".

Last Week's Celebrity

Tough, virile, wavy-haired and ruggedly handsome with trademark forlorn-looking brow that added an intriguing touch of vulnerability to his hard outer core, actor Howard Duff and his wife-at-the-time actress Ida Lupino, were one of Hollywood's premiere film couples during the 1950s "Golden Age". Prior to that, Duff had relationships with a number of the cinema's most dazzling leading ladies, including Ava Gardner (just prior to her marriage to musician Artie Shaw) and Gloria DeHaven. Along with "Woman in Hiding" (1950), Duff co-starred with Lupino in four hard-boiled film dramas during the 1950s: "Jennifer" (1953), "Private Hell 36" (1954), "Woman's Prison" (1955) and "While the City Sleeps" (1956). The demise of the studio-guided contract system had an effect on Howard's film career and offers started drying up in the late 1950s. Fortunately, he found just as wide an appeal on TV, appearing in a number of dramatic showcases for the "Science Fiction Theater" (1955), "Lux Video Theatre" (1950) and "Climax" (1954). In a change of pace, the married couple decided to go for laughs for starring together in the TV series "Mr. Adams and Eve" (1957). Other TV roles included "The Lucy-Desi Comedy Hour", "Bonanza", "The Twilight Zone", "Burke's Law" and "Combat". The marriage of Ida and Howard did not last, however, and the famous married couple separated in 1966 after 15 years of marriage. They didn't officially divorce until 1984. Towards the end of his career, he had a few memorable roles such as the sex-minded, booze-swilling relative in "A Wedding" (1978) and as Dustin Hoffman's attorney in the Oscar-winning drama "Kramer vs. Kramer" (1979).
