Sixth Annual Glen Cove Howl'oween Pet Parade Brings Out The Best in Costume Creativity

The streets of Glen Cove were filled with the best in canine costume creativity for Glen Cove's Sixth Annual Howl'oween Pet Parade. Pets dressed for success channeled sharks, spaghetti and meatballs, royalty, ballerinas, Disney characters, super heroes, wild animals and even a fighter pilot. "Over 100 pets participated in this year's parade and I must admit each year our pets and their owners push the envelope on creativity," said Mayor Spinello.

Created by the Glen Cove Parks and Recreation Department, the event featured costume contest prizes awarded in categories ranging from large and small dogs to most original, best pet/pet owner and best in show, free treats and a raffle. Participants who made a food or financial donation to Cove Animal Rescue received a free plush dog toy from North Coast Subaru.

Hosted by former Glen Cove High School teacher, Dale Zurbrick, the event's sponsors included Petco, North Coast Subaru and Scoopy Doo with support from the Glen Cove

Glen Cove takes part in Dig Pink

For the fifth consecutive year, Glen Cove High School's girls volleyball team and Locust Valley High School's volleyball programs teamed up for a Dig Pink non-league game in recognition of National Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Prior to the game, the teams held a bake sale and donated the proceeds to the Side-Out Foundation, a cancer research organization. The students are always excited to help out this wonderful cause.

Each year the girls design their own Dig Pink volleyball jerseys. Coaches

Matthew Carbone and George Kearns supply a bagel breakfast for both teams to give the girls an opportunity to bond while eating and planning the work of art jerseys they will wear to the game. Numbers, ribbons, names and other colorful creations usually go on their jersey.

Celebrity Goes To Bed

We are retiring the "Name the Celebrity" column as of this week. We thank all of the people who participated in calling in to guess each week. I would also like to thank and honor the late great Gene Auciello who started this popular column. I also want to thank Brenda Weck who kept the column and legacy going after Gene's passing. To follow is last week's answer, so that we don't keep you in suspense. Enjoy, Kevin

Last week's celebrity was Keye Luke. His most memorable role was as "Number One Son" to Warner Oland's "Charlie Chan" character in the long time series, before Oland died. In 1948, Luke returned to the "Chan" mysteries, which were now being produced by Monogram and starred Roland Winters as "Chan". "Number One Son" appeared in the last two "Chan" features, "The Feathered Serpent" along with "Number Two Son Tommy Chan" (Victor Sen Yeng) in their only appearance together, and "Sky Dragon". In both of these films, Luke was older than the actor playing his father. Unlike some performers, who had failed to establish themselves beyond a single role, Keye Luke continued to work prolifically in Hollywood, at several studios. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer cast him in a recurring role in its "Dr. Kildare" film series in the 1930s and '40s, and Monogram Pictures features him in its "Frankie Darro" comedies and also starred him as "Mr. Wong" in "Phantom of Chinatown" (1940). Unlike Boris Karloff, who had preceded him in the "Mr. Wong" role, Luke played the detective without any exotic touches. Though his "Mr. Wong" was Chinese descent and able to speak Chinese, he was otherwise an ordinary American gumshoe, with no trace of a foreign accent or "Oriental" philosophy. RKO Pictures used him in its popular adventures of "The Falcon" with George Sanders and in the "Mexican Spitfire" (1940) with Lupe Velez. He also worked at Universal Pictures, where he played two-fisted valet/chauffeur "Kato" in its "Green Hornet" film series, played by Gordon Jones ("Mike, the Cop" on the Abbott and Costello Show" of the 1950s) and Warren Hull. Combined, both series produced 28 episodes. He had a featured role in "The Chairman" (1969) starring Gregory Peck. Luke provided the voice of evil "Mr. Han" in "Enter the Dragon" (1973) starring Bruce Lee. He played the mysterious old Chinatown shop owner "Mr. Wing" in two 1980s "Gremlins" movies and had a significant role in Woody Allen's "Alice" (1990). In 1972, "Number One Son" ascended to the role of "Charlie Chan" himself, thus becoming the first actor of Chinese descent to play the role. He also supplied the voice of "Mr. Chan" in the animated TV series "The Amazing Chan and the Chan Clan". He was also known for his role of "Master Po" in the TV series "Kung Fu" (1972-75). In 1985, he played the "Ancient One" on the afternoon soap opera "General Hospital". There were several voice overs on such popular animated shows as "Space Ghost" and "Battle of the Planets". There was a reference made of him that brought a chuckle to this now aging actor, which was, in the "Fractured Fairy Tales" episode "The Enchanted Fly", one of the rewards offered to the man who would rescue and marry the princess is, "an autographed picture of Keye Luke". Luke died of a stroke on January 12, 1991, at the age of 86.

Teddy Roosevelt's Amazon Adventure Comes To Cedarmere

In 1914, former president Theodore Roosevelt headed an expedition to explore an uncharted river in the Amazon wilderness, the Rio Da Duvida - the River of Doubt. He expected a grand adventure, "my last chance to be a boy!" It turned out to be the most harrowing episode in his storied career, an epic three-month-long struggle with the natural world that almost cost him his life. He and the members of his expedition, which included his own son Kermit, endured deprivations, malaria, Indian attacks, dangerous rapids, and every form of suffering that the Amazon rainforest could inflict. In the end, a grand and noble enterprise became a desperate race for survival.

On Sunday November 6, a reading of River of Doubt, an historical play for three actors, written by Glen Cove playwright Frederick Stoppel, will be performed at Cedarmere, the estate of 19th century poet William Cullen Bryant, in Roslyn Harbor. The narrative is told through the perspectives of Teddy Roosevelt, his son Kermit, and Colonel Candido Rondon, the Brazilian leader of the expedition and a great hero in his own country.

"I first heard of this episode from the Ken Burns documentary The Roosevelts on PBS," says Stoppel, who felt it would make a gripping stage play. He researched the story, reading various biographies as well as the best-selling book The River of Doubt by Candace Millard, and developed his own theater piece over the last year. "I originally envisioned it as a two-character play for Teddy and his son Kermit, but then the character of Colonel Rondon emerged so strongly that I had to make room for him." The play will be performed at Cedarmere by actors Lee Kurfist (Teddy Roosevelt), Lucas Iverson (Kermit Roosevelt), and Roger Hernandez (Colonel Rondon).

What is remarkable to the playwright is that this story, so full of adventure and personal drama, is virtually unknown to all but the most ardent Roosevelt enthusiasts. "In any another life this would be the central episode, the defining life-and-death struggle. But Theodore Roosevelt was such a huge, protean figure that it barely registers as a footnote." He hopes that his play will bring the fascinating story to greater attention.

The Cedarmere estate is located at 225 Bryant Avenue in Roslyn Harbor. The performance of River of Doubt will be at 3 pm, and is free to the public.

Finley students raise awareness

In honor of Breast Cancer Awareness Month, members of Finley Middle School's National Junior Honor Society and student council held a variety of events to raise money and awareness for the cause.

On Oct. 16, the students attended the Making Strides Against Breast Cancer walk at Jones Beach, in addition to holding bake sales and selling pink bracelets throughout the month. The Finley staff also contributed to the cause through a "wear pink" fundraising day. In all, the students donated $750 to the American Cancer Society.

Sea Cliff K-Kids Sponsor The Down Syndrome Buddy Awareness Walk

Team North Shore, sponsored by the Sea Cliff K-Kids, with Faculty Advisor Mark Mihopulos at the helm, represents our district's shared values as communicators, collaborators, problem solvers and committed individuals with concern for others/awareness of self.

The students from Sea Cliff Schools and North Shore Middle School decided to walk in support of Down Syndrome Awareness to solve the problem of many communities not understanding the special needs and talents of people with Down Syndrome. They created posters to advertise the event and shared invitations with their peers and families. The Team walked a mile around Tanner Park in Copiague, NY and enjoyed a picnic lunch and also appreciated the local live music. Our large team size and composition (included K-8 students, siblings, parents and community members and educators) proved to the Long Island communities that North Shore Schools supports all students becoming better world builders. Congratulations on a job well done!

Great Book Guru

- Ann DiPietro

Dear Great Bok Guru, This Saturday is the Sea Cliff Civic Association's iconic event – the Progressive Dinner. Chaired by Tina Marchese, the Dinner is very popular and always sold out. I am looking forward to a delicious food and a great chance to meet friends old and new. With the election in a few days, I know dinner conversation will turn to politics. Do you have a good book I can read and discuss with the other guests? Excited Progressive Dinner Diner

Dear Excited Progressive Dinner Diner, Tina does a fabulous job every year so I am sure you will indeed have a great time, and I do have the perfect book for you: THE SPOILS OF WAR by Bruce Bueno De Mesquita and Alistair Smith. This is a retelling of American history with an emphasis on the presidencies of Washington, Lincoln, Teddy Roosevelt, FDR, Kennedy, Bush, and Obama. The authors' thesis is that the most popular presidents ruled during our bloodiest years. Cherished national myths are debunked with Washington and Lincoln receiving the harshest treatment. Washington is described as not so much a proponent of independence from the Crown, but a champion for his own vast personal wealth. Lincoln is criticized for prolonging wartoguaranteehisreelection. On the other hand, LBJ receives special attention and praise as someone who gave up hopes for reelection in order to see his social programs triumph. This is a fresh, interesting, and entertaining look at our country's leaders.... Highly recommended!

North Shore Women's Club holds another successful fundraiser!

by Jillian O'Day

Founded in 1940, the North Shore Women's Club has been helping our local families through hard times for 76 years. Their original purpose, in 1940, was to raise enough money to hire nurses to visit our schools. Back then, children weren't educated on hygiene and cleanliness. Most people worked on farms all day, and children typically helped out after school; bad hygiene and hard, outdoor labor made for a deadly combination and disease spread like a wildfire, through schools and through homes. The club managed to raise enough money to afford traveling nurses that would stop in schools and educate families, as well as tend to the sick.

The Women's Club today, mostly focuses on local family financial struggles, which can range from helping to pay for a child's glasses, offering high school scholarships, and many other types of family hardships/offerings. Their main source of income comes from donations, and from their annual charity auction/fundraiser held each year, on the third Wednesday of October. The event is constantly changing to keep in step with the times.

The annual fundraiser began, 50 years ago, as a fashion show, and quickly evolved. Now held at the Milleridge Inn

Cottage, over 230 people attend each year, with the numbers rising annually. The Milleridge Inn hosts a lovely dinner where the club auctions off beautiful, valuable baskets and holds many silent auctions. There are now 100+ baskets and about 20 silent auctions. These range from a 1-year family membership to the YMCA, a meet and greet with Regina Calcaterra, the author of Etched In Sand and co-author of Girl Unbroken, including signed copies of her books, gift certificates to many of the areas finest restaurants, and so much more! Aside from the dinner, the group of 40 members meets once a month to discuss upcoming plans, and useful ways to spend the money they raised. This can include choosing the recipients of the college scholarships for kids in our neighborhood, or how to help a local family in need anonymously.

For 7 years Michelle Hagen has been president of the club and since, the club has held numerous successful events. This year's event not only provided 230 people with a great social atmosphere and evening out for the ladies, stunning party favors (gift certificates to get your nails done, gutters cleaned and gift cards to restaurants), but helped to raise $20,000 for the community. A job well-done ladies!

Historic Pathway between Summit Ave. & Fairview Place

To The Editor,

Having roots going back to the early 1880's, when my great grandfather had a small house built on Sea Cliff Ave. and later a larger one on the corner of 8th and Main, to house his 10 children (my grandmother being one of them), I was happy to learn there is a Historic Committee alive and well in this lovely small town on a somewhat over crowded Long Island.

I see the committee is at work re: a re-construction of a Historic Pathway between Summit Ave. and Fairview Place. However, the committee is probably not aware of the alcohol and drug activity (& noise which accompanies these activities) that has plagued this walkway for some years - particularly weekend nights in the warmer months, although cold weather certainly does not deter these abusers.

When this Historic Walkway became covered with overgrowth in the past few years, these activities subsided considerably. The Historic Walkway would certainly be a positive improvement, particularly in daytime, but only if the committee would provide night lighting to prevent these activities from reoccurring once again. Calling the police on a regular basis has not always been a solution, since by the time they arrive the "action" is gone & the abusers have left.

I do not know who serves on this committee, but hopefully they will take into consideration the safety and well being of all of it's residents, and the noise issues, as well as the illegal activities will be taken into account. SEA CLIFF K-KIDS SPONSOR THE DOWN SYNDROM BUDDY AWARENESS WALK

Here's One That Can Make You Nuts

To The Editor,

Donald Trump may be on to something with his criticism of the media as being biased. For the wrong reasons, however. Here's one to think about:

WikiLeaks, an organization created by Julian Assange, an Australian computer programmer who, for the past several years, has been confined to Ecuadorian Embassy in London where he is avoiding extradition to Sweden on a rape charge, has been publishing stolen e-mails of Hillary Clinton and high ranking members of her campaign. It's clear that this non-American is determined to interfere with the presidential election in the United States. What's becoming clearer is the appearance that he's acting in concert with the Russians, who have been accused by no less than 17 American spy agencies of hacking the e-mail accounts of all these Democrats.

Today, an e-mail was published by WikiLeaks which purports to establish that donors to the Clinton Global Initiative, a charitable foundation that provides anti-aides drugs to millions of sufferers around the world, also hired Bill Clinton, personally, to give high priced speeches which have made him very wealthy.

The media, and in particular cable TV which has a voracious 24/7 hunger for news, got its hands on that e-mail suggesting that Bill Clinton got paid for speeches from people who also made charitable contributions to his foundation, and they ran with it like rats. To beef up their ratings, they started asking about whether getting paid from the same people who made charitable gifts is some kind of "pay for play" event because even though Clinton was a private citizen, he was married to the Secretary of State.

If you think about this with half a brain, the only question you can come up with is "SO WHAT?" Where the hell is any corrupt practice? But Donald Trump, the very low information loud mouth who can't figure out that there's nothing there, is running all over the country carrying on about Hillary being the most corrupt human being in history because her husband got paid for speaking by people who also gave his charity money which, so far as anyone knows, actually used it for real charitable purposes instead of using the money for improper purposes like buying a six-foot painting of Donald Trump.

Here's what Trump and his Republican supporters don't tell you. If you turn over any of the rocks in Washington, what you'll find is that all sorts of Congressmen and Senators have spouses, kids and other family members who either work for, or are themselves, lobbyists. And that slimy business is not confined to Democrats. Both sides do it.

But here's one you can really like. Do you remember the case of Gore v. Bush, the case where the Supreme Court stopped the Florida recount and gave the presidency to George Bush who thereafter gave America 15+ years of war and still counting? It's bad enough that Antonin Scalia, one of the justices who handed the election to Bush, was also a hunting buddy of Dick Cheney, one of the architects of that war. Did you know that Scalia had two sons, Eugene and John Scalia, who were lawyers that had represented George W. Bush, and Scalia never thought he should recuse himself from the lawsuit over the presidency? You want to come up with a conspiracy theory? Try that set of facts on for size. But puleeze, don't tell me that Hillary Clinton is disqualified from running for the White House because her husband received a speaking fee from someone who also gave his foundation a charitable contribution. Where's the beef? Well, I'll tell you where it is.

The beef is in the fact that Scalia gets away with far, far more suspect conduct, and nobody raises an eyebrow. I may not like the Clintons, but I'm through listening to these bogus conspiracies their opponents are trying to lay on them.

So, yes, there are two things wrong with the media. First, they're so hungry for news that they'll report anything if it means improved ratings, even if it's completely bogus and they know it. Second, this is the same crowd that handed Donald Trump $2 billion dollars' worth of free media coverage and virtually created him as the Republican nominee; and now everyone's wringing their hands.

Catherine C Davison

Catherine Davison, known as Katusha, was born in Toulouse, France in 1930, to Count Vassily and Countess Daria Cheremeteff. She grew up in the Haute Savoie and moved to Paris during the German Occupation, winning a medal for bravery at the age of 14 for saving a boy who was swimming in a canal that was being strafed by a fighter plane. She moved to the United States with her mother in 1947 and attended Bryn Mawr College.

In 1953, she married Daniel P. Davison of New York and with him raised three sons (Danny Jr., George and Harry) in New York and London. She was her husband's active guide and consort throughout his career as a banker at JP Morgan and then as the CEO of the US Trust Company. She is credited with founding the volunteer program at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in the 1960's. While living in London in the 1970's, she became involved with the American Museum at Bath and the Friends of Covent Garden Opera. Returning to New York, she served on the Board of International House and was Board Chair of the Nassau County Museum of Art. Until the end of her life, Catherine was a member of the Board of the Florence Gould Foundation. She was awarded the "Legionne D'Honneur" by the Republic of France for her work furthering French American relations.

Katusha believed in getting people together over food and conversation. She was a member of the Foreign Policy Association and the Colony Club, loved history and voraciously consumed book after book. She ran her houses in New York City, London, Locust Valley and Georgia with precision, and was known for her ability to host huge house parties, seemingly without effort. She
